Animals That Aren't

When a miner refers to his "dog" he is talking of the metal appliance used to fasten down the tram-lines on which the coal tubs travel. "Cat" is the name he gives to the lump of clay which he uses to ram home an explosive charge for blasting.

Bad coal is known as "crows" by English miners, while Scottish miners call it "parrots." Where the coal has an iridescent glow, it is called "peacocks." Sometimes the miner alights "a mass of stone in a seam of coal. This "horse" must be blasted away, and should the operation fail the result is a "bull!"

Runaway tubs are stopped by an appliance called a "goose," while a "crab" is that part of the windlass which lowers the miners to his daily labor. Earth is known as "rod," and a part of the pump used to keep the mine free from water is termed a "fish head." In other occupations we come across animals that aren't animals. In Lancashire cotton factories there are "mules." On a steamer the winch is often referred to as the "donkey," while a battleship bow is known as her "ram."—Tit Bits.

WATERBURY

State Maccabee Rally Held Here Wednesday—230 Out-of-Town Guests.

Wednesday was a big day in Waterbury, as the state rally of the Maccabees was held here and there were 230 visitors from out of town. This number was courteously taken care of by the local Maccabees. A complimentary supper was tendered them in the Methodist Episcopal church by the resident members of Waterbury review. The dining room there, Community hall, in which the meetings were held, and several of the business places were decorated in red, white and black Maccabee colors, while their banners were also visible.

The reviews represented were two from Rutland and two from Burlington and one each from Barre, Montpelier, Northfield, St. Albans, Gilman and Littleton, N. H.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Henry Marshall, commander of the local review, and was responded to by Mrs. Ladue of Burlington. The opening was by Waterbury review. This review now numbers 90, 17 having been initiated that day. The afternoon was largely ritualistic work and that was true also of the first part of the evening. The five fancy drills which were public were by Marble City, No. 1, 12, Queen City, No. 7, Harmon, No. 1, Capital, No. 8, and Waterbury, No. 11. Music for the drills was furnished by Miss Irene Darling, violin, Robert Flannery, drums and Miss Eva Foster, piano. Although the drills were not even that prizes were not given, but money equally given, yet public opinion seemed to be that Harmon review of Barre rather took the lead and Waterbury came second.

Among prominent workers present were Deputies Supreme Commanders Mrs. Margaret Litchfield of Chicago, Mrs. Emma Sault of Port Huron, Mich., and Mrs. Eliza Watkins of Rutland. There were also present 40 Knights of the Maccabees, coming from Rutland, St. Albans and Burlington. The tent here was recently organized. Among those who spoke were commander M. C. Washburn and Record Keeper Kimball and Record Keeper Austey of St. Albans and District State Deputy Barber. The entire day was a delightful one and showed plainly the hold this organization is getting in the towns and cities where a start has been made.

Press notices of Sept. 28 give notice of quadruplets born in Braddock, Pa. Braddock is a long way back of Duxbury, which town on June 7, 1882, in the locality called Doweville had four infants born that day to James and Elizabeth (Shonio) Herriman. People came from long distance to see them. Two died when 25 days old. The others a boy and a girl, are still living, as far as here known.

Miss Margaret Turner of South Duxbury, who attends school at Montpelier seminary, was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Turner, the first of the week.

Friends of Rev. Fred Sellars, pastor of the church in Moretown and the one at South Duxbury, regret to hear that he has been obliged to relinquish his work for a time and has gone to Montreal for an operation.

Mrs. Philip Shonio is attending in Montpelier to-day the meeting of the executive committee of the Washington county farm bureau.

Mr. and Mrs. George Haskins of Lisbon, N. H., have returned home after being guests of his brother, J. D. Haskins.

Mrs. Frank Callahan and son, Timothy, have returned from Bakersfield, where with Mrs. Timothy Callahan of Hartford, Conn., she has been a guest of Mrs. William Start, sister of Mr. Callahan.

Mrs. Louis Wassalaer of Chicago, who is visiting relatives here, is better known as Dr. Caroline Hopkins.

Sidney Hills, herdman at the Vermont state hospital farm, who has been assisted by Clinton Griffith, has returned with the 14 head of cattle owned by the Vermont state hospital from a five-week show circuit at Morrisville, Middlebury, Rutland, White River Junction and Northfield. The herd sire, King Korndyke Ida Verman, which has won great honors in the show rings for the past three years, was not on this year's circuit, but 12 of the 14 head exhibited by the hospital were sired by him. During the five fairs they won about 30 blue ribbons and a number of special awards offered by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America and different fair associations. At the Vermont state fair, V. S. H. Sadie Vale Ida Verman, won senior and grand champion, while another daughter won junior champion. A grandson won junior champion and a two-year-old son of this famous sire owned by the Vermont state prison farm won senior and grand champion male.

Dean Smith has moved his family into the tenement of the Demeritt company, known as the Smalley house in Duxbury.

At the Congregational church Sunday, Rev. John C. Prince, minister, has for the subject of his sermon, "Fraternization," this being "Fellowship" Sunday. Talk to the children, "Stickers and Quitters." Vesper service at 3 p. m. The choir will be assisted by Mrs. Harrie H. Metcalf, soprano, and Charles S. Parker, baritone. The Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening will be led by Myron Graves.

At the Wesley Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. William R. Hessel, pastor, the subject of the morning will be "The Kingdom First." In the evening, theme, "Counting the Cost."

Several from each church will attend the state Sunday school convention in Montpelier the first of the week.
