FATALLY BURNED. William Winter, Who Was at Summer Home of Son at Shelburne.

Burlington, July 26.—William Winter of Rockford, Ill., who, with his wife, had come to spend the summer at the home of his son, H. L. Winter, in Shelburne, was fatally burned there Wednesday in a fire which destroyed the cottage, dying that evening in the Mary Fletcher hospital.

A kerosene hot water heater had been left burning in the bathroom and Mr. Winter went up to turn it out. It is believed that it exploded, for when he opened the door the room was in flames. He succeeded in dragging from the room and downstairs a trunk, but as he attempted to escape from the cottage, which by that time was in flames, he was overcome by them and his burns and was found on the ground just outside the cottage.

It was seen at once that his condition was critical and he was hurried to the Mary Fletcher hospital, where being sent meantime to his son and wife, who had left early that morning on a motor trip to Rutland. They reached Burlington at 2 that afternoon.

The cottage was totally destroyed and with it furnishings and equipment of all kinds, as the Winters had rented their house in this city for the summer and had moved their goods to the cottage at Shelburne, which was built only last summer at an expense of $2,500 and which was being occupied this season for the first time.

There was insurance of $2,000. Everything in the cottage was destroyed, including all the silverware, clothing and furniture. The family was left with only the clothing on their backs.

As it happened, the trunk which Mr. Winter dragged downstairs was empty, its contents having been taken out and hung up.

Mr. Winter was 73 years old and besides his wife and the son above mentioned he left a daughter, Mrs. Paul Bennett of Rockford, Ill.

LABOR MOBILIZATION.

Supplying of War Industries to Be Centralized Aug. 1.

On Aug. 1, the supplying of war industries with common labor will be centralized in the U. S. employment service of the department of labor, and all independent recruiting of common labor by war industry manufacturers having a payroll of more than 100 men will be diverted to the U. S. employment service.

This is in accordance with the decision of the war labor policies board and approved by the president June 17.

The above action was found necessary to overcome a serious shortage of unskilled labor in war industries. This shortage was aggravated by an almost universal practice of labor stealing and poaching.

While the restrictions against the private employment of labor apply only to common labor at the present time, these restrictions will, as soon as possible, be extended to include skilled labor. In the meantime, recruiting of skilled labor for war production will be subject to federal regulations now being prepared.

This drastic change in the nation's labor program has been found necessary in order to protect the employer and the employed, to conserve the labor supply of the communities and to cut down unnecessary and expensive labor turnover and to increase the production of essentials. While non-essential industries will be drawn upon to supply the necessary labor for war work, the withdrawal will be conducted on an equitable basis in order to protect the individual employer as much as possible.

Under the operating methods adopted, the country has been divided into 13 federal districts, each district in charge of a superintendent of the U. S. employment service. The states within each district are in turn in charge of a state director, who has full control of the service within his state.

In each community there is being formed a local community labor board, consisting of a representative of the U. S. employment service, a representative of employers and a representative of the employed. This board will have jurisdiction over recruiting and distributing labor in its locality.

A survey of the labor requirements is being made, and in order that each community may be fully protected, rulings have been issued that no labor shall be transported out of any community by the U. S. employment service without the approval of the state director; nor shall any labor be removed by the service from one state to another without the approval of the U. S. employment service at Washington. Every effort will be made to discourage any movements from community to community or state to state by any other service.

This labor program has the approval of all producing departments of the government, through the war labor policies board.

It must be understood that farm labor will be protected, for the industrial program distinctly includes special efforts to keep the farmers supplied with labor.

The requirement that unskilled labor must be recruited through the sole agency of the U. S. employment service does not at present apply in the following cases:

- 1. Labor which is not directly or indirectly solicited.
2. Labor for the railroads.
3. Farm labor—to be recruited in accordance with existing arrangement with department of agriculture.
4. Labor for non-war work.
5. Labor for establishments whose maximum force does not exceed 100.

When the survey of labor requirements has been made and the aggregate demand for unskilled labor in war work is found, each state will be assigned a quota, representing the common labor to be drawn from among men engaged in non-essential industries in that state.

These state quotas will in turn be distributed among localities. Within each locality, employers in non-war work, including those who are only partially in war work, will be asked to distribute the local quotas from time to time amongst themselves. Quotas by localities and individuals are to be accepted as readily as they are for Liberty loan and Red Cross campaigns. This plan of labor is a protection for all communities.

The object is to keep any community from being drained of labor, and to use local supply, as far as possible, for local demand. The situation, however, is such that in certain cases some men may have to be transported over long distances.

This is probably the most drastic action that the government has taken since putting the national army draft into effect. The absolute necessity for this program can be seen when it is realized that in Pittsburgh, for instance, there are advertisements calling for men to go to Detroit; while in Detroit street cars there are posters asking men to go to Pittsburgh. This same condition is apparent all over the United States and in the consequent shifting of labor a great part of our war effort is dissipated.

This committee requests your united support and the benefit of your co-operation, and we believe this will help materially to solve the problem which we face. Leighton P. Slack, Chairman, Joseph G. Brown, Secretary.
