CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When Cross, Feverish and Sick

"California Syrup of Figs"

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste; liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system is full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, mother! See its tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company," Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

URGES IMMEDIATE FORMATION OF PEACE LEAGUE

Senator Shafroth of Colorado Criticized Senator Knox' Proposal to Postpone Consideration of the Question.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—Renewing debate in the Senate to-day on the proposal for a league of nations, Senator Shafroth, of Colorado, Democrat, urged immediate formation of such a league and criticized those who have advocated postponement of consideration of this question by the peace conferees.

Senator Shafroth particularly attacked the resolution of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, Republican, now before the foreign relations committee, which proposes that action by the peace congress be deferred.

"There are two ways of defeating the plan for a league of nations," the senator said, "first by openly opposing and voting against it; and second, by postponing its consideration to a time when other subjects are engrossing the attention of the world and when there may exist divisions and disputes among nations which might destroy any chance of effecting an agreement. In my judgment, the resolution of Senator Knox proposing postponement is virtually a vote against the formation of any league of nations for the purpose of avoiding wars."

"President Wilson now is in Europe endeavoring to negotiate a peace treaty that not only will settle the disputes as to the nations in this war, but that will at least have a tendency to prevent wars in the future. As I have said so many times that we are fighting for a permanent peace among the nations of the world, that this is a war to end all wars, it seems to me inconsistent with our own declarations when we advise that he should not endeavor to accomplish the aim for which we entered the war, the peace of the world."

REV. EDWARD T. FAIRBANKS.

Died in St. Johnsbury Monday After Long Illness.

St. Johnsbury, Jan. 14.—Rev. Edward Taylor Fairbanks, D. D., died yesterday morning after a long illness. The funeral will be held Wednesday forenoon at 11 o'clock.

Dr. Fairbanks was born in St. Johnsbury May 12, 1836, the son of Joseph P. and Almira Taylor Fairbanks. He was educated at St. Johnsbury academy, and Phillips Andover academy, graduating from Yale in 1859. He took the theological course at Andover seminary and traveled abroad for two years and a half following the completion of his theological studies. He was ordained pastor of the First Congregational church at St. Johnsbury Center Jan. 1, 1868. From January, 1874 to July, 1902, he was pastor of the South Congregational church, St. Johnsbury, one of the longest continued active pastorates in the Congregational society of Vermont.

Since his retirement from active ministry, Dr. Fairbanks has been at the head of the St. Johnsbury library. He represented St. Johnsbury in the legislature, was a trustee of St. Johnsbury academy, and active in the management of the Fairbanks museum. He was the author of the history of St. Johnsbury, "The Wrought Brim," and several other books. He married in Derry, N. H., in 1862, Emma Cornelia Tappin of Montpelier. She died in the summer of 1917. Dr. Fairbanks leaves one daughter, Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, of St. Johnsbury.

In 1892 the University of Vermont conferred the degree of doctor of divinity.

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

T. W. Gebbie, Aged Greensboro Farmer, Carried by Engine Some Distance.

Greensboro Bend, Jan. 14.—T. W. Gebbie, a respected and aged farmer of this town, came very near being killed last Friday evening at Greensboro Bend by the 5 o'clock train on the St. Johnsbury & Lake Champlain railroad, when he attempted to cross the track near the depot. The sleigh in which he was riding was hit squarely by the oncoming train and he was carried, hanging from the vehicle, for some distance on the front of the engine. The doctor found no bones broken but several cuts and bruises in the arm and legs and back. He was unconscious for a time but rallied from it and was taken to the home of H. W. Gillis, where he spent the night. Mrs. Gebbie, who was returning from St. Johnsbury, and whom he went to the depot to meet, cared for him during the night. Mr. Gebbie is a man over 70 years of age and the severe shaking up may prove to be more serious than at first appeared. The horse escaped unhurt.

MAY SECEDE FROM MAJORS

Minor Baseball League Officials Make Demands of the Majors

PLAYER DRAFTING CALLED UNFAIR

Dispute Under Consideration at Important Meeting in New York

New York, Jan. 14.—A meeting of the new International league officials, and another of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, at which the question of obtaining for the minor leagues relief from the present draft regulations was considered, ushered in here to-day the most important week of baseball conferences held in many years. Some minor league officials intimated that unless the demands of the minors were granted they would break with the major organizations.

Since the national agreement was signed years ago the major leagues have enjoyed the privilege of drafting players from the smaller organizations. This practice, minor league officials maintained, was unfair in that when one of the small clubs developed good players, they were taken by the major circuits at the end of the season.

Joe Tinker of the Columbia American association club who, with Al Tarnsey of the Three I league and Ed Hanton of the St. Joseph Western league club, makes up the minor league committee, appointed to confer with the major leagues upon the question of reconstruction, the minors, was emphatic in his declaration that the requests of the smaller clubs must be granted. "Heretofore the minor leagues have asked," he said "this time we will ask and if the request is turned down we will demand."

John J. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, discussed the situation with several of the delegates and it was said that he was not one of those who advocated radical measures in dealing with the majors. It was asserted, however, that whatever action was taken by the minors would be supported by all of them.

While minor league officials admitted that the major leagues have shown a conciliatory attitude toward the demands of the minors, no major league official would discuss the requests. The minor league committee is to present its case to joint committees of the National and American leagues and the national commission, probably on next Friday.

BASEBALL UNDERGOING A RECONSTRUCTION

Those Who Are Financially Interested in the League Teams Are Meeting in New York to Discuss Plans for the Season of 1919.

New York, Jan. 14.—Baseball club owners and league officials are gathering in this city for one of the most important series of conferences in the history of the professional game. The reconstruction period in baseball has arrived and for the remainder of the week all those financially connected with the sport will struggle with the problems which have arisen in the wake of the world war.

Magnates and players of high and low degree, who will ultimately be affected by the result of the coming deliberations, are arriving from all parts of the country and for the next few days the national game, in so far as it relates to leagues and professional participants, will be the subject of serious study and consultation. The week of conference will open to-morrow forenoon with a meeting of the New International league and close with a series of joint sessions between the National and American leagues which are expected to last until Saturday.

Taken in chronological order, the proceedings will move forward somewhat along the following lines: The New International league will meet Tuesday forenoon and after a special session will later attend the afternoon meeting of the National Association of Professional Leagues. At these conferences a number of questions, affecting both the minor leagues and their relations with the majors, will be discussed and a plan of action probably adopted. The outstanding desire of the minor leagues appears to be for the abolition of the draft but divergent opinions are held as to the effect of

A WOMAN'S BACK

The Advice of This Barre Woman is of Certain Value.

Many a woman's back has many aches and pains.

Oftentimes 'tis the kidneys' fault. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills are so effective.

Many Barre women know this. Read what one has to say about it:

Mrs. G. Reolini, 92 Brook St., Barre, says:

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and I have found them good. I had severe pains across my back, when I bent over or attempted to straighten up. I used Doan's and they helped me wonderfully."

such a move and it is likely that a compromise will be reached with the major leagues calling for alterations in the present draft regulations.

When the National and American leagues convene in joint session the subjects for consideration will include limitation of players' salaries, team rosters and purchase price of stars going from one major league club to another. The questions of defining a limited period for spring training, reconstruction of the national commission and new arrangements for the distribution of world series receipts will also be taken up. The 1913 schedules of the two leagues will be turned over to the proper committees for routing disposal, while the draft and optional agreements with the minor leagues will receive proper consideration.

The personnel of the national commission will undoubtedly be the subject of lengthy discussion. The National league is on record as favoring a one-man commission or a new and neutral chairman in case the three-man commission is continued. The American league, as a whole, appears to hold for a continuation of the present organization. Some of the magnates would like to fix a similar player limit for both leagues. Last season the National held to 18, while the American has adopted a 21 limit.

If the present opinions are enacted into regulations it is likely that the winning and losing club owners in the 1919 world series will be obliged to turn back 50 per cent of their winnings to their respective league treasuries in place of the present 25. The players will also have to accept a different system of apportionment but just what form this will take cannot be forecast.

The sale and purchase of players and numerous trades as well as other details and items of baseball business incidental to such gatherings are also predicted upon a scale fully in keeping with the magnitude of the gatherings.

NO SOUTHERN TRIP.

Will Be Taken By Columbia Baseball Team.

New York, Jan. 14.—Columbia university baseball team will not make a southern trip this year, it was announced to-day. Because of the high cost of railroad travel, the nine will not make many trips out of the city and the schedule will be considerably shorter than usual.

No Trouble to Remove Superfluous Hair

(Toilet Tip)

It is an easy matter to rid the skin of objectionable hair or fuzz, if you proceed as follows: Mix a paste with some water and a little powdered delatone, apply to hairy surface, and in two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs are gone. This method of banishing hairy growth is painless and does not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain to get real delatone.—Adv.

CURRENT COMMENT

Vermont Wants Her Boys.

"Keep Vermont boys in Vermont" is a slogan which has been raised lately. Several newspapers in the Green mountain state are suggesting that efforts be made to urge the state's soldiers to return to the farms and villages which they lately left for patria. "All Vermont," says the Burlington Free Press, "is in need of an organized effort to induce our young men and our Vermont girls to remain in the old state." "We heartily endorse the suggestion of the Barre Times," says the Brattleboro Reformer, "that an organized effort be made to induce the boys who are returning from France to come back to Vermont." This admirable propaganda might well, it would seem, be made to include all New England. It aims, certainly, to correct one of the defects of Lowell as a community in the past—its failure to recognize that loss of young and ambitious people is a serious matter to a city as loss of business would be. The migration of young men from this place first began to assume the dimensions of a calamity during the gold fever of 1849, when probably 1500 of the city's best youths went to California. The depressed times of the Civil war meant many more away. Since then the departures of the well trained and competent for the larger cities and the newer sections of the United States have persistently been more numerous than the incomings of young people of similar qualifications. The city has been in the position of spending money upon good schools which have prepared boys and girls to outgrow Lowell. How in the immediate future to increase business and professional opportunities so that more Lowell youths will want to stay and have their careers here is one phase of the problem which the Vermont press is discussing.—Lowell, Mass., Courier Journal.

The Ideal and the Practical.

The current of public opinion both in Europe and America has been running resolutely stronger in favor of a league of nations during the past fortnight. This is a simple question of observation and measurement, and as to the fact which is stated there can be little dispute. Conservatives and ultra-nationalists may not like the drift of things if the idea of a league of nations is gaining strength, but even they must recognize the influence upon the peace-making of the course of events.

The obstacles to a league of nations are formidable, but even more formidable—staggering is the better word—must be the effort to make a real peace without such a league. Ordinary diplomacy on the old lines is helpless in settling the affairs of such a Europe as exists to-day. A peace treaty would be written in water, so fluid is the continental situation. If Clemenceau's formula of addition, division, and the balance of power should be followed.

With eastern and central Europe in their present disorganized and terroristic condition, the western powers must hold together in order that civilization may have something solid to tie to. Britain, France and Italy will continue to need America's moral and national support. But America will not join a limited combination of power based on the blasted principles of a dead age; on that point at least the president's Manchester speech found an affirmative echo throughout the country.

Without America, Britain and France especially would find the burden of controlling Europe and keeping the peace too heavy. They would be unable even to maintain their own armies sufficiently numerous and strong for the continental task confronting them, for there are already ominous signs that the rank and file of the British and French armies will resent what they may consider excessive delay in demobilization. The semimilitary spirit shown at Folkestone and even in London the other day was a warning. Even in our own army now in France the desire to come home and quit soldiering is universal, according to testimony that comes in the home letters of almost every man in the expeditionary forces.

A league of nations fulfilling in some degree the ideals of the democracy of the countries that have overthrown the central powers will alone give to the allied governments the moral power of appeal sufficient to carry through their peace program without imperiling it to the point of collapse. The successful establishment of the new independent states and their safeguarding in their formative period, the collection of damages from Germany, economic reconstruction, the checking of extreme political and economic tendencies in society in the shape of a flaming revolution spreading far and wide, the early reduction of national armaments and expenditure on war preparations—what could give reality to all these points in the allied peace program save the moral bulwark in the minds of civilized humanity which the proposed league of nations alone would set up?

It is the growing consciousness everywhere of the vital need of new and far-reaching measures to furnish a solution to a staggering problem that has of late brought increased strength to the proposal for a league of nations. The very immensity of the scope and complexity of the peace settlement make the old formulas an anachronism in the 20th century and persuade men that what has hitherto been dismissed as ideal must now be translated into the practical. For there are crises in human history when the whole forward movement of mankind depends on turning a vision into a reality.—Springfield, Mass., Republican
