Two foxes from Orange have been added to the little fox farm on the premises of J. E. Murphy of Merchant street, the new members of the colony having been caught by an Orange farmer a week ago. In the way of domesticating themselves, the new arrivals have much to learn from the six little foxes captured on a farm in Berlin last spring and brought to Barre for a change of scenery. Mr. Murphy will not have to enlarge the present quarters of the fox farm as there is ample room for at least a dozen Sir Reynolds to get acquainted and live in harmony.
An interesting sidelight on the treatment accorded sailors who wear the blue of the United States navy is found in letters received in Barre by the friends of two Barre lads who offered their services to Uncle Sam at the outbreak of the war. In New York recently, the young sailors while on shore leave visited a restaurant, where they ordered discriminatingly from the bill of fare and enjoyed a hearty meal. When they were about to leave the place they presented the dinner slip to the cashier only to learn that the proprietor of the restaurant took pride in dining United States sailors free of charge. Shipmates of the Barre lads encountered similar experiences in traveling about New York.
Mrs. Maybel Mason of 1 First street is in receipt of a letter describing the last hours of her great-grand-aunt, Mrs. Dian Tyler, whose death in Woodsville, N. H., a short time ago removed one of the oldest persons in that vicinity. Mrs. Tyler was 97 years old and because her activities continued until within a few hours of her death the end came as a shock to members of the family. Until the last she retained all of her faculties and busied herself about the house. White mountain historians assigned to Mrs. Tyler the honor of being the first woman to ascend Mount Washington on horseback. In her day the nonagenarian saw mountain traffic change swiftly from horse-drawn vehicles to steam trains and automobiles.

The explosion of a soda bottle and the attending shower of glass may deprive H. E. Jeffords, a North Main street painter, of the use of his left eye. During the heat of the day yesterday Mr. Jeffords, who is a painter by trade, laid down his brush and made for a nearby third emporium, where the proprietor told him to help himself to bottles of cold soda in the ice box. Scarcely had the painter selected the flavor of his choice than the pressure of the carbonated water caused an explosion. A fragment of flying glass struck Mr. Jeffords in the eye. The eye ball was slightly lacerated and other effects of the mishap were discernible when the painter consulted Dr. E. G. Sprague.

GUNNER KING IN RUTLAND.

Was On American Steamship Orleans, Sunk By Submarine.

Rutland, Aug. 3.—Ernest E. King, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. King of 31 Cleveland avenue, a member of the naval gunners' crew of the ill-fated American steamship Orleans, which was sunk by a German submarine in June of this year, is in Rutland on a 12 days' leave.

Strict orders from his superiors in the service prevent the young man from disclosing the location or date of the attack upon his ship by the U-boat. He is also denied the privilege of acquainting any one with the details of the sinking of the Orleans or to state at what port he arrived upon returning to America or to what port he will return to his duties.

The young man arrived at his home unannounced and surprised his parents by appearing at the door in the evening. Mr. King makes no denial that his experience aboard the Orleans was thrilling but his courage and nerve have not been diminished by the ordeal he underwent when his ship was destroyed and he, with others of the gunners' crew, were rescued.

WANTS MISS TERRILL.

Food Expert Hoover Sends Call to University of Vermont Woman.

Burlington, Aug. 3.—Miss Bertha M. Terrill, professor of home economics at the University of Vermont, has received through Herbert C. Hoover, the man most prominent mentioned as the country's food administrator, an urgent request to aid in a national campaign, which will be undertaken by the food conservation department. Professor Terrill has presented the request to President Benton and Dean J. L. Hills of the state college of agriculture and they have notified her that they will request the university board of trustees to care for her work.

so that she may be free to undertake this larger patriotic service. It is probable, however, that Miss Terrill will remain at the university for at least the first semester.

A portion of Mr. Hoover's letter to Miss Terrill follows: "Your name is recorded in our files as that of one of the country's ablest speakers. The food conservation department is obliged to embark upon a campaign in which one of the chief factors is that of the spoken word. Calls are coming in from all over the country for speakers. They cannot be satisfied without your help. If you cannot give a long period of time to the work, please indicate the conditions on which we may secure your valuable help."
