

TAKE S.S.S. IN THE SPRING. Nature should be assisted in the spring to throw off the heaviness of the sluggish winter circulation of the blood.

I have used R. S. S. for a number of years, and consider it the best tonic and blood remedy that I ever used. In fact I would not attempt to enter upon spring or summer in this climate without it.

HENDRICKS.

The Monument to His Memory Unveiled at Indianapolis.

A Fitting Memorial for an Honored Statesman.

The Event One in Which Politics Took No Part—Thousands of Strangers in the City—The Day a "Secession"—An Impending Street Parade—Senator Turpie the Orator of the Day—A Description of the Beautiful Work of Art.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 8.—The capital city of the Hoosier state and the home of the president of the republic, did honor Tuesday to the memory of one of her favorite sons, whose notable career as a statesman was cut short just as his life's work had been rewarded with the second highest office in the gift of the American people.

Politics Not Considered. Conspicuous as Thomas A. Hendricks had been in his life time in the councils of one political party there was no politics in the event. The business houses and private residences of the warmest friends of President Harrison were decorated just as profusely and with as much taste as those of their political opponents.

No one party was represented in the tens of thousands of dollars that have poured in from every state and territory of the Union toward the erection of the monument which the magnificent work of art that adorns the state house grounds, and political differences were forgotten in the salve of apianse that greeted the venerable relic of the deceased vice president as with trembling hand she pulled the rope which raised the marble features of her illustrious consort. It was the tribute of a city and a state to the citizen, the American, the man, rather than to the politician or statesman.

It was a red-hot day. From the moment that "Old Sol" poked his head above the horizon it was apparent that he intended to outdo his record of the past six days. The heat poured down as though a million furnace doors had been thrown open in the heavens.

The cost of the entire work, pedestal, statue and ornamentation, is figured at $40,000, and it is said that no work equal to it has ever been completed for the same amount of money. The pedestal is of Italian coral granite from the Baveno quarries in Italy, and it, with the foundations, is being put in place under the personal supervision of Mr. C. B. Cannell, president of the New England monument company.

The pedestal stands on a base twenty-nine feet long and twenty-one feet wide, consisting of a series of steps leading up steps about twelve inches wide. In each side of the monument is a niche, the one in the front containing decorations, and those to the north and south containing figures of Justice and Liberty. Four fluted columns are at the corners, each surmounted by a globe. Over these is the dome stone, bearing the cap die on which stands the statue which crowns the work.

The front niche bears the name Hendricks in sunken letters. This is the only inscription on the monument. Beneath is a bronze wreath of laurel and oak leaves, which is about three feet in diameter. The casting of this wreath was done at the royal foundry at Rome, and the wreath in prize exhibition at Paris, where the sculptor who has the contract for the whole work bought it. Natural leaves were used for the models.

Mr. Hendricks' statue is of course the principal thing to be seen in the monument. It is of heroic size and will face to the southeast. It is fourteen feet six inches in height, and is cast—as is each of the two figures of Justice and Liberty—in a single piece without a seam. This is done by the new molding process, which is a lost art for 200 years, and is now only practiced at the royal foundry at Rome and one in Florence.

Mr. R. H. Parks, the sculptor, worked directly from the death mask and from careful measurements of the body of the illustrious statesman, and after months of work produced a clay model that weighed 14,000 pounds. This was put through the process alluded to, and the result is the statue, weighing a ton and a half.

A vessel has sailed from a Syrian port loaded with arms and ammunition for the insurgents in Crete. NEWS IN BRIEF. A Condensation of Interesting Items from Various Subjects. Cars killed Charles Hendrick at Woodville, Ind. Two men were killed by lightning in Columbus, O., Monday.

Along the Line of Parade. The sidewalks along the line of march were packed with people, who heartily cheered the visiting governors, the clubs from abroad and the other features of the parade that excited their enthusiasm.

At the Monument. It was 2 o'clock despite the fact that owing to the extreme heat, the route had been shortened, before the head of the procession had reached the state house grounds. Here almost as far as the eye could reach, the spectators were solidly massed. Fronting the monument a platform had been erected for the speakers and distinguished guests, while to the right was an amphitheater filled with 500 school children, the majority little girls in white. Company D, of the Indianapolis light infantry, was posted around the upper base of the monument while the Hendricks club formed a square around the lower base.

The appearance of the carriage with Mrs. Hendricks and the visiting governors was the signal for the firing of a salute of nine guns by the light artillery battery and the exercises were forthwith inaugurated with an overture by the band. Then the school children's chorus, led by Professor Henry M. Butler, sang "The Model Republic" with superb effect. Governor A. P. Hovey called the gathering to order in a very few words, extending a hearty welcome to the visitors from abroad, and paying a brief tribute to the memory of the man they had met to honor. He concluded by installing Hon. Frederick Rand, president of the monument association, as presiding officer. The latter in turn introduced Rev. Joseph S. Jenkes, of St. Paul's church, who led the gathering in prayer.

After a selection by the Hendricks club band, President Rand made a succinct historical statement narrating the circumstances under which the movement for the monument had originated; the amounts contributed by the several states and distinguished guests, the hymn "America" was then sung by the chorus and audience.

The Veil Falls. As the last notes died away Mrs. Hendricks rose and gently pulled the rope, causing the canvas to recede, and disclosing the life-sized statue that crowned the pedestal. Applause, loud and prolonged, greeted the unveiling of the monument, while to add to the din, a salute of nine guns, one for each letter of the name "Hendricks" was fired by the battery, and "Columbia" was rendered by the combined bands.

When silence once more had been restored, the dedicatory ode "Hendricks," written by James Whitcomb Riley, was impressively read by Professor Fisher, of Hanover college. Following this, "The New National Hymn," was rendered by the school chorus, and the battle hymn of the republic by the school children.

Senator Turpie, the orator of the day, upon being introduced, was received with long continued cheers. As the conclusion of his address the orator received another ovation as heretofore. "The True Patriot" was rendered by the male chorus, the audience and school children joined in the stirring strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," and with the pronouncing of the dedicatory address by Right Rev. Silas Clatsop, D. D., of Vincennes, the event of the day was brought to a fitting conclusion.

One Hundred and Fifty-Eighth Day. In the senate—The Idaho bill was taken up and the report on it was then laid aside for the agricultural appropriation bill and the conference on the District of Columbia bill. The latter was not completed at adjournment.

Tallahassee, Fla., July 2.—It has been learned that on Sunday night four negroes, armed with shot guns, surrounded the new mill of J. E. White, fire off the employees, set fire to the mill and stood guard around it until it was destroyed. The negroes then left, and have not been heard of.

Arrested and Put in Jail. MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 2.—The Advertising prints a special from Tallahassee, Fla., which states that William Rhodes, Lewis Perry, James Crosby and William Page, charged with burning White's cotton gin, have been arrested and put in jail.

Damage to Life and Property. DODGEVILLE, Ga., July 2.—This place and vicinity was visited by a very heavy storm of wind and rain, about 7 o'clock, p. m. Two houses belonging to J. J. and J. W. were demolished, and also the new wing of the Douglassville college, which had just been completed, was torn away. The new Methodist church was blown from its foundation. About two inches of rain fell, and while the falling interests will be benefited, it is feared that the damage to life and property has been considerable. The telegraph wires are all reported down except between Atlanta and this place.

Cowardly Murder of a Woman. OWENSBORO, Ky., July 3.—Redmond Smith and Jerry Stunt had a quarrel at 11 o'clock Saturday night, and Smith was put out of the house. He left swearing vengeance, and Sunday morning he called on Stunt, asking him to come out. Mrs. Lizzie Lacy, who was present, responded to the call, and when she reached the door Smith, who was hid behind a gate-post, fired at her. The ball passed through her body, inflicting a wound from which she died Sunday night. Smith made his escape.

At Christy, Ind., Charles Jones was shot by James Pearson over a game of cards, the bullet passing entirely through his body. An attempt to change seats in a row-boat on the lake at Chicago resulted in the drowning of Michael Sheehan and his wife, Nora.

Sheridan Stoner, in jail at Madison, Ind., for several months awaiting trial for the murder of William Bowles, was released Monday on a $5,000 bond. Rev. Father Mullinger, the faith-crisis, whose reputation extends through the United States, is lying at the point of death, and will not likely recover.

Charles Decker, of Morris, Ill., died without becoming sufficiently conscious to give any particulars of the attack upon himself and mother Saturday night. Every rolling-mill in the Mahoning valley was ordered to shut down Monday at midnight, the manufacturers having refused to sign the Amalgamated scale.

The disbarment proceedings against W. B. Wallis, the well known Indianapolis attorney, were begun in the circuit court of that city Monday before Special Judge W. P. Fishback. Joe Keith, city marshal of Childersburg, Ala., was shot and killed Sunday night by a colored man, whom he was attempting to arrest for burglary. The murderer escaped.

F. Callahan while working at a grindstone at Waldron & Martin's factory, at New Castle, Ind., Monday, became entangled in the machinery and had his left hand nearly torn off. Near Harrodsburg, Ky., Monday John Ruby shot and killed James Donovan. They had previously quarreled, and Ruby, who was drunk, fired upon him with a crowd on horseback, fired upon him.

Rev. E. D. Huntley, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Annapolis, Md., in his sermon Sunday, denounced St. John's college, of Annapolis, as an unfit place for Methodists to send their students. Sarah Miller, of Tiffin, O., a half-witted woman of bad reputation, was visited by a band of masked moralists, who stripped her, covered her person with tar and ordered her to leave the neighborhood.

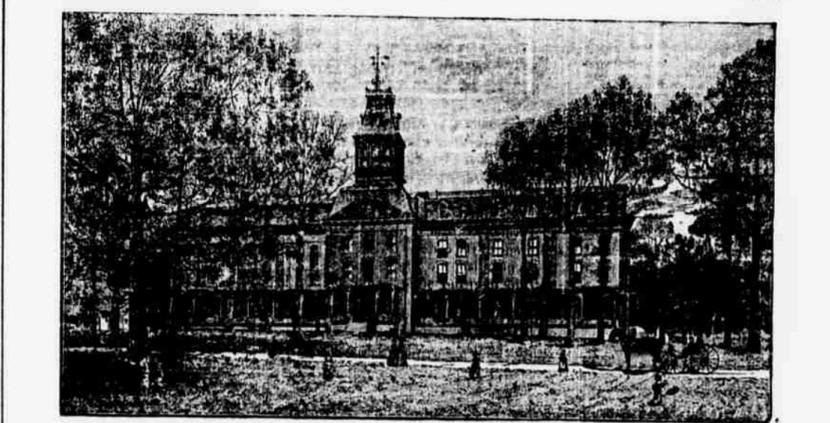

A fight with four burglars who were trying to break into the saloon of Joe Myers, at Delphi, O., one policeman was severely injured, and one of the burglars had a finger shot off. The robbers escaped.
