Provided in Shipping Bill Now Before Congress

ELIMINATION OF FREIGHT BLOCKADES

Will Be Assured Says Commissioner Edward C. Plummer

Boston, Nov. 23.—The United States needs more of the Massachusetts spirit by which pioneers realized the importance of home shipping facilities. Commissioner Edward C. Plummer of the United States shipping board said today in an address in support of an American merchant marine before the Boston chamber of commerce. The fundamental thought in the shipping bill pending in Congress, he said, was to be found in the clause which would compel the coordination of rail and water transportation. "That provision," he added, "means the practical elimination of freight blockades, the regular travel of cargoes along their natural courses."

ARMY TEAM A MAGNET

For Thousands of Followers of Football in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 23.—Football fans were eager today to see the army team practicing on Franklin field preliminary to its contest with the navy Saturday. "Dope" on the team was on the air everywhere. Announcement that the West Pointers were arriving two days before the big gridiron classic caused interest in the game to grow more tense. The midshipmen will arrive tomorrow. Preparations for the accommodation of the upward of 50,000 visitors expected here was the cue for a large number of stage folk to give voice to exclamation of indignation when they were informed this morning that they would have to give up their hotel rooms for a day or two, as they had been reserved months ago for patrons of the game.

In vain they pleaded with managers and clerks, arguing that they would be guests for weeks, whereas the visitors would be here for perhaps only a day. Finally they realized that Army-Navy day is a gala affair, an institution with traditions that must be upheld at all costs, and they scurried off for quarters in private homes and boarding houses.

Don't Disregard Dealer's Advice

The majority of car owners think that dealers want them to overheat their engines, whereas the gratuitous advice given is often worth more than a lot of the service which the owner is willing to pay for.

One of the tips is about a slipping clutch. A slipping clutch is a constant waste of power and fuel and a strain upon the engine. Sometimes this trouble is quite noticeable, but often it is necessary to test the clutch to be certain that it is not slipping.

With the engine running, pull on the emergency brake, put the gears in low and then let in the clutch. If the engine should stall immediately, if the engine continues to turn over in spite of the fact that the car is braked and stationary then you know the clutch is slipping.

If at any time when using the car, the engine appears to overheat for some unaccountable reason, or if the engine lacks power and the gasoline mileage is lower than usual, it is well to make this clutch test.—Farm Life.

HOW MY DISTRICT SCHOOL COULD BE IMPROVED

Three Prize Winning Essays, First By Agnes M. Sargent of Rutland Is Here Printed, Others Later.

Last spring an essay contest was conducted under the auspices of the state department of education on the matter of improving rural schools. Through the kindness of a woman intensely interested in good schools for Vermont (who does not wish her name to be advertised) three prizes were offered for the best essays sent in on the subject: "How My District School Could Be Improved."

Over sixty-eight essays were sent in and submitted to a committee of judges consisting of Honorable Mason S. Stone, Montpelier; Miss Mary E. Moody, Morrisville, and Rev. Arthur H. Sargent, West Fairlee.

The three best essays were judged to be those written by Miss Agnes M. Sargent of Rutland, first prize; Miss Myrtle B. Seaver of Williamstown, second prize; Miss Mae E. S. Swett of East Hardwick, third prize.

These essays will be printed in The Times, one each day. The first prize winner by Agnes M. Sargent being as follows:

(First prize essay.) The school about which I shall endeavor to write is a one-room rural school located in the town of Rutland, three miles north of Rutland City.

The name of it is the Post school. It cannot be classified as a "standard school," on account of the size of the school room and the heating plant.

One time there was a jacket around the stove but not being properly constructed, the school room could not be suitably warmed and consequently the jacket had to be removed. The stove now in use is in very bad condition.

We have eight windows in our school room, properly arranged so as to give light over the left and back of the room.

The ventilation does not prove very satisfactory, as fresh air can only be admitted by raising the window and in cold weather is liable to strike directly on the backs of the pupils.

Better results could be obtained, in my estimation, by the use of window boards, or by an air passage at the top and another at the middle between the sash.

We have three slate blackboards in very good condition. Through the kindness of our superintendent we have a school library.

Our drinking utensils could be greatly improved, having only a tin pail; the children use individual drinking cups, but they cannot be sufficiently protected from dust and dirt and consequently in many instances are unsanitary.

Many improvements can be suggested which would greatly improve my school. The following are a few practical improvements which I have in mind and their estimated cost.

First of all the school room needs to be made considerably larger to accommodate the number of children which attend school.

As I suggested before window boards should be used which should not cost more than the sash.

A jacketed stove from $125 up. Chair desks or adjustable desks from $8.50 to $11.50 up.

A teacher's desk with plenty of drawer space and working locks, $24 up. Suitable chairs for adults, $3.50. Protected shelves for lunch boxes can be easily made at home. Bulletin board should be made to

A HEALTH TALK

BETTER CLOTHES mean better health. Not because they give the body more freedom; not because they are warmer or cooler; but just because they are better clothes.

Baggy knees or a misfit collar can be worse than germs. Down go your spirits if you are ashamed of your appearance. Down-at-the-heel describes a physiological as well as a superficial condition.

Have you not felt the bracing effect of good clothes? Hasn't your eye brightened, your step quickened as you first walked out in a suit of which you could feel proud?

The clothes in which we specialize—Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes—give the wearer a sense of pride and put pep in his step.

prived of the benefits that come from a well organized systematic effort for the improvement of the schools. We have already learned that the lack of funds is one of the chief drawbacks to the school in many localities. The teacher is confronted with the problem of how to raise funds with which to buy the equipment necessary to the success of the school. In case the school board hesitates or refuses to provide suitable equipment there are many other means which may be used. Ice cream socials and basket suppers are among the oldest and most widely used. Popularity contests are sometimes conducted, the usual plan being to offer a cake as a prize to the most popular lady present. Stereopticon entertainments, lectures and musical programs are excellent methods of raising money for school purposes.

The school bazaar is another method which has given good results in many cases. This method consists of having a sale of articles made by the pupils, such as aprons, handkerchiefs, candy, etc.

A vegetable day for the collection of products from the school garden. Entertainments appropriate to special days have been used successfully.

A school play, a home talent play, an old folks spelling match, athletic contests with other schools are methods used for raising money.

In attempting to raise money for the school I would suggest that the following objects be kept in mind:

Are You the Man Who "Never Reads Advertisements?"

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisements."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree. He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effects of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out entirely from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not read it or heard it we would never have known it. In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying, "I don't read all advertisements."
