TALK OF THE TOWN

Free illustrated lecture at opera house Wednesday evening. You are invited. South Barre annual young and old folks' dance and supper Feb. 6. Landi-Forsell orchestra—adv.

Mrs. Nellie Blaney of North Main street left yesterday for Boston for a few days' visit with friends.

Charles Collins, violinist for the Reardon Knickerbocker orchestra, has fully recovered from a two weeks' illness of grip.

Miss Mildred McGue, bookkeeper of E. A. Drown's garage, was absent from her duties yesterday because of an attack of grip.

Vernon Rockwood of East Barre has returned to his home from Waterbury, where he has been employed for the past six months.

Dr. F. X. Z. Archambault has gone to Montreal and other Canadian cities. While in Montreal he will visit his son, Armond, who is attending St. Mary's college, for a few days.

Mrs. Josephine Stone of 47 Brookline street accompanied her two children, Della Young and Frederick Stone, yesterday to Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington, where they are to undergo medical treatment.

Sunny, sweet, sour, sad, and sundry spirits are to be summoned at the Sunshine social at the Hedding Methodist Episcopal church, Wednesday evening, Feb. 5. Come and we shall try to make all sunny and sweet.

If you like to waltz or two-step and never had the chance before, come to Howland hall to-night. You'll have the dance of your life. All the old-time steps with excellent music. Given by "Old Timers"—adv.

Special meeting of Ruth chapter, No. 33, Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Goldie E. Davis, deputy grand matron, will be present. The work will be given. Supper served at 6 o'clock. All members of the order in good standing are cordially invited.

E. J. Marchetti was operated on yesterday morning for hernia at his home in Waterville, Me., and is said to be resting quite comfortably. Mr. Marchetti is well known in this city, as he has been employed here for the past few years and intends to return as soon as he recovers from the operation sufficiently to do so.

The funeral of Arthur Keezer, who was one of the victims of asphyxiation Saturday morning in the two-room tenement occupied by Mrs. Mary Smith in the Tomasi building on Merchant street, took place yesterday afternoon from Badger's undertaking rooms, Rev. C. Petersen of Graniteville officiating. The body was then conveyed to the Wilson cemetery, where burial took place.

Alexander J. Young, president of the Young Brothers granite firm on Blackwell street, who resides at 35 Eastern avenue, will visit New York City and Harrisburg, Pa., during the next week or ten days. The purpose of his trip is to attend the monumental dealers' convention in Harrisburg, which takes place during the latter part of this week; also to negotiate business for the interest of his firm.

The ladies' auxiliary of the A. O. H. held their annual election of officers last evening. The officers elected are as follows: President, Mrs. Susan Humphrey; vice-president, Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers; financial secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown; recording secretary, Mrs. Agnes Murley; treasurer, Mrs. Nora Good; sentinel, Mrs. Ellen O'Keefe; mistress-at-arms, Mrs. Katherine Grogan; chief lady of standing committee, Mrs. Flora Murphy.

Plans have been drawn for a proposed enlargement of the Barre police station by utilizing some of the space in the basement of the city hall lying just east of the present main room. The plans also contemplate a considerable change in the equipment of the station. If the remodeling should be done, it is expected that the constable would occupy quarters in the new accommodations. Other building work which the city is contemplating is the erection of storage sheds for wood in winter and some of the city's equipment in summer at the rear of the fire station.

Yesterday, in Howland hall, the home economics department of the Barre Woman's club furnished a very pleasing afternoon for the club members and invited guests. Miss Bertha A. Holden, home economics specialist of the University of Vermont, gave a demonstration of several varieties of food, the qualities of which the ladies were privileged to sample, after the making had been completed. A food sale later in the afternoon brought many ready buyers about the table. Miss Holden has been before the club ladies on previous occasions and well sustained the record she had already established. Before closing, the chairman of the local department presented her a slight reminder of the appreciation of the committee. The ladies having the afternoon in charge may feel that their efforts were truly successful.

Members of the Knights of Columbus and their families numbering in all about 80 people, journeyed last evening to Graniteville in two large auto trucks which took the place of two barges as was first planned, where a social and dance passed the evening, in the Miles hall. The party left Barre about 7 o'clock from the K. of C. hall.

Among the number was Erison's three-piece orchestra, which furnished excellent music from 8 o'clock until shortly after midnight. A supper of appetizing nature was furnished by the ladies at 11 o'clock, after which the merry making continued. Piano and vocal solos were given after the feast by several of the younger people, after which the old-fashioned square dances brought the old timers on their toes in a jovial manner. At first some were rather disappointed to find that trucks instead of sleighs were to convey the party, but two very successful trips were made, all returning pleased with the ride. Several socials are to be given next month by the knights at the local club rooms.

Members of the Barre Police Department, including the president, Ralph Lawless, and the general of the 26th division, Sir Douglas Haig, General Foch, General Pershing and also the general of the 26th division. He ate his dinner with the boys of the 26th division, not because he was asked to by anyone, but because he wanted to on his own account. That sure is quite an honor for our division.

"At 4 p. m. we went to dinner and that consisted of 12 courses, including mashed potatoes, roast beef, dressing, brown gravy, squash, boiled onions, biscuits, bread and butter, raspberry pie, coffee, cigarettes, chocolates, nuts and dates. Now what do you think of that for a mess? I ate so much that I haven't eaten anything since."

"We had a big Christmas tree here in the church for the French people and children, and everyone got something. The Y. M. C. A. gave every one of us a can of Prince Albert, two packages cigarettes and a bar of chocolate."

"We have a new captain in our company. I was lucky enough to get an orderly's job. He certainly is a fine man and comes from Rochester, N. Y."

"Got up this morning and found the ground all covered with snow, the first I have seen this year. I don't think there is any water anywhere in Vermont. We have to drink wine and that is good for your system if you don't make a pig of yourself, but don't think that of me."

"I think I have written you before of this town. They manufacture scissors and I guess they go through about a dozen or more processes before finished. I have been in a number of houses and every man is doing something on them, filing, sharpening or moulding them. Will try and get a few pair to bring back."

TALK OF THE TOWN

Martin McMahon returned to Boston last night after spending a few days with his family on West street.

Seaman Peter Fraser of the U. S. navy arrived in this city this morning to spend a short furlough at his home on Ayers street.

Call and get prices on Andes ranges and heaters. Good lot of second-hand ranges and heaters, stovepipe and elbows. E. A. Prindle.

Paul Giacherio of the U. S. navy returned to his home on Smith street this morning after receiving his discharge from the service.

Pvt. Amos Matott of Branch street has returned to his home after being discharged from the U. S. army in which he has been serving for the past eight months. Pvt. Matott's brother, Amsey, also in the service, is slightly wounded and is in a hospital in France.

W. H. Farley, lecturer on business methods, will speak at the Barre opera house Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Board of Trade. The lecture will be illustrated with moving pictures and lantern slides. It is free and everyone is invited, and tickets will be given you on application to F. D. Ladd or H. A. Phelps.

Another Barre boy, Pvt. Arthur Deans, who enlisted in the Canadian field artillery in May, 1917, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon to spend a 14-day furlough at his home, 43 Brookline street, before returning to Montreal for his discharge papers. As a reminder of the world fight for freedom and peace he carries two shrapnel scars, on his right leg and shoulder. From the time of his enlistment in the Canadian army until September of the same year he was stationed at a training camp in Montreal and then he was sent to Camp Whitley, Surrey, England, another British training station. From there he was sent to Vimy and active service, where he remained for four months. Amiens was the next battle front on which he saw active service. Here he was wounded by pieces of shrapnel dropped from a raiding enemy aeroplane and which disabled him for six weeks. He was sent to Bristol, England, to recuperate from his injuries and also transferred to a reserve fighting corps, for service in England only. Owing to his wounds, he was unable to obtain any trophies of war except a belt adorned with brass buttons of uniforms of many soldiers and of various countries, among which are a few of German design. Mr. Deans declares that two more Barre lads, James Robertson and James Webster, who enlisted in the Canadian army at the same time as he, will return to this city in the immediate future on a similar vacation.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S VISIT.

To 26th Division Dec. 25 Described by Ralph Lawless in Letter Home.

From Mandres Haute Marne, France where he was located at that time. Ralph Lawless wrote on Dec. 26 to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Lawless of Kirk street, describing President Wilson's visit to Chaumont and the dinner he took on Christmas day with the 26th division. He says:

"Seeing that Christmas is over, will try and write a few lines to you, letting you know what kind of a time I had. We had no revelry yesterday, so I didn't get up till nearly 8 a. m., went to mess, which was very light, as we wanted to make us hungry so we would eat a lot for dinner. Two of the companies of our battalion, including about 70 men from ours, went to Chaumont to meet President Wilson. From 11 a. m. to nearly 3 p. m. we had to stand around and wait for him here in this town, as he was to pass through. He came by about 3 p. m. With him were Mrs. Wilson, the president of France, Sir Douglas Haig, General Foch, General Pershing and also the general of the 26th division. He ate his dinner with the boys of the 26th division, not because he was asked to by anyone, but because he wanted to on his own account. That sure is quite an honor for our division."

AT BALBOA, PANAMA.

Seaman Claude Partridge Enjoying Trip to Canal Zone on Destroyer Yorktown.

Claude H. Partridge, a seaman on the destroyer Yorktown, now at Balboa, Panama, has written the following letter to his sister, Miss Louise Partridge of the Johnson Normal school, which was forwarded to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Partridge of Wellington street. The letter was dated Jan. 13, 1919.

"Well, I started from New York the 2d of January. That was the last we saw of civilization until last Sunday, Jan. 12. It sure does seem good to think of going back to the United States once more. But we may not get to 'Frisco' as soon as we thought, for we may go south, say to Chile, Equam and other portions of South America. We may not see California until June."

"Well, Louise, as I have said, we left Jan. 2 for Cuba. We were there one day at Guantanamo, a naval base, to coal ship, then we started for Panama. We got to Colon, the eastern side, Sunday, Jan. 12. We started about 8:30 in the morning. Colon is a very pretty city; the streets are lined with palm trees. You have seen pictures of such."

"Now for the canal. That was a big job to start with. The first locks are the Gatun locks. Then we went through a big lake, the biggest lake ever made by man. That was full of small islands, very pretty indeed, covered with a very dense jungled mass of vines and flat leaves, mostly palm trees. The smaller brush are full of purple, blue, red and yellow flowers. The canal is lined on the sides part of the way with big palms. There are very many big and beautiful mansions along the canal. They are made of white cement. There are many soldiers' barracks along too.

"You would be some surprised to see the dirt which they took out in some places, the great Culabra cut, of which you have heard so much. You know that was where that big slide was. Well, here we are at the Pedro Miguel locks. They are just like the others. We go on a bit further and we go through the Miraflores. These are the last of the locks. Now we are in the level of the great Pacific ocean."

"Shortly after 5 o'clock we pulled into Balboa, where we now are. This is just a small place built here since the canal was, mostly a naval base. Some think that the place is very pretty, but I don't. They think the girls are pretty, but not for me. They are too dark in the face. The people here are mostly midnights, or specks, a sort of half-negro and Spanish. No Indians here. "How I wish you and all could be here to help eat fruit. We get bananas for 15c per, oranges for 15c per, pineapples for 15c per, some 20c. We eat a lot of coconuts. We can get ice cream at the 'Y' and the Red Cross."

"Well, we are having a big fat time here, only it is hot. We may be here for four weeks or so, so you see I will write you again, telling you more of my journey."

What He Really Needed.

"I'm troubled a good deal with head aches in the morning," said a patient to his oculist. "Don't you think I need stronger glasses?"

The oculist looked at the man closely. "No," he said, "I don't think you need stronger glasses so much as you need fewer glasses."—Ladies' Home Journal.
