WANTS TO USE MONEY

In Paying Debts of Clark & McMaster's Piano Company.

Rutland, July 13.—Fred A. Field, as trustee in bankruptcy for the estate of Clark & McMaster Piano company of this city and Montpelier, and who was recently authorized by the creditors of the company to bring suit to recover certain assets alleged to be held wrongfully, has brought a bill in chancery in the United States court of Vermont against Charles H. Harrison, trustee, the Clement National bank of Rutland and the Capital Savings Bank & Trust company of Montpelier, asking that certain notes, mortgages and book accounts held by them be turned over to the trustee and that the sum of $3,218.40 which Mr. Field holds as receiver for the piano company and which was received from the sale of the store property on Grove street in this city be made available for use in paying creditors in the bankruptcy proceeding. It is alleged that through a process known as "kiting checks" the piano concern and Joey E. Clark, its president, became indebted to the Clement and the Montpelier banks for about $20,000, giving to secure these debts book accounts held by the piano company and notes given by its customers in payment for pianos and other musical instruments and also letting the Clement bank have a chattel mortgage on the stock and fixtures of the store in this city which was closed last fall. The allegation is that Mr. Harrison as trustee and the banks knew, or had reasonable cause to know, that by taking the commercial papers and other securities they were giving themselves preference under the bankruptcy act and enabling themselves to receive a better percentage on their claims than other creditors.

TO DIVIDE FEES.

Doctors Who Stay at Home Asked to Share with Those Going to War.

The Vermont state committee of the Council of National Defense, medical section, met Wednesday evening at Burlington and adopted a resolution by which doctors left at home will divide their fees with those who go to the front. It was referred to the National Council of Defense at Washington and recommended to the various county societies of the state.

Another resolution adopted reads as follows: "Resolved, That the principle of selective draft be applied to securing adequate medical aid in the present national crisis, interpreting in this case, the words, 'selective draft' to mean that doctors be used for the service for which their training and experience most fits them.

This means that doctors skilled in clinical work will be placed in a position where their knowledge would be of the greatest use. Surgeons would be located where their particular line of work was most needed.

The doctors of Vermont are determined to do their part in the present war. Surgeons and physicians are needed in great numbers on the European battlefields and in the hospitals for the convalescent wounded in France and England.

The greater majority of Vermont doctors have families depending upon them. It was the second resolution which recommended that the county medical societies, of which there are 11 in the state, should adopt a resolution to have those doctors remaining at home who attend the patients of those who volunteer for service with the armies in America or on the other side of the water, turn over part of the fees collected to the families of the absent doctors.

The county societies of the state include practically all of the doctors in Vermont. The members of the state committee present at the Burlington meeting Wednesday evening were of the opinion that all of the societies would adopt this resolution and thereby provide for the maintenance of the families of the physicians who enlist for service. It is the opinion of doctors throughout the state that if this resolution becomes a law there will be many medical men who will offer their services immediately.
