

STOMACH TROUBLE AND DIZZY SPELLS HAVE DISAPPEARED

Maine Resident Regains Weight and Strength When He Uses Blood-Building Tonic.

Many who suffer from indigestion believe that they have some serious organic disorder. They become melancholy and depressed and worry aggravates their illness.

There is a curious double relation between the blood and the stomach and few people, in treating indigestion, realize the inter-dependence that exists. Rich, red blood is necessary to assist in the digestive processes. If the blood is deficient the digestion suffers. On the other hand the blood is the agent by which nourishment is carried to all parts of the body. If the blood fails to get enough food to distribute, the entire body, especially the nervous system, suffers. It is important in cases of indigestion to build up the blood. The experience of Mr. Joseph Willett of No. 68 Bangor street, Augusta, Me., should prove of great benefit to others.

"I became badly run down following a severe cold," says Mr. Willett. My stomach was badly affected and I suffered frequently from severe pains after eating. I had sour stomach at times and dizzy spells. I lost flesh and it seemed as though I didn't have any strength.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended to me and I began the treatment. In two days I felt greatly improved and continued taking the pills until I was restored to health. I'm no longer tired and do not become exhausted easily. My stomach doesn't trouble me and I eat with comfort and enjoyment without fear of after effects. I have regained my strength and the dizzy spells have disappeared. I certainly can recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic for the blood and nerves. They begin at once to build up the system weakened by excess or overwork. The rich, red blood soon begins to show in cheeks and lips, the step is quicker, the eyes brighter and the good effect is felt in every organ of the body.

Two useful books, "Diseases of the Nervous System" and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or you can order them direct by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50.—Adv.

"DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR

Stop dandruff and double beauty of your hair for few cents.

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of "Danderine" at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Your hair appears soft, glossy and twice as thick and abundant. Try it—Adv.

COLONIAL STYLE HOUSES IN BARRE

Some Splendid Specimens, Including One Erected 105 Years Ago

"DR. PADDOCK" HOUSE A GOOD EXAMPLE

Wheelock Residence and the Thwing Property Have Some Fine Points

There is no more interesting link between the early history of New England and the present time than the old colonial houses, which are often found in the most unexpected places and on some of the now seldom used byroads. It is not difficult to recognize a few of the characteristics, the beautiful doorways, the small-paned windows, the splendid cornices and the unique chimney arrangement—symbolic of the cheerful open fireplace.

"The paternal hearth, the rallying-place of the affections." In Barre City we have three splendid examples of this representative American architecture, each being considerably different from the other and all built of handmade brick. The oldest is the "Dr. Paddock" house, 188 South Main street, which was erected in 1814. This substantial building, standing four square to every wind that blows, is typical of the transitory period from the severely plain early colonial to the more elaborate later edifices. It would seem that granite had not come to be recognized at that early date as a building material—aside, possibly, from the foundation—as neither window sills nor lintels in this case are made of it. The generous chimneys rising through the hip roof are of the interior type. The central doorway is quite attractive, with its four graceful pilasters and fan-shaped top light.

The simple and dignified Wheelock residence, 145 North Main street, erected in 1823-25 illustrates the value of an honest craftsmanship—built to endure. It has four high chimneys, an arched entrance, a gable with drop blind, and a richly moulded cornice. The doorway excels in beauty and fine proportion. Its sidelights and elliptical top light are made up of gracefully shaped panes. The delicate mouldings are in perfect harmony with the four slender Ionic columns. The granite arch and monolithic pilasters hold a peculiar interest for this community, in showing the fine hand-tooled surfaces, possible long before the days of the bush hammer and pneumatic machinery. The wrought iron fence with granite newels is in keeping with the colonial spirit of the building.

With its imposing cornice and ornamental frieze, triangular shaped gable windows, admirably balanced end wings fronted by Grecian Doric porticoes, splendid central porch supported by four Ionic columns, the Joshua Thwing place at 431 North Main street, built in 1835, is an unique type of the colonial style. This had been a very pretentious residence in its day and would be yet for that matter. Both of these latter structures have granite sills and lintels.

Another very old colonial building is the "Denison Smith" or "Bacon" place in South Barre—a wooden dwelling on the opposite side of the road from the depot and a little nearer Barre. This is probably one of the richest in architectural ornament in all New England. The central entrance doorway, with its stately arch and splendid cornice, possesses a charm of its own. In the second story, and directly over the doorway, is a Palladian window with tracery sidelights, jambs with pilastered effect and finely moulded architraves. The four pilasters extending the height of the building and the wealth of detail in the cornice and triglyph frieze command both attention and admiration, and give the front an appearance of dignity and elegance. Unfortunately, the original chimney has been replaced by one of modern type.

Just think of the courage, sound judgment and keen foresight of those pioneers in building such substantial residences! At that time all traveling and transportation in this part of the country was done on horseback or by horse or ox-drawn vehicles. The railroad was in its infancy, Texas, California and much of the far west belonged to Mexico, Chicago was but a frontier outpost garrisoned by a mere handful. Great herds of buffalo and wild horses roamed the plains. The Indians were supreme throughout the west. And to think that, after all those years, these houses in our midst are still in such an excellent state of preservation and most of them occupied! Truly those pioneers builded better than they knew.

Whether built of stone, brick or wood, these eloquent witnesses of the foresight and good taste of a bygone generation—truly called the American Renaissance—will always present an attraction and fascination to those interested. Some fine examples are to be found in Newbury and many are situated along the Connecticut river, dividing Vermont from New Hampshire, for in those early days the river was much used as a mode of transportation when road making was in its youth.

It will be of interest to know that architects and builders from all over the country—especially from the west—make pilgrimages to study at first hand these New England masterpieces. They form an inspiration for a majority of the fine residences being built to-day. All of which goes to prove that, aside from the natural attractions of our beautiful state, there are many others reared by the hand of man. And whether traveling by foot or otherwise they are waiting for us.

I have avoided any account of the interiors, but, needless to say, that would make a splendid story by itself. Will not someone favor us with such a descriptive article? William Barclay.

SUES HIS SCHOOL MA'AM.

Mount Holly Youth Claims She Incapacitated Him for Study.

Rutland, May 2.—A suit in which the plaintiff is a boy of 13 years, Chester Sharron of Mount Holly, and the defendant is Mrs. Alice Lackey of Mount Holly, his school teacher, is on trial in Rutland county court, the jury having been drawn yesterday. The lad seeks $1,500 damages on the ground that the school ma'am assaulted him, chastizing him so severely in administering what she called necessary disciplinary measures that he was compelled to consult a physician.

The boy told the jury that the teacher beat him over the head and back with a ruler and that she choked him. Because of dizziness and other ill effects of the harsh treatment, he testified, he was unable to attend to his studies for some time after.

ELEVEN PLANES TO FLY IN CIRCUS IN RUTLAND

Eight Aces Among the 26 Officers to Give Big Air Celebration.

Rutland, May 2.—Captain C. T. Phillips of Georgia, of the air service, was in Rutland yesterday to make arrangements for the "flying circus," to be held here next Monday, to stimulate interest in the Victory Liberty loan. Rutland is the only place in Vermont where this air exhibition will be given, and it will be the most notable exhibit of its kind ever seen in this section of New England.

There will be 15 planes of different types brought here, and 11 will fly. They include Fokkers, Curtiss and English and Italian airplanes, called SE 5 and SVA. Five Curtiss machines will be passenger-carrying machines. They will fly over the city in formation, one of them taking pictures of the city. They will be attacked in mock battle by the German Fokker, and the English and Italian fighting or pursuit planes will come to the assistance of the American flyers.

There will be 60 men of the air service in the troop. They are selected men from the 139th and 148 squadrons that have served on the British front. There will be 26 officers, including eight aces. Of the aces, five are Americans. Major Gerald Y. C. Maxwell, British, has 31 victories to his credit, and Captain H. W. Wollette, also British, has 28 victories, 13 of them being gained in one day. The squadron, coming here by special

Tired, Nervous Women What You Need is Vinol

The reason we recommend Vinol so strongly for such conditions is because it is a non-secret remedy which contains Beef and Cod Liver Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates and Glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a run-down system and replace weakness with strength.

Glasgow Jct., Ky. "I was suffering from a nervous breakdown—loss of flesh and poor appetite so I could hardly drag around and do the work for my family. My doctor prescribed Vinol: It not only made me well and strong but I have gained in weight."—Mrs. S. M. Gray.

Milwaukee, Wis. "I was weak, nervous, all run down, no appetite and had taken different medicines without benefit. A friend advised me to try Vinol. It gave me a wonderful appetite, I sleep well, have gained in weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. E. Strey.

For all run-down, nervous, anemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol.
