

GIVE A BABY SYRUP PEPSIN

Constipation, biliousness and like annoying ills will quickly disappear

A MOTHER is always anxious to give the safest and best medicine to a constipated baby, but is puzzled which to select. Let her decide by the ingredients on the package.

Every bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the formula printed plainly on the outside of the carton under the portrait of Dr. Caldwell, who wrote the prescription in 1892. You will find that it is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It will not gripe the baby, and it is free from narcotics. A bottle sufficient to last a family several months can be had at any drug store, and the cost is only about a cent a dose.

While no one, young or old, need take a drastic purgative like salts or calomel, be especially careful what you give a Half-Ounce Bottle Free. Few escape constipation, or even if you do not require a laxative at this moment let me send you a Half-Ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will know it handy when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 214 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Write yesterday.

BIGAMIST PUT ON PROBATION

Ordered to Pay $5 Weekly for Support of Child by Second Marriage

AND TO RETURN TO HIS FIRST WIFE

Latter Pleaded for Him But Second Wife Demanded He Be Jailed

Detroit, Mich., May 4.—William G. Orton, confessed bigamist, who testified he married Miss Hulda Nicholas here last year to give her child a name despite the fact he already had a wife and three sons in Brockton, Mass., was placed on probation for five years by Judge Thomas M. Cotter in recorder's court here yesterday, ordered to pay $5 weekly for the support of his daughter by his second wife, and to return to the first Mrs. Orton.

The first wife pleaded for him in court yesterday while the second Mrs. Orton, who had filed the bigamist charge, demanded he be sent to jail.

Judge Cotter said his leniency was prompted by consideration for the first Mrs. Orton and her children.

LOST ALL AMBITION

"I lost all ambition and was very weak and nervous," says Mrs. Ann Kierman of No. 8 Kepler street, Providence, R. I. "My trouble was nervous debility and, although I was not confined to bed I was ill for five or six weeks. I spent sleepless nights, had no appetite and was subject to chills, especially along my spine. One of the most annoying symptoms of my trouble was dizziness and during all these weeks I was 'dizzy headed.' "Many years ago Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had been used in my family with great benefit and as nothing else helped me I determined to give them a trial. A short time after I began taking them I felt better. My nerves became steady and I was able to sleep well. Now I feel like myself again. My appetite and digestion are good and I have not been troubled any more with the dizziness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a fine remedy and I have been glad to recommend them to my friends." Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Price 60 cents.—adv.

M'CORMICKS KEEP SILENT

On Reported Estrangement of Mathilde and Max Oser

LATTER COMPLAINS HE IS IGNORED

Cablegrams To His Fiancee Are Not Answered, He Declares

Chicago, May 4.—The engagement of Miss Mathilde McCormick, 17-year-old daughter of Harold F. McCormick, and granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, sr., to Max Oser, riding academy proprietor, to-day stands just where it did when it first became known of several months ago, according to comment obtained from the McCormick home here. Interest was renewed yesterday with the receipt of a Paris dispatch saying Oser was worried because cablegrams to his fiancee were unanswered.

All rumors and reports pertaining to the marital intentions of members of the McCormick family hereafter will be ignored, it is said at the family home.

"Her father has done all that he could," said Howard A. Coby, friend of the family in commenting on whether Miss Mathilde and Oser were estranged.

"Mr. McCormick announced his daughter's engagement, isn't that sufficient?"

MOUNTAIN CLIMBING IN APRIL.

Cambridge Men Encountered Much Snow During Trip in Vermont.

A new record in New England mountaineering has been established. Few among the most ardent mountain tramping, no matter how insistent the call of spring, would think of setting out for a week's camping tramp along the crest of the Green mountains in mid-April.

Two Cambridge men, however, undertook the trip, and, although snow conditions on the mountains prevented the carrying out of their original programme, they stayed out their six weeks, pushing ahead to the heights of the highest mountains in the range.

What they hoped to accomplish was a fast trip from Killington to Johnson, a point a whole day's march north of Mt. Mansfield. Evidently hoping that most of the snow would be gone they decided not to bother with snowshoes but they found that, up on the heights April snow is not the dry and powdery stuff of January. Leaving Rutland late in the afternoon they headed for the summit of Killington and the Green Mountain club's shelter, where they expected to camp that night. Once well up on the mountain snow three feet deep was encountered which slowed them down so that night overtook them short of the cabin. They bunked down among the balsams on the trail, and evidently slept well for a snowstorm that came on in the night failed to disturb them.

In spite of the continuing snowfall the travellers pushed ahead to the summit and took up the Long Trail along the crest northward toward Pico. Everywhere there was deep snow and all signs of the trail, so conspicuously clear in summer, had disappeared. Beyond Pico it was decided to abandon further effort to keep the trail, and clearing a route they dropped off into the valley, where, at nightfall, an abandoned schoolhouse gave them shelter. Next day they crossed the range to the western side, by one of the main passes, heading for Goshen Four-Corners, whence a cache of rations had been sent by parcel post. It had become clear that the ridge route over Camel, Breadloaf, and the Lincoln all sky-high country, would not be feasible, but they were not discouraged. Three or four days still remained for them, one of which they devoted to a rail journey northward to Burlington and thence to the north side of Camel's Hump in the Winooski valley, with the determination to tackle Mt. Mansfield as a final effort.

It was all but supper time when they took the trail up Bolton mountain beyond which Mansfield lies. After sloping knee deep through snow and water one of the M. C. camps was reached shortly after dark. Next morning they slipped, slid and ploughed down the north side of Bolton into Nebraska Notch, in some respects the worst day of all. But over down the cheerful hospitality of the Lake Mansfield Trout club awaited them, an experience that every long trailer looks forward to with enthusiasm. The tramping set out next morning for the top of Mansfield. This time fortune favored their perseverance, and they made the ascent easily on a crust that would hold. After spending the day and that night at the summit the descent was made to the Storey side where railroad connection was made for home.—Boston Transcript.

Hunting Without License.

Down in Kentucky they do things in their own way.

"Hello, Tom," said a man from the north, who had returned to his birthplace for a brief visit, "I heard that Bill killed a man. Is it true?"

"Sure," replied Tom. "He chased the fellow through the woods with a shot gun, finally got a good head on him and biffed him right through the lung."

"And killed him with a hammer?" queried the northerner with horror.

"You bet."

"Well, how is it that they didn't lynch Bill for cold-blooded murder?" asked the man from the north.

"Well, the fellow that Bill shot didn't have a friend on earth, so the game warden just fined him $2 for hunting without a license."—Boston Transcript.

Liquidating.

Gayback—He visits his safe deposit vault several times a day. Does he go there to gloat over his treasure?

Gayboy—No; to sample it.—New York Sun.

Officer—Drunk as a judge.

Judge—You mean "drunk as a lord."

Officer—Yes, my lord.—Baltimore Sun.

NORTHFIELD

Miss Gladys Gray of Quechee visited at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Eugene Carpenter, over Sunday.

Miss Lena Fiske, who has been confined to her home by illness for the past ten days, was able to resume her work in the Northfield News office on Monday.

Ransom Porter, the young son of Mrs. Cornelia Porter, who was run over by an auto a few days ago, is now out of danger and slowly improving. The youngster was struck by a car and hit in the bowels, receiving injuries internally, which at first were thought to be very serious.

Arlington Kerr of Schenectady, N. Y., is visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Kerr, in the Mayo East street block.

Mrs. Alex England, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is now able to sit up each day.

The Vermont conference of Methodist churches was held in White River Junction Sunday, at which time the appointments for the coming year were made. Rev. Francis T. Clark will return to Northfield as pastor of the local Methodist church and Northfield Falls. Mr. Clark's many friends and acquaintances in this vicinity will be glad to hear that he is to return to Northfield. Rev. George H. Redding will return to Montpelier. Mr. Redding is a former pastor of the local church and well known here, and the news that he is to return to Montpelier will be received with pleasure here in Northfield.

George DeGeorge has moved from the north end of A. A. Rabbidou's house on Main street to Mrs. Delia J. Gowdy's house on Elm street.

Sergeant Joseph Boardman and Private Joseph Provost are in Rutland attending the indoor rifle meet which is being held in the memorial armory in that city. They go as delegates from Co. F, 172d Infantry. The meet will be attended by delegates from every company in the state and there will be close competition, but it is hoped that Sergeant Boardman and Private Provost will succeed in winning some of the trophies.

Rev. C. C. Creagan, pastor of the Congregational church, delivered a very able address at the morning services Sunday. He took for his subject, "Grant" and the service was a special tribute to the Grand Army. A good number of the members of William H. Boynton post, G. A. R., and auxiliaries attended the service.

A special town school meeting will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, May 10, in village hall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hartwell and Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Dyke returned on Monday afternoon from West Burke, where they were called by the death of a relative.

Miss Margaret Lamperti of Randolph was in town over Sunday, the guest of Miss Amelia Broggi.

Oil Shale Tests.

Complete equipment for the analysis of oil shales and the testing of shale products recovered has been installed at the University of Indiana, Bloomington, in preparation for the co-operative work with the bureau of mines on the Indiana shales. Work recently has been conducted by the bureau of mines at Boulder, Col., and Salt Lake City to determine the effect of the size of shale retorted. The following facts definitely have been established: (1) Crushing causes a segregation of the oil-yielding materials of the shale; (2) Size has very little effect on oil production. These general results have been obtained from Utah and Colorado shales, but more tests are necessary before the results can be published. Experiments with the horizontal retort at Boulder definitely establish the fact that the quality of oil produced from the shale increases as the rate of heating decreases, but the quantity gradually decreases under the same conditions. The results obtained from these runs are being compiled for a report to be published by the state of Colorado. Work on the elementary analysis of standard shale practically is completed to make an absolutely clear separation of the mineral constituents out of the shale from the kerosene, but the ash in the kerosene has been reduced to less than 3 per cent. After work on the Colorado shale has been completed work will be begun on a sample of Scotch shale and afterwards on shale obtained from different parts of the United States.
