Mr. and Mrs. Amos E. Nichols observed their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Felchville May 8. Among the guests was Daniel O. Mahoney of Windsor, who was one of the two survivors of the serenading band on the night of the wedding. Mr. Nichols was born in Weston, June 11, 1842, and Mrs. Nichols (Mary Jane Putnam) was born in Springfield Oct. 9, 1848. Both are very youthful for their age and Mr. Nichols danced a double shuffle just to show the guests how it should be done. Of their four children, three are living, Mrs. Walter LeBaron of Waterbury, Mrs. Arthur G. Miles of Barre and Mrs. Milton J. Pierson of Felchville.

Kline, 21, who was found guilty in Rutland city court of stealing shirts from the factory of Tauber, Lipton & Co. in that city, will go back to the house of correction to serve a year, which is the unexpired term of an old sentence on which he was out on probation. Kline admitted taking several shirts for his own use and seven were found in his room when it was searched. Kline had been serving a sentence for entering a house in Rutland in 1917 and stealing mileages and watches, and his last offense constituted a breach of probation. Since his release he had been working for the Tauber, Lipton company.

An auto collision in South Charlestown, N. H., a few days ago involved Edward Hart of Morrisville, in whose Saxon car were riding his wife and Miss Beatrice Shoana of Morrisville and his sister, Mrs. Charles L. Fisk and children of Springfield, and the car of Miss M. W. Sullivan of Chester, which contained Miss Sullivan, her sister, and the latter's son, besides the chauffeur, Fletcher Snow. To avoid running into a motorcycle or each other, each car turned from the highway into a field and collided with the other there. The Saxon was completely wrecked. Mr. Hart had recently driven it from Ohio without accident. The Sullivan car was a heavy one and was undamaged, but the chauffeur, who had been an ambulance driver in Italy during the whole war, was much chagrined to have his worst mishap occur on a quiet road in Vermont. Mrs. Fisk's lips were cut so that the jaw bone was exposed and she will be permanently scarred. Mr. Hart was badly cut on one side of his neck, barely escaping the jugular vein.

Henry Fox of Plymouth, who had lived more or less the life of a hermit, died recently at the Brattleboro retreat, where he had been for a month. Mr. Fox's life had been a very interesting one. About 40 years ago he came to Ludlow and for a time had an assayer's office there, but when the Rooks Mining company was formed at Plymouth he went to the mines as an assayer and remained there until about a month before his death. Mr. Fox in his younger days was a very prominent Mason and Odd Fellow. He was a member of Black River lodge and Okemo chapter of Ludlow, Killington commandery at Rutland and of the Vermont consistory, 32d degree Masons, at Burlington. For a number of years he belonged to Aleppo temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, in Boston. He was a very well educated man and could speak at least three languages.
