RANDOLPH

Mrs. L. W. Hall and daughter, Barbara, arrived here from Chicago Monday night for a stay of several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. S. Buck.

Miss Pauline Neill went Monday to Hanover, N. H., where she has a position as bookkeeper in Davison & Ward's dry goods store.

Dr. A. C. Bailey, who has been confined to the house for nearly two weeks, is now thought to be improving.

Miss Louise Hatch of Arlington, Mass., has been a recent guest at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hatch.

Miss Jennie Wadleigh is taking a vacation from her position as bookkeeper at the Thomas store, and during her absence her place is taken by Miss Mildred Hatch.

The corn canning factory opened last week Thursday, with Roy Demeritt of Waterbury in charge. Twenty-five hands are employed as huckers, four of the regular employes coming with Mr. Demeritt from Waterbury. The factory will be operated day and night through the season and the work will extend over about three weeks.

O. W. Mann, who was here the first of the week from Boston, has returned to resume his business. He conducts a confectionery store on City Hall square.

Misses Katherine and Hazel Freeman of Somerville, Mass., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Crandall the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Higgins, who have been with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hayward for the last two weeks, returned Saturday night to their home in Hastings-on-the-Hudson.

NOVEL MONEY GETTING. Is Being Tried Out by Some Service Men in England.

London, Sept. 8. (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Disabled British officers who have been discharged from the service but who are unable to live on their pensions are attracting attention by the novel methods they are using to earn a little extra money.

Two of them appeared in Bloomsbury recently. Each wore his service tunic with wound stripes. Between them they trundled a street piano and the man who turned the handle wore the ribbon of the military cross. On the back of the piano was a placard bearing these words: "1914—not too proud to fight." "1919—not too proud to ask gratuity." "I am not at the last myself," said one of the officers, "but I couldn't see my friend go into the street with this machine alone. He cannot get work and he cannot get his gratuity, and he cannot live on a pension of $100 a year. His leg was shattered and he wears a silver splint. He was in a hospital nine months. They give a pension of $100 a year, but he can't get medical treatment, and the money due him as gratuity is not paid him by the government. No doubt the government will eventually pay it, but meanwhile he has to live."

"We are going to take this machine back. We had no idea the experience would be so humiliating. All the money we have received has come from laborers and poor women. From the well to do we have not had a sixpence, yet a poor laundry woman gave us a shilling."

These young officers were not more than 21. Both had entered the army early in the war and had fought at Gallipoli. Both had been wounded at Passchendaele on Oct. 28, 1917, and both had been invalided out of the army.

The evening of the same day a party of street singers, two men and a woman, attracted a crowd in Piccadilly. Both of the men wore the silver badge of men who had been discharged from military service as physically unfit.

"LOST, 5,000 EPISCOPALIANS. Southern Ohio Experiment May Be Tried in Vermont.

Advertising as one solution of the rural church problem in the Episcopal diocese of Vermont is a probability as a result of an unusual experiment being carried out in southern Ohio by Miss Elizabeth Matthews of Glendale, that state. Miss Matthews is testing her theory by inserting advertisements in several Ohio newspapers for "5,000 lost Episcopalians."

That is the estimated number of communicants of the Episcopal church living in the diocese of southern Ohio, who have drifted away from the church in the past decade. The number of "lost" church members in the diocese of Vermont is notably as large. Most of them live in or near towns and villages where an Episcopal service is unknown. Until the organization a few months ago of the Church League for the Isolated, the Episcopal church like others made no efforts to keep in communication with these rural communicants.

Now the league has chapters in nearly all of the 87 dioceses of the Episcopal church and its work is expected to be helped greatly by the Episcopal nationwide campaign being waged to mobilize the resources and communicants of the church to meet the reconstruction problems which organized religion is facing.

How to reach these "lost" communicants of the diocese of southern Ohio was the problem Miss Matthews faced when the league was established in Ohio a few weeks ago. Other dioceses had obtained a line on a few "lost" communicants by depending upon rural clergymen and archdeacons. But Miss Matthews looked askance at such haphazard methods. "I am going to advertise for them—5,000 'lost Episcopalians,'" she announced.

Other Episcopal dioceses are watching Miss Matthews' experiment with an idea of following her example if the scheme proves a success.

Having found out who the "lost" Episcopalians are in the different dioceses, the Church League for the Isolated proposes to keep them interested in the church. Sunday school leaflets and magazines and prayer books will be sent to the children and church periodicals and the occasional ministrations of a priest provided for the adults.

"How can we serve you?" is the motto of the Church League for the Isolated, and it is the keynote of the league's advertisements. The fact that 50,000 other Episcopalians in Ohio stand ready to help their isolated fellow-churchmen is also emphasized.

A CRY FOR HELP. Burlington and Surrounding Towns in Need of Better Roads.

Vermont has been so busy helping to care for Macedonia and other charitable institutions in the old world that we have reached a point where we are in danger of seeing our own state become a highway missionary station. We are almost heathenish in our neglect of roads, particularly in the large centers of population.

This is as true of Burlington as of Vergennes and Bennington and other places on both sides of the mountain line. Indeed, if there is any community in Vermont with more disgraceful approaches to it from every direction than Burlington, we have yet to learn of that "undiscovered country."

The suggestion has been made that the road from Burlington to Shelburne be passed beyond the point where it can be dealt with by the state highway department. Only the state board of health can deal adequately with the whole situation and secure a remedy. It is even intimated that it may be necessary for the state board of health to call in surgeons to perform a trepanning operation on the road authorities of Burlington and adjoining towns of South Burlington and Shelburne in order to get under their skulls the ideas essential to the adoption of modern methods of road construction and maintenance. The same thing might be said relative to Colchester, Williston and that part of Essex near enough to Burlington to have become contaminated. Excellent roads are to be found in various directions, but the long stretches of abominably shell torn highways are so a part of navigation that one forgets utterly the good highways wholly obscured to the mentality of all tourists.

We are thus sowing tares instead of wheat for all future crops of summer visitors, to say nothing of the unborn generations of Vermonters yet to come into the world with an incipient curse upon their lips for the forebears who jolted to death on rough and ribbed stone corduroy roads that would make their skulls the log road feel smooth and velvet-like in comparison.

It is not yet too late for State Highway Commissioner Bates and State Engineer McIntosh to come to the rescue of the weakling centers of population in Vermont, and especially the greatest weakling apparently of all, the alleged Queen city. If it is necessary to call in the services of the state board of health, well and good. Do it. If in addition it is necessary to supplement the forces of sanitation and highways by calling out whatever militia can be found in the state, we would hold up both hands and yours also for that measure of desperate necessity.

If anybody under the sun thinks our picture of local road conditions leading in and out of Burlington—as overdrawn, he or she or they should drive from Burlington to Shelburne. If they want to enjoy the other kind of roads let them next take a run to Grand Isle county and fairly sail on land via roads smooth and well kept in every way, made almost entirely of gravel of the lake shore brand.

In paraphrase of the words of a Jewish lawyer, astounded at the size of fee his colleague in a great case exacted from a client, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," we would say, "Almost we are persuaded to move to Grand Isle county to remain a Christian," or for the mere sake of skipping the stone and adamant corduroy over which one must bump for miles to get in and out of Burlington, that tends to un-Christian thinking.

State Commissioner Bates, help, or a host of Vermonters perish from excessive road shock!—Burlington Free Press.

H. G. Rice of Illinois Returns to Native Town to Visit After 80 Years' Absence.

H. G. Rice, aged 86 years, of Havana, Ill., who reached Chicago on a trip from his native town of Stockbridge in 1839, is here for his first visit, past in 80 years. He is now a highly respected citizen of Havana and notwithstanding his long absence had the good fortune to find his cousin, Miss Juliana Sylvester, on arriving here. He is accompanied on the trip by Harry Howarth, of the same town.

Julius Mason has returned to the home of his grandfather, George E. Rome, after spending the summer with his mother in Springfield.

Rev. Oscar B. Wells of Craftsbury, who is attending a summer school at Boston university, was here Saturday and yesterday on his way to and from Rochester, where he officiated at a funeral in Rochester on Saturday.

Mrs. D. J. Flanders of Rochester is visiting at G. H. Emery's.

Mrs. Austin Emery of St. Albans was here Friday to visit Mrs. G. H. Emery, who is much improved from her recent illness.

The season at Barnard lake ended yesterday with the departure of the Claffin and Wright families. The families traveled together to Concord, N. H., where Mrs. Claffin will stay with her daughters for the present. The elder Wrights went to their home in Cohasset, Mass., and Dr. Wright and family to Malden, Mass.

Malcolm McDonald returned Saturday to his home in Malden, Mass., after spending the summer at Mrs. Marion Bowen's.

Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson and Burnham Anderson of Assinippi, Mass., have been visiting at Rev. W. C. Harvey's.

Two of the last Bethel soldiers to return from France, Sergeants Myron Rogers and Averil Rogers, now are here with friends.

MARSHFIELD

In an article in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, the writer tells of a wartime development by which crude petroleum and coal waste are combined to make a liquid fuel more efficient and more economical than either coal or oil used separately. This composite liquid fuel was the outcome of well-nigh endless experiments by which a paste was evolved possessing the power of making articles of greater weight or specific gravity float in an enveloping lighter body of oil—a gravity arresting agency which makes possible the use of the combined oil and coal dust as a fuel. The leader in the discovery was Lindon W. Bates, an engineer of world-wide repute, and a native of Marshfield, this state. Mr. Bates is still interested in his home town and has contributed to the care and improvement of the Dwinell cemetery. Orville Cole and Arthur Lamerbert are cousins of Mr. Bates.

Pile Sufferers! Clever Ohio Chemist Says This Great Prescription Taken Internally Has Never Failed

Even chronic cases of 20 to 30 years' standing, with profuse bleeding, have been completely cured from three to ten days.

No discovery of recent years in the field of medicine has caused such a stir amongst the medical profession as the recent discovery that piles can be successfully treated and cured at home by a wonderful prescription known to druggists as Miro Pile Remedy.

It has been proved that so-called external remedies applied or inserted into the rectum cannot cure piles and at the best only give temporary relief. This is also true of surgical operations, which simply remove them after formation, but in no wise act on the source of the trouble.

This prescription, although taken internally, is not digested in the stomach, but is rapidly passed on unchanged to the intestines in a short time, reaching the exact place where by its soothing, healing action, it first allays all inflammation and then by direct contact with all ulcers and piles, causes them to heal and disappear forever.

It's positively marvelous how speedily it acts. Blessed relief often comes in two or three days at most, even in cases with profuse bleeding that have resisted all known treatments and operation, really wonderful results have been accomplished.

The author of this amazing discovery desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Miro Pile Remedy decisively cures even in the worst cases, and he has instructed druggists all over the country to guarantee it in every case of blind, bleeding or protruding piles.

IMPORTANT—What is known as itching piles are not piles in the true sense of the word, although this condition may accompany a true case of piles. For this condition Miro Pile Ointment has been prepared, as in such cases, it is not necessary to take the internal prescription. If your druggist cannot supply you, we will gladly send either of the above mail charges paid in receipt of price, Internal Treatment $1.50, war tax 6c, Ointment 50c, war tax 2c extra. Guaranteed Remedies Co., Elvira, Ohio.—Adv.
