The illustrated lecture by Dr. Goodspeed at the Congregational church next Sunday evening on "Oliver Cromwell, and the Period of the Commonwealth," will conclude the present series. The years of the commonwealth under the great professor are of surpassing interest, and are considered by historians as constituting one of the most notable eras in English history, including as it does the careers of men like Hampden, Pym and Milton, as well as Cromwell. The time is a chapter in the history of human liberty and is closely connected with our own colonial history, our struggle for independence and the world events of the present hour. It was in Cromwell's time that England won recognition as a great world power and took her place as mistress of the sea. Preceding the lecture Miss Gale will give an organ recital from the works of English composers. The recital will commence at 6:30 p. m.

Almost a Riot

on Main street, Barre. The great throng of eager shoe buyers awaiting the opening of the big shoe sale of the Peoples Shoe store caused a riot of excitement early this morning. Hundreds of men and women, attracted by the wonderful shoe values offered, congregated in front of the store long before the advertised opening hour.

By 9 o'clock, the entire sidewalk was blocked by the great throng. When the doors finally opened, the rush into the store was so great that it became necessary to place a guard on the door to prevent people from being crushed to death. Old residents of Barre say they never saw a crowd like that turn out to a sale before and, further, they never saw such bargains to turn out for.—adv.

"DEESTRICK SKULE" IN SESSION.

Large Audience Enjoyed the Entertainment at Congregational Church.

"Skule in Deestrick No. 23" closed yesterday and last evening exercises appropriate to the last day were held at the Congregational vestry. Many visitors were present, who much enjoyed the hard work put in by the pupils to entertain them. The scholars were in gala attire and, putting their years behind them, made merry like the typical school of the olden time.

The schoolmaster, whip in hand, had difficulty in keeping in check the exuberant spirits of his youthful charges, but he soon had them well served up to his hearers a program of much merit. All the pupils loved him, even if he ruled with iron hand (or tried to) and as teacher, Herbert E. Pape was a great success.

In the reading class were such celebrities as Mrs. Harry Jackson, Mrs. Charles Spear, Mrs. Fred Rogers, Miss Belle Chandler, Mrs. Loren Bell and Arthur Macneil, whose rendering of "Independence Day" left much to be desired. Then there were tests in mental arithmetic and some blackboard work by the smallest boys in the school, Archie Taft and Willie McLeod, dressed in blouses and knickerbockers.

After this the exercises of the school began. Mrs. Fritz Jackson has fully given a welcome to the visitors, being visibly embarrassed at being thus thrust before such a crowd of people.

Mrs. N. B. Ballard gave a delightful rendering of a conglomeration of Mother Goose rhymes; Miss Alice Pape, "the littlest tot," gave an original article on "Singing"; and Mrs. Gladys Bradley and A. G. Bigelow rendered two appropriate duets. Mrs. G. A. Annas and Mrs. H. B. Tenney coyly sang two college songs, Miss Ethel Spear, resident in Paris, dramatically recited "Buried Must, No Ring To-night," with all appropriate gestures. Then Snowball, the "cullud gal," and her "brudder" appeared. Snowball, who by the way is one of Barre's most accomplished musicians, played a little piece for the visitors and then another. Because they are sensitive about their color, we omit names, but everybody there knew who they were.

Mrs. Fritz Jackson and Mrs. Annas' little duet was played with few mistakes and with a little practice there is a chance for them to play quite well before their school days are finished.

Willie and Archie had a recitation about a visit to grandma's and how lonesome they were there. Miss Edith Averill, in pinafore, gave a recitation and a number of the other young people of the district were present for the last day exercises.

"Carrot" Jackson, with Miss Gladys Gale at the piano, did some stunts with dumb bells, and beat out the time for the anvil chorus with a vigor that must have started the perspiration.

No last day would be complete without the attendance of the school superintendent and there he was, resident with bandanna handkerchief, Harry Jackson, who took occasion to speak a few words of encouragement to the pupils of the district. He was followed by the parson of the district, Mr. Goodspeed, who complimented teacher and pupils on their fine appearance and youthful looks.

As the culmination to the closing exercises, a spelling match took place, choosing sides. There were many bashful ones, who either feared the gaze of so many eyes, or the words that Master Pape would put forth, but at last the match was in full swing. With all the troubles that flesh has been heir to in Barre since last fall, it is no wonder that disease also made inroads into the ranks of spellers last night, and several succumbed to phthisis.

At recess time, refreshments of sandwiches, crackers and coffee were served and everyone, both pupils and audience, had a most enjoyable evening.
