THE WILMINGTON MESSENGER, FRIDAY, MARCH 20, 1903.

ADDRESSES ON "THE SOUTH."

JEALOUSY PROMPTS A MURDER.

Delivered by George Cary Eggleston, W. H. Baldwin, Jr., and Walter H. Page.

New York, March 18 .- "The South" was the theme of three distinguished speakers at the annual banquet of the Unitarian Club this evening. George Cary Eggleston, author and journalist, spoke of "The South as it Was"; William H. Baldwin, Jr., railroad president and philanthropist, of "The South as it Is," and Walter H. Page, man of letters, of "The South as it is to Be." Mr. Baldwin who recently made a tour of the south to study the educational needs of that section of the country, spoke particularly of the jealousy. Meckle was arrested with his needs of moral and industrial education. The industrial education now going on in the south, he said. "is of im- fore he left Mrs. Rumberger's apartportance to the whole world. He had, ments hy Officer Henry Bell who arrivhe said, recently received a letter from ed almost immediately on the scene. a man very prominent in English politics asking if Booker T. Washington could be induced to go to South Africa and push the work there he is carrying on in this country. Mr. Baldwin also said that the German government had also sent a representative to the Tus- Rumberger was examined by Mayor kegee University in Alabama for the purpose of getting the students from there to go to Africa and teach the cotton industry. Mr. Baldwin declared that a prominent capitalist had recently told him that he was to give a large sum of money to start an industrial school in connection with his business in Alabama. "The north," continued Mr. Baldwin, "must help the south in working out this problem. We must help them to do the best for the negro man. It is one of the most ex-·traordinary things on record that four governors have just been elected in the south who went before the public on a platform of free education for the whites and black together. This, I say, is the beginning of a new era for the black men."

EGYPTIAN CLOVER.

Agricultural Department Deny That They Recommend it for Distribution.

Washington, March 18 .- The attention of the United States department of At any drug store, 50 cents, agriculture has been called to an advertisement inserted in a number of agricultural papers which states that the department recommends Egyptian clover for general distribution in this country. Officials of the department say this statement is not correct. Bulletin No. 23, Bureau of Plant Industry, shows that "the latitude in which Egyptian 1903, the Angel of Death entered the clover is grown is that of Central Florida and the extreme southern point of Texas, and it is probable that this clover will be of no value in this country, except in the extreme south. If it should succeed there, it will undoubtedly be of great value to grow in winter on the rice fields. Aside from this, its usefulness in this country is entirely problematical."

George Merkle Mortally Wounded John Genkinger in Mrs. Rumber-

ger's Apartments.

New Castle, Pa., March 18 .- John Genkinger, of Butler avenue, a wel known man of this city, died in a hospital here today from a mortal wound received a few minutes before at the hands of George Merkle, proprietor of a hotel at Darlington, Beaver county. The shooting occurred at the apartments of Mrs. Eva Rumberger, in the second story of the Genkinger block, and is supposed to have been the result of smoking revolver yet in his hands, be Genkinger was then lying on a settee and pointed out Merkle as the man who shot him. Merkle fired four shots. only one of which took effect. Immediately after the shooting Mrs.

Jackson and Coroner Porter and told the story of the shooting. She said Merkle was in her apartment when Genkinger appeared and asked her for a diamond pin he had lent her yesterday. She and Merkle were discussing their probable marriage and Mrs. Rumberger says Genkinger remarked to Merkle:

"George, if you don't marry Eva after all she has done for you you are a chump."

This seemed to anger Merkle who started toward Genkinger, drawing his revolver. Mrs. Rumberger says Ger. kinger then grasped an empty beer bottle and hurled it at Merkle, who was struck in the face. Merkle then began to fire and Genkinger grappled to save himself. The men fought for a time, until loss of blood made Gerkin-

> The cable news this morning proved just about as expected so far as Liverpool quotations were concerned and the local trade showed a disposition to await fresh flood news, or some indication as to the probably attitude of the market leaders before operating aggressively. The initial transactions therefore were largely of an evening up character, chiefly professional, commission houses reporting few orders on either side throughout the day.

> The better weather reported in the south and the continued absence of further damage estimates for tomorrow's estimated receipts at leading points, led to considerable realizing after the initial gains. Reports of small stocks at interior towns, the comparative steadiness of the various spot markets and full exports amounting to 24,-657 bales, against port receipts of 14,-026 bales were factors in the closing steadiness.

> The market showed little improvement in point of activity.

Kenansville, N. C., March 18 .- At 4:45 p. m. on Saturday, March 14th, home of Mr. R. W. Millard, of this place, and gently more his spirit to a brighter home above.

Mr. Millard was stricken with paralysis about two. years ago, and since that time has been in feeble health. He bore his suffering without a murmur, and was always bright, cheerful and full of hope. Long before the end came, he expressed himself as being ready to go. He devoted the greater part of his life to teaching school. Truly can it be said that he was one of the greatest educators of his age. Many of the great men of our state, proudly claim the honor of receiving their training from Mr. Millard. For many years he filled the office of county superintendent of public instruction, with honor and ability. He was one of the most influential and highly respected men of

His life was one of sacrifice for others. Often he refused to receive pay for teaching pupils in his school, when they were financially embarrassed, cerdeath.

To think right, to be right, and to do right, was his purpose, and this done he feared no consequences. As a man, his marked characteristic was his gentle, genuine kindness to all. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor Rev. W. N. Johnson, from his home, on Sunday evening at 3:30. He was buried at the family burial place near his house, amidst a host of sorrowing friends and relatives.

New York, March 18 .- The early cotton market was dull and prices showed little change. The disposition was to await fresh developments, especially in regard to the weather situation, which was considered of the utmost importance, as the bears have been contending for some time that wet weather alone was responsible for the moderate movement and that a few weeks would bring cotton out in immense quantities. While the reports this morning showed the best weather conditions for many weeks, there being no rain of importance over the entire south, the forecast was for more rain all over the gulf states and up to Arkansas and over the greater portion of the Atlantic states. With this situation, sellers were not disposed to take chances and left bulls in undisputed possession although there was not much eagerness to buy. Prices worked up a few points during the morning but business continues very dull. Port receipts 14,000 against 18,000 last year. The forecast was for rain in most sections and this steadied the market.
