A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Received 44,000 Volts of Electricity and Still Lives.

Rutland, Sept. 11.—Lieut. Col. D. H. Maury, a consulting engineer of Washington, D. C., received an alternating current of 44,000 volts of electricity at the Cavendish plant of the Colonial Power & Light Co. on Tuesday and, miraculously enough, escaped death. He got his head too close to the potential transformer, forming an arc.

A large hole was burned in his head, the bow of the spectacles over his ears was melted, several holes in his legs, heels and feet were made by the current. He was instantaneously rendered unconscious.

Tyler W. Earle of the Northern Engineering company of this city, C. D. Spencer, chief load dispatcher of the Cavendish station, his assistant, R. P. McNitt, Operator H. H. Elliott and Major Worth, who were present, immediately rendered first aid and restored Colonel Maury to consciousness. The prompt work of these men undoubtedly saved the engineer's life. Dr. W. R. Kinsman of Cavendish was the first physician on the ground, later Dr. G. D. Buxton of Proctorsville arriving.

Mr. Earle immediately took Colonel Maury to Rockingham hospital at Bellows Falls. His condition is said to be remarkably good, and that he will undoubtedly recover. The doctors and electricians marvel that the man could have survived such a terrific current.

Colonel Maury during the war was instrumental in furnishing drinking water supplies to the various army camps in this country. He is an expert in hydraulics. He is in Rutland and this part of Vermont as an engineer to make inventories of various plants and equipment of the Colonial Power and Light Co., the Caledonia Power Co., and the Western Vermont Power & Light Co., which, together with the Caledonia Power Co., propose to consolidate for the larger development of hydro-electric power in the Rutland territory.

PRIZE PUMPKIN TO BE THERE.

Agricultural Features of Valley Fair Not to Be Neglected.

Lament over the passing of the old-fashioned agricultural fair with its prize pumpkins and other orthodox features is frequently heard nowadays, and it is a fact that the clamor for entertainment of an exciting nature has done much to change fair programs. This year in particular the tendency has seemed to be away from the things on which fairs once based their bids for popularity. Exhibits of prize horses and cattle have given place to more spectacular features.

With a view of offsetting this tendency the management of the Valley fair, which takes place at Brattleboro, Sept. 30, and Oct. 1, has made a special effort to maintain the standard of its regular exhibits. Recognizing the demand for entertainment, it has provided more of it than ever before—band concerts, vaudeville, airplane stunts and specialty races—but at the same time it promises plenty of the regulation features which have been missed at some of the earlier fairs this season. Prize pumpkins in abundance will be found at the Valley fair, together with cattle, sheep, swine, poultry and the many other things for which the show has so long been noted.

FLOWER GROWER DEAD.

A. H. Harvey, Brattleboro, Had 10,000 Aster Blossoms at One Time.

Brattleboro, Sept. 11.—Albert Harvey, 67, the well-known pany, aster and ginseng grower, died yesterday of Bright's disease. Mr. Harvey was engaged in newspaper work for the Brattleboro Phoenix and Boston Globe for many years and later conducted hotels and restaurants and continued newspaper work, until he returned with his family to this place in 1902, after which he devoted much time to the raising of pansy and aster plants. In 1911, his aster garden contained 10,000 blossoms at one time. In October of that year, he went to Kingston, R. I., and started an acre of ginseng on land owned by Dr. V. L. Leighton, professor of chemistry in the Rhode Island agricultural college. Mr. Harvey was very fond of children and soon after was declared he gave the use of seven building lots to boys for garden plots.

WILL LEAD PARADE IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

General Is Due to Arrive in Washington at 4 P. M.

New York, Sept. 12.—General John J. Pershing ended his historic visit as the city's guest early to-day. With the members of his staff and his family, he departed at 8 a. m. on a special train from the Pennsylvania station for Washington, where next Wednesday, he will lead a parade of the first division. At Philadelphia, where a holiday in his honor was declared, it was arranged to have him leave the train and go to Independence hall to deliver a brief address. From Independence hall the program as arranged here yesterday by Mayor Thomas B. Smith of Philadelphia also called for a visit to the Union League club. The general's train was due to arrive in Washington about 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12.—General Pershing will arrive in Washington today—the anniversary of the beginning of the great St. Mihiel drive, America's first big effort in the war.

Vice President Marshall, acting for President Wilson, Secretary Baker, members of the general staff, the congressional committee of welcome and many government officials will greet the commander on his arrival at 4 o'clock. As the train pulls in, a battery of the first division will fire a salute of 17 guns. Indications were that a great crowd would greet the general both at the station and on his way to the hotel where he will make his headquarters for the next few weeks.

General Pershing, it was expected, will not report formally at the war department until to-morrow.

In addition to the usual display of dairy products, including standard butter and cheese, there will be a collection of all the different kinds of foreign cheese manufactured in the state, and several varieties of soft cheese from the Caledonia factories. The dairy exhibit will be under the direct management of F. H. Bickford of Bradford.

Under the direction of Messrs. Boutwell, Milne & Varnum of Montpelier, the Barre granite manufacturers are preparing a display of Vermont granite which has never been surpassed. A large collection of products of the woodworking industries will be shown. The maple sugar display will be better than ever, including sugars, syrup and maple candies in many forms. An exceptionally fine line of maple products will be on sale at the Vermont maple sugar booth. These will include the celebrated Maple Grove candies from St. Johnsbury, the Twinflower Maple products from South Newbury, Story's maple creams from East Fairfield and pure maple sugar from many parts of the state. The sugar sale will be under the supervision of Mrs. John B. Chase of Lyndon, whose large experience and unusual ability assure the success of the undertaking.

Every possible effort is being made to make the exhibit a dignified advertisement of Vermont and Vermont products.

MONTENEGRO PROTESTS TO PEACE CONGRESS

Because Her Representatives Were Not Allowed to Sign the Austrian Treaty After Montenegro Had Suffered Greatly in the War.

Paris, Sept. 10.—The royal government of Montenegro has sent a protest to the peace conference because her representatives were not permitted to sign the Austrian treaty.

"All the allied and associated powers signed the treaty with Austria, even those which did not spill a drop of blood," the protest says. "The peace conference refused the same right to Montenegro, which from the very beginning of the war voluntarily sided with the allies, losing 40 per cent of her soldiers, more than a third of her population and her very liberty, which none heretofore had violated. The royal government of Montenegro protests with the utmost energy against the attitude of the peace conference and asks the governments of the great powers to intervene to the end that such a flagrant violation of the honor and rights of Montenegro may be terminated."

The Montenegro government which makes the foregoing protest to the government which is headed by King Nicholas and which has its headquarters in a suburb of Paris. This protest is similar to one made on June 30 which complained against the refusal of the peace conference to permit the royal Montenegro government to sign the treaty with Germany. The national assembly of Montenegro voted last December to unite the country with Jugo-Slavia, but this action was never recognized by the royal government. Neither King Nicholas nor the Montenegro assembly had a representative at the peace conference, Jugo-Slavia, to which Montenegro was joined by vote of the national assembly, was one of the two nations which did not sign the treaty with Austria, the other being Rumania.

D. H. Eastman Celebrates 76th Birthday by Eastman-Currier Reunion.

On Thursday, Sept. 4, about 150 relatives and friends assembled at town hall to remind D. H. Eastman that he had reached another milestone on life's journey, and to cheer and comfort him by their presence and kindly congratulations. It was a perfect autumn day, bringing joy to host and guests alike. There were four generations of the Eastman family present, and the following towns represented, viz.: East Corinth, Bradford, Newbury, South Ryegate, St. Johnsbury, Cabot, Calais, Plainfield, Marshfield and Groton. The tables were very pretty with the profusion of cut flowers and miniature flags scattered promiscuously all around, and were loaded with tempting viands of which all partook with pleasure and satisfaction. The Stars and Stripes were given due prominence and a flag of every nation was displayed, excepting one.

One pretty feature of the dinner hour was the presentation to Mr. Eastman, by his granddaughter, of a birthday cake bearing 76 lighted tapers, also there were others worthy of mention showing that much time and labor had been expended by the donors.

After dinner there was a short program, consisting of prayer by Rev. J. A. McClelland, musical selection by Rev. and Mrs. Cutler and Miss Alice Mills, a brief address by our pastor, in which he expressed regrets that Mrs. Esther Dickerman was unable to be present on account of sickness, followed by a genealogical record of the Eastman family by Judge J. R. McLam, in which he spoke highly of Mr. Eastman's stable Christian character and informed the company that his first ancestors were direct descendants from Wales. Then, in his humorous and pleasing manner, Rev. J. A. McClelland made a few remarks suitable to the occasion, which were listened to with interest and pleasure and the lavish compliments from all were most worthily bestowed on the host and hostess. Liberality is one of the dominating features of Mr. Eastman's life, and in this, as in all he does, it was brought into evidence by the fact that he spared neither time, strength or money to make this occasion a success, and to bestow every pleasure and comfort possible to those present. We wish to make mention that he and his estimable wife entertained over Thursday night and Friday 18 and 20 guests. For the able assistance rendered by T. S. Eastman and wife and to all who helped in any way, Mr. and Mrs. Eastman wish to express their thanks and appreciation. We wish to congratulate Mr. Eastman on having passed the allotted period of three score and ten years, and as each year brings him nearer the sunset of life it also brings him nearer that home and those friendships and joys which have been the ultimate object of his most ardent heart-longing through all his life.
