Marchese of Seminary street returned last night from Hartford, Conn., after an absence of about one year, during which time he had been employed in the manufacture of war munitions. Sergt. Norman Gordon, a one-time member of the 1st Vermont Infantry, later to be named the 57th Pioneers, returned to his home in this city last evening after having been absent a considerable period. Sergeant Gordon went overseas early last fall and immediately was transferred to another organization that was slated for early return to the States. He arrived at New York Feb. 1 and was sent to Camp Upton, from which place he received his discharge. He is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gordon and is one of four from the same family to be in the service overseas. The educational department of the Barre Woman's club held an enjoyable social gathering yesterday afternoon in Howland hall. The affair partook of the nature of a valentine party, and the following program was given: Trio, Mrs. Beardon, Messrs. Beardon and Collins; song, Miss Leone Reynolds; recitation, Miss Elizabeth Varnum; song, Miss Bombard; readings, Mrs. Stella C. Averill; song, Mrs. Bradley; piano duet, Misses Cutler and Papis; song, Miss Victoria Martin; piano solo, Mrs. Ballard. Each part was well received by an attentive audience. The home-made candles, daintily arranged on a table at one side of the hall, attracted ready buyers. A regular meeting of the I. O. O. L. M. U. was held in the Knights of Columbus hall last evening. The meeting consisted only a short time and was followed by a valentine party with which the Odd Ladies entertained their lady friends and there were quite a few present, the attendance being over 100, including the members of the lodge. The evening was spent in various ways, among the numbers being dancing, singing and numerous games. The music for the dancing was furnished by the Misses Besie Smith and Gertrude Thompson. A peanut hunt was one of the features of the evening. The prize for finding the most peanuts went to Mrs. Mary Gray, while the booby prize was captured by Mrs. Julia Roberts. Refreshments of cake and coffee were served during the evening by the amusement committee, who also had charge of the evening. The party broke up at a late hour with all singing "Auld Lang Syne." Everyone present thoroughly enjoyed themselves and it was one of the best times ever held in their hall. Card of Thanks. We desire to express our sincerest thanks to the friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our husband and father, also for the beautiful flowers. Mrs. William Carson and family.

Call and get prices on Andes ranges and heaters. Good line of second-hand ranges and heaters, stovepipe and elbows. E. A. Prindle. Plenty of dry, hard wood and all sizes of coal at Calder & Richardson's, Depot square. Phone 450. Buckwheat coal $8 per ton for immediate delivery.—adv. A camouflage or masquerade dance under the patronage of Ruth chapter, No. 33, O. E. S., was successfully carried out in Howland hall 1st evening. At one time during the dancing nearly 200 couples were in evidence, many of them in costume, both pretty and ludicrous. A musical program preceded the dancing numbers, being furnished by the Landi-Forcell musical organization, which also kept them stepping lively until 1 o'clock. The grand march started at 8:30 and was led by W. G. Reynolds with Mrs. D. G. Barclay. Dancing to suit all tastes occupied the remainder of the evening. The receipts are to go towards the home fund being raised for members of the Eastern Star in Vermont and a substantial beginning was made. The committee who worked to make the affair a success was as follows: Mrs. W. W. Russell, Mrs. H. G. Bennett, Mrs. George Gorman, Mrs. A. C. Tilden, C. F. Miller, Walter P. Scott, Homer Ladd and William Milne. Refreshments of ice cream and orange-ade were on sale. HOME-BUILDING CAMPAIGN Has Been Started in Indiana to Fight Radicalism and Unemployment. While in Washington, Congress is investigating bolshevism and the U. S. department of labor is issuing bulletins on strikes and labor surplus, Indiana is preparing to fight both radicalism and unemployment through a home-building and home-owning campaign. H. V. Haymaker, who, as a representative of the U. S. League of Building and Loan Associations, is co-operating with the information and education service of the department of labor in investigating and stimulating building and construction work brought to Washington the first word of the Hoosier strategy. On his return from Indianapolis, Mr. Haymaker said: "I shall not be surprised if Indiana makes a remarkable showing this year in a campaign against radicalism and unemployment through home-building and home-owning. In his address before the annual convention of the Indiana League of Savings and Loan Associations in Indianapolis, President W. B. Reed insisted that the cure for both these menaces was homes and more homes. Reed's appeal for a state-wide campaign for home-owning met an enthusiastic response and out of it will come, I believe, a state-wide home-building drive that will have the encouragement of the state and municipal officials. The effect of such a campaign is bound to be profoundly beneficial for the home-owning man in every community takes the responsibilities of citizenship seriously and is not prone to quickly take up untried social and political theories and experiments." While the figures are by no means complete, data obtained by the division of public works and construction development of the information and education service, clearly indicate a revival of home building in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Ohio. Activities in this field not yet are normal but from week to week an increase is shown, indicating a growing confidence on the part of private building interests. All authorities in the building industries agree there is a pressing demand for residential buildings. The department of labor reports show a steadily increasing labor surplus. With the department's figures may be considered Frank Morrison's statement. As secretary of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Morrison's estimate is significant. He says there are 500,000 men now out of employment in the United States. There is money, and America has come to be the wealthiest nation, by far, in the world. With these elements favorable to building and construction work, the results of the investigation of the division of public works and construction development as to why building is not being resumed more rapidly, is interesting. High prices for material and the reluctance of banks to make loans appear to be the two large foes in the industry. A concise statement of the situation as it appears to him is made for the information and education service by William M. Garland of Los Angeles, who now is in Washington. Mr. Garland is president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and since March, 1918, has been in Washington co-ordinating the work of his association with the efforts of various government departments. Mr. Garland says: "I am especially pleased that the secretary of labor is taking an active interest in stimulating co-operative endeavor on the part of laboring men, industrial associations and industrial professions to bring about a much needed resumption of building activities. "Many members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards specialize in building and selling houses and, by reason of an acute housing situation in many cities, were actively engaged in building operations until about a year ago, when the secretary of the treasury made a statement that all building, not necessary to war activities, should cease. "Since the armistice was signed, the housing demand has increased. There is a desire on the part of real estate men to resume operations but they find everywhere a lack of funds for building purposes. "In my opinion, the resumption of building is one of the most important things to be encouraged during the readjustment from a war to a peace basis. It will be the means of employing thousands of skilled artisans, take care of the demand for homes, and develop a spirit of real Americanism throughout the United States. "In addition to home building, there are many industries which can now meet their requirements only by increasing their buildings. A large amount of municipal and government building is needed and has long been delayed. "I also heartily favor a federal system of highways, extending from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. These should be under federal control to insure proper maintenance and speedily should be gotten under way. "Realtors meaning members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, are anxious to do their share toward a revival in building, believing that
