

The Latest in Furniture

Light-colored walls, dainty drapery and ivory furniture are the predominant features of the modern sleeping-chamber.

The suite shown in our window carries out this idea perfectly. It is made of the choicest solid maple, treated to represent exactly old ivory.

The style is distinctly straight-line with pleasing proportions, the plainness being relieved by grooved ornamentations, which set off in a striking way the antique effect of the old ivory finish.

The cane insets give decided character to the suite. This furniture never needs polishing. It has a hard, elastic finish, readily cleansed with a soft, moist cloth.

The suite comprises the following pieces:
A FULL-SIZE BED, DRESSER, CHIFFONETTE, VANITY DRESSER, AND BENCH-ROCKER AND SOMNOE.

JAY READ PEMBER.

Well-Known Resident of Woodstock Died Saturday.

Woodstock, July 28.—Jay Read Pember, 78, for 31 years clerk of Windsor county court, died at his home here Saturday. He had done little active work for two years, retiring in 1916, after having two slight strokes. Two months ago he fell and broke his hip and had since been confined to the bed.

Mr. Pember was born in Randolph and graduated from Dartmouth college in 1862. In 1866 he married Aida Goodwin of Milwaukee, who, with two children, Mrs. Frederick A. Wilson and Karl A., now county clerk, survive him.

Mr. Pember began legislative and judicial reporting in 1861 and his report of the speech of Solomon Foote before the assembly on his re-election to the United States Senate, is said to have been the first instance in Vermont of a verbatim report of an address published in the next morning's daily paper.

He opened an office in Boston in 1862 and at that time was one of two stenographic reporters in the city. He was reporter for the New Hampshire House of Representatives in 1864, was one of five official stenographers at the Republican convention which nominated Grant in 1868 and covered part of President Johnson's New England tour for the Boston Post.

He was court reporter in several Vermont and New Hampshire counties before coming to Woodstock in 1878 and continued in the same work here until his appointment as clerk. He was an amateur astronomer and an excellent musician, serving as organist in the Universalist church here for 25 years. The funeral will be held at the church at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

He began his duties in the office this morning and it is expected that he will remain in Boston several weeks, after which he will be sent into the western territory, perhaps Texas, in which state he may have his headquarters. Mr. Tracy is a graduate of Spaulding high school and has been located in Barre ever since leaving that school. The Martin bombing airplane carrying five men and commanded by Lieut. Col. R. F. Hartz, which left Washington, D. C., last Thursday on an 8,000-mile tour of the rim of the United States and which came to grief at Upper Jay, N. Y., late Saturday afternoon, passed directly over Barre early Saturday afternoon while en route from Augusta, Me., to Cleveland, Ohio, giving the people of Barre and vicinity an excellent chance to see a government plane in action on what is destined to become a record flight providing the trip can be resumed. The approach of the big machine was unheralded but when the whirring of the machine was heard at 1:45 people began to search the sky and were not long in locating the trans-continental and encircling flyer. The machine was several thousand feet in the air and came from a direction due east, passing from Maine over the White mountains and then over the Connecticut river into Green mountain territory. The bomber was seen over the village lying between the Connecticut river and Barre and it passed over the center of Barre so that if the machine had been on hostile intent bombs might have been dropped on Main street with ease. The machine, however, had other business on hand, which was to reach Cleveland before nightfall, and it made fast time, proceeding at a rate of 90 miles an hour, was soon lost to sight in the western sky, headed directly for Lake Champlain. It was shortly after crossing over the lake into the New York mountain region that the pilot lost his way in the fog and, the fuel becoming exhausted, the machine had to come down, which it did with such impact that it was put out of business for two weeks.

LEFT UNPAID BILLS.

Couple Departing from Brandon Are Said to Have a Stolen Auto, Too.

Brandon, July 28.—Registering under the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wilson of Westley, R. I., a couple has left the Brandon inn with 10 gallons of stolen gasoline, an unpaid board bill and a stolen automobile.

They drove a Marmon touring car painted yellow, with wire wheels, which was placed in the Brandon inn garage.

They remained at the inn for a couple of days and drove around the surrounding country, returning at night. Tuesday night Wilson was out late with his car and when he returned requested the garage manager, Sam Thompson, to leave the car outside for a while.

After waiting about an hour for him to return, Mr. Thompson locked the garage and retired. Later Wilson returned to the inn and got a bell boy to unlock the garage and he ran the car in. Wilson assisted the boy to lock the doors and in so doing managed to leave one of them unlocked. Some time later Mr. Thompson was awakened by a noise in the garage. He went to the door and turned on the electric lights and discovered Wilson at his car with a large gasoline can which is used in the garage for filling cars. When asked what he was doing Wilson replied that there was trouble with his engine and he was trying to fix it. The appearance indicated that he was stealing gasoline.

Wednesday afternoon Wilson and the woman took a French leave, going south and forgetting to pay their bill at the inn for 10 gallons of gasoline. When the Wilson did not return at night the manager of the inn became suspicious that there was something wrong about the couple and telegraphed an inquiry to Westley and found out from the chief of police that the car had been stolen and that when it was taken was painted a battleship grey and that the number plate had been changed from 292 R. I. to 132 R. I. and that a reward of $50 had been offered for the capture of the thief.

The car carried a well worn extra tire and a dent in the back of the car had been straightened out. The Wilsons carried a camping outfit.

Pelley Publishing company, $10,000 worth of stock, one-half the authorized capital stock of the company, was sold at sheriff's sale Saturday afternoon for $50. The purchaser was J. Rolfe Searies of the law firm of Searies and Graves. He was the only bidder. Searies and Graves represent Joseph Brunelle & Son, painters and decorators and the latter firm petitioned the sale to recover for work done.

The W. D. Pelley Publishing Co. was the publisher of The Daily Caledonian.
