STIRRING PLEA TO GODDARD '18

quered the preacher. Who knows how many potential scientists, moralists, inventors and teachers are to be sacrificed that the principles which we cherish may endure? It is left to youth to direct the course of civilization, and it would be well for the world if the men between 20 and 40 could be called to the colors, instead of the young men. Yet it is not the way of life, for life says that youth must bear the burden.

Throughout the course of his address Rev. Mr. Morrell continually pointed out the gradual, yet steady, shift of responsibility toward youth. The margin, he declared, is growing ever nearer the youth which is represented between the ages of 20 and 35. In former times the old men were the leaders. Their opinions were cherished for they alone possessed the experience. To-day all is changed. The vast stores of knowledge and wisdom collected by the fathers have been sifted until the youth of today may gather what he needs in three or four years. He may acquire in that period that which formerly required years of research to acquire.

The things of the spirit deserve the greater consideration in the activities of youth. The student who completes his course in school or college and then takes the stand that he will use his education to help himself only is guilty of something akin to treason. Students, said the clergyman, do not "earn their way through college." They labor to pay their board, but they profit by the accumulated stores of knowledge which the college places at their disposal, by the self-sacrificing of teachers, who labor not for money but for the love of the laboring.

The war has brought new emphasis to the word, "service." It is a call to duty, and it means that service must be associated with sacrifice. While the men are with the colors, the women must do their part in the munition plants and on the farms. The most glorious part of the story of the cross is the crucifixion. When all is said and done the war means a young people's sacrifice. It means that young people must contribute the real service, and ultimately it will be the young man and the young woman who will receive the glory.

Addressing his closing remarks in particular to the graduates, the clergyman said: "Members of the class of 1918, I wish you to remember that education is a social function. What you have is by the grace of society's efforts; what you have learned has been brought together by society and treasurer for your benefit. There is much more in store for you. As you go out into the pathways of life remember the immortal message which comes back to us from the western front, "We are holding." It is the determination that will carry you through the years of service. Find your places and carry your banner of allegiance ever aloft, remembering always to glorify service."

KAISER PUTS FAITH IN GERMAN VICTORY

Tells Chancellor Von Hertling That God Has Laid a Heavy Burden on His Shoulders But He Will Carry It Through.

Amsterdam, June 17.—Prussian militarism will bring victory to Germany, says Emperor William in reply to a telegram of congratulations on the thirtieth anniversary of his accession from Chancellor Von Hertling. The emperor declares he leads "the most capable people on earth." The telegram reads: "When I celebrated my twenty-fifth year jubilee as ruler, I was able, with special gratitude to point out that I had been able to do my work as a prince of peace. Since then the world picture has changed. For nearly four years, forced to it by our enemies, we have been engaged in the hardest struggle history records. God, the Lord, has laid a heavy burden upon my shoulders, but I carry it in the consciousness of our good right, with confidence in our ship, our sword and our strength, and in the realization that I have the good fortune to stand at the head of the most capable people on earth. Just as our army under strong leaderships have proved themselves invincible, so also will the home land, exerting all its strength, bear with strong will the sufferings and privations which just now are keenly felt. Thus, I have spent this day amidst my armies and it moved me to the depths of my heart, yet filled with the most profound gratitude to God's mercy. I know that Prussian militarism, so much abused by our enemies, which my forefathers and I in a spirit of dutifulness, loyalty, order and obedience have nurtured, has given Germany's sword and the German nation strength to triumph and that victory will bring peace which will guarantee the German life. It will then be my sacred duty, as well as that of the states, with all our power to see the healing of the wounds caused by the war and to secure a happy future for the nation. In most faithful recognition of the work hitherto performed, I rely on your approval and strength and the help of the state ministry. God bless our land and people!"

UPPER GRANITEVILLE

The past has been a red letter year for the Foxville grammar school. The delightful spirit of union among the teachers has combined a happy, united force. Mrs. Westcott, with her superior, modern methods, her most cheerful and forceful personality, her enthusiasm for the work, together with the loyal co-operation of the other excellent teachers, has revolutionized the school. Double the work of any previous year has been accomplished. Patriotism, Red Cross work, love of the flag, thrift and economy of time and supplies, true union in all good efforts on the part of pupils and teachers is evident. From this united effort shines forth the spirit of true democracy. Out of a very ungraded condition, order and system have developed. Enthusiastic learning is taking the place of compulsory work, and out of the love of study the pupils have suddenly realized the joy of knowing things. The parents and those interested are continually saying fine things about the work, such as, "Our children are learning more and taking more interest than ever before." "We are delighted with the spirit of the school" and "Too much cannot be said of our worthy, faithful teachers."
