Neglect of Apple Orchards in Vermont. A writer in the Barre Times is much concerned over the future of the apple orchards in Vermont unless they receive more careful attention.

He is no doubt warranted in the fears he has. A great many orchards that otherwise would be productive and sources of good income are unquestionably practically valueless to-day because they have been allowed to go to ruin for lack of any care whatever.

Some of these trees, albeit old and broken, can be saved for many years to come, or while young trees are coming to a bearing age. There are instances where progressive orchardists have gotten hold of rundown property and harvested considerable crops of fruit while the newly planted trees were gaining growth.

A conspicuous instance of this kind is seen on the property of R. R. McEae, Castleton Corners, in Rutland county. Some old and decrepit trees were properly pruned and have been productive of high class fruit. Meanwhile Mr. McEae has a magnificent young orchard of 12,000 to 15,000 apple trees that are about ready now to come into full fruitage.

Others, notably B. C. Buxton of Middletown Springs, with a young apple orchard of about 18,000 trees, not to mention several who have gone into orchard planting on a smaller scale, are showing in a material way their faith in the apple as one of the most promising crops of Vermont.

There is nothing anywhere in this country to compare in favor, looks of spryness with the Vermont apple grown under proper circumstances. They are far and away superior to the more or less pulpy and tasteless apples from Oregon, Washington and elsewhere in the extreme northwest, where irrigation is done of nature furnishes the moisture necessary. The climate, including soil, sun and atmosphere, of Vermont seems to produce fruit unrivaled in any section. Short-sighted, indeed, is the farmer that doesn't cultivate and take care of this, which might be one of his best sources of income.—Rutland News.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION

Friday and Saturday evenings great swarms of shad flies blew into White River Junction apparently from the water of the White and Connecticut rivers, which are very low at this time.

Pedestrians who crossed the White river bridge either of these evenings, were so covered with these white flies that they looked as though they had passed through a snow storm. When the lights, which had been strung on the Main street for the home-coming celebration, were turned on Saturday evening, each one was literally hidden by millions of shad flies which fell on those who were dancing in the street underneath, causing great discomfort and annoyance.

Long-time residents of the town say that never before within their memory has such a swarm of shad flies been seen in White River Junction, and can account for them in no way unless the low and stagnant condition of the water in the rivers, which has caused them to breed.

Why He Struck Out. In the good old days, months ago, a baseball player turned up at the game with a load on. When he went to bat, he said to the umpire with a sly smile, "I see three bats and three balls. What am I—hit—to do?"

"Hit the middle ball," said the umpire. But the booby batter struck out. "Hang it, Bill," said the captain, "why didn't you hit the middle ball, as the umpire told you?"

"I did," replied Bill with an injured air, "only I hit it with the—hit—outside bat."—Boston Transcript.

Pile Sufferers! Clever Ohio Chemist Says This Great Prescription Taken Internally Has Never Failed

Even chronic cases of 25 to 30 years' standing, with profuse bleeding, have been completely cured in from three to ten days.

No discovery of recent years in the field of medicine has caused a stir amongst the medical profession as the recent discovery that piles can be successfully treated and cured at home by a wonderful prescription known to druggists as Miro Pile Remedy.

It has been proved that so-called external remedies applied or inserted into the rectum cannot cure piles and at the best only give temporary relief. This is also true of surgical operations, which simply remove them after formation, but in no wise act on the source of the trouble.

This prescription, although taken internally, is not digested in the stomach, but is rapidly absorbed on unchanged in the intestines in a short time, reaching the exact place where by its soothing, healing action, it first relieves all inflammation and then by direct contact with all ulcers and piles, causes them to heal and disappear forever.

It's positively marvelous how speedily it relieves. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days at most, even in cases with profuse bleeding that have resisted all known treatments and operations, really wonderful results have been accomplished.

The author of this amazing discovery desires all sufferers to know that he does not want the cent of anyone's money unless Miro Pile Remedy decisively cures even in the worst cases, and he has instructed druggists to give the country to guarantee it in every case of hemorrhoids, bleeding or protruding piles.

IMPORTANT—What is known as itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word, although this condition may accompany a true case of piles. For this condition Miro Pile Ointment has been prepared, as in such cases it is not necessary to take the internal prescription. If your druggist cannot supply you, we will gladly send either of the above mail charges paid in receipt of price. Internal treatment $1.50, war tax 6c, Ointment 50c, war tax 2c. CEASE SPENDING FOR LUXURIES.

Invest the Money in Thrift Stamps and Other Government Securities.

With the prediction by high officials in Washington that before the high cost of living becomes lower in this country the people must cease spending their money for luxuries, Mrs. Francis L. Higginson of Boston, director of savings for the first federal reserve district, in a statement just made public, urges the people of New England to be more thrifty and invest their savings in safe securities such as thrift stamps, war savings stamps, treasury savings certificates and other government securities.

Mrs. Higginson says: "The investigation at Washington of the high cost of living has brought to light the fact that one of the reasons for the present high prices is because the people are spending money lavishly for luxuries. It has also been pointed out by prominent officials at Washington that no relief from high prices can be expected until the people refrain from demanding the highest quality of everything and paying any price to get it."

"If every person in New England would practice thrift for at least a year and invest their savings in safe securities such as are offered by the government, the federal land banks and savings banks, we should not hear so much about the high cost of living."

"I feel sure that if the people of New England could be brought to realize that a more conservative expenditure of their income will help to reduce the high cost of living, they will gladly refrain from the purchase of non-essentials."

"To-day this country is in need of capital. Europe is looking to America for money to help rebuild its countries. This money America needs should not be obtained through bank loans, but from the savings of the people. This is another great reason why the people of New England must not waste money."

"The way to send prices higher and higher is for everybody to cut down his production, his hours of work, the efficiency of his service, and at the same time to buy everything, or try to buy everything, in sight. There is no limit to the height to
