reports, and publish records of depositors and of notes.

The corporation commission makes its finding as to the conditions of the Yadkin railway from Salisbury to Albemarle, owned and operated by the Southern. It finds the road dangerous with wrecks nearly every trip, and sometimes two trains on the ground at the same time, and that the management is to blame for those conditions, and should be required to employ the labor necessary to maintain the road. The commission under the present law has no power to make a mandatory order.

Its powers are to be increased by the next legislature.

Superintendent Mann of the penitentiary has returned from his home, Hyde county, and says reports are exaggerated as to deaths among horses there by forage poisoning, and also of crop damage. He says the disease among the horses is mainly in two townships, and that about a hundred horses have died, nearly all in one township. The disease which was fatal four years ago followed a wet summer, and was due to forage put up when decayed. The forage used this year was gathered last year under favorable conditions. He says the reports of deaths of other animals and poultry are fakes. Mann says that while crops in much of the county are almost destroyed, they are fair south of lake Mattainskeet, and that Hyde county will not be asked for outside aid.

BODY HORRIBLY MANGLED

Remains of Richard Thornburg, of Newton, Strawn for a Distance of Seven Miles Along Southern Railway Track.

Asheville, August 18.—An unknown man who was killed by a Southern train between Azalea and Swannanoa last night has been identified by a letter, as Richard Thornburg, of Newton.

The remains were brought to an undertaking establishment in two soap boxes and an inquest held. The remains will be shipped to Newton tomorrow.

The body was the worst mangled that a coroner's jury has ever viewed here. Portions of the body were strawn for a distance of seven miles. The body was literally whipped to fragments. It is believed that the man in some manner became fastened to the side of a freight car or passenger coach and beat to pieces by contact with the cross ties. Portions of the body were found only on the outside of the right hand rail going toward Salisbury.

Not a piece of clothing or particle of flesh was found between the rails. The arms and legs were not cut off by the car wheels, they were worn off by the cross ties. The head was mangled flat and only one eye was visible.—Special to Charlotte Observer.

WORKED HIS GAME HERE

Man by the Name of Lassiter Forging Checks and Drafts Galore.

In the state papers yesterday morning there were published dispatches from several towns east of Durham in which it was told that a slick forger had visited various places and worked off forged checks and drafts for small amounts, usually $5 or $10. The same man visited Durham and left his trail behind him.

A. D. Lassiter was the name under which he registers wherever he goes and he has cards with that name printed on them. While here he stopped at the Union hotel. His bill was $2.00 when he was ready to leave and not having ready cash he gave a draft on his house for the amount. While drawing the draft he said he would like to have a little cash and the young man in charge at that time accommodated him. The draft was sent in and came back no good.

This is practically the same trick that was worked at other places. He is not getting very rich over his stealings if all the amounts are like those reported, but he is paying his accounts as he goes and gets some change for the next trip.—Durham Herald.

THE RING "BUSTED"

Good Results From the Democratic Primary in Mecklenburg.

The primary election system, as operated in Mecklenburg county this year has proven wholly successful. The satisfactory results secured for it are the consequence of a better understanding of it, a fuller appreciation of the privileges it grants the people and of the possibility of the exercise through it of the influence by majorities. The people have apparently just opened their eyes to their power under the primary. Until recently when the Sanhedrim (by some of the irreverent called "The Trust")—the members of which thought of and managed politics when other people were at work or asleep—when the Sanhedrim sat in a solemn session in Charlotte, made up a ticket and handed it out to the township subalterns, there seemed to be a general sort of understanding that that settled everything and that, as the advertiser for help in the city paper says, "No Irish need apply."

But there has been an awakening and there has come a change. It has come to this year, that men who did not have the stamp of the Sanhedrim on them at all, have come out, of their own motion, for office, or been brought out by their friends, and, by George! several of them carried the primaries and were nominated by the county convention yesterday. It was a rude upsetting of the established order of things and the past governors of the politics of Mecklenburg must have had curious emotions when they felt the premonitory symptoms of the coming shock. It came all right, and the people, who did not seem to realize it before, are now alive to the fact that after all they have their freedom, and it is to be hoped that there is in this result promise for the future of more opportunity for the exercise of individual choice in voting for candidates for nomination. The net amount of it all is that the people can have their own way if they want it and have their legislators and officers whoever they please.—Charlotte Observer.

COTTON MEN PRESENTED

By Grand Jury of Mecklenburg County for Violating the "Futures" Law.

Bell and Fonville, of the Merchants and Farmers Cotton Exchange, and Sage and Company, two well known cotton concerns, having offices in this city, have been presented to the solicitor by the grand jury for alleged "unlawful dealing in cotton futures with different people."

It was reported in the city Friday evening that such action had been taken by the grand jury. When court convened yesterday morning there were a number of cotton men standing about the grand jury room, seeking to learn something about what was expected. The sheriff had been instructed to summons a number of citizens to testify before the grand jury and five of these were on hand, namely: Messrs. George A. Howell, M. Ozlesby, Cliff Bell, J. H. Emory, and J. H. Alexander. These gentlemen, in turn, were ushered into the room and questioned as to the facts in the case. After having heard their testimony, the grand jury voted to present these two cotton concerns for unlawfully dealing in cotton futures. The necessary papers were made out, signed by Mr. W. E. Shaw, foreman, and sent to the solicitor. At the next meeting of the grand jury the solicitor will send in a bill against Sage and Company and Bell and Fonville. If the grand jury returns the bill a true bill, the cases will be taken up in the courts.

Solicitor Heriot Clarkson was seen by an Observer reporter yesterday afternoon and asked about these presentments. "If I can secure the evidence, I will prosecute the cases to the limit of the law," he said. "We deal heavily with the poor darkey for shooting craps and gambling in a small way."

Those who speculate in cotton, handling their hundreds and thousands where the negro hazards his dollars and cents, will be dealt with in the same way. The law will be allowed to take its course, irrespective of classes or conditions.

Mr. C. Boyce Bell was called up over the phone last night and asked about this action on the part of the grand jury. He declared that he was conducting a legitimate business, one in fact that is necessary to the cotton interests of this section. He denied that the Merchants and Farmers' Cotton Exchange and Bureau of Information was anything other than a straightforward business enterprise, one chartered by the state, and operating under its prescribed privileges.

Whatever concerns the cotton interests of the city is of moment. Hence much interest is being manifested in these two presentments made by the grand jury yesterday.—Charlotte Observer.

HOMICIDE IN FRANKLIN

A White Man Shot Down by a Negro for Violent Action Toward Latter.

James Perry, colored, shot three times and killed Baldy Perry, white, at Raynor, a small postoffice seven miles out in the southeastern portion of the county late yesterday afternoon. The homicide occurred near Timberlake's store. The facts, as near as can be gathered, are these: The negro had in charge a dog which the white man wanted, but which the negro did not wish to give up without being sure as to the right party. Baldy Perry, it is said, while under the influence of liquor, went to the house of the negro in his absence, after the dog, and cursed around considerably in the presence of the negro's wife, afterwards going off toward Timberlake's store. About three hundred yards from the negro's house Baldy Perry was talking with parties about wanting to see James Perry, when James Perry was seen approaching, and Baldy turned around to go and meet him. When within a few feet of each other the negro began firing and put three bullets in the white man, killing him instantly.

No attempt whatever to arrest the negro was made by the bystanders, nor has he been apprehended since, though news of the homicide was sent to officers here last night. It is not known at this writing whether he has skipped or is still at his home. It is understood, however, that the negro says the white man put his hand in his shirt bosom and he feared that he intended to shoot him.—Salisbury Dispatch.

TRIO OF TAR HEEL PATRIOTS

A Northern Paper Does Justice to North Carolina Officials Regarding the Salisbury Lynching.

George Hall who was sentenced to fifteen years in the state's prison at hard labor for participating in the Salisbury lynching, is not the first southerner to go to jail for this offence, but the example made of him is so noteworthy that it should have widest notoriety in the south. In every state the just and speedy punishment meted out to Hall, after a conviction by a white jury, should have a sobering effect upon those who would make of "nigger-killing" a favorite sport. Judge Long, whose attitude, like that of Gov. Glenn, is worthy of the highest commendation, gave Hall the maximum penalty of the law; an act which should make the twenty-five other lynchers who are to be prosecuted, decidedly uncomfortable. Some years ago an Alabama sheriff and jury sent several white lynchers, who were making a profession of murdering, to the chair for long sentences. Subsequently a weak governor, candidate for reelection, released them in fear of the campaign criticism that he had made convicts of whites merely for killing a few niggers. Gov. Glenn is of a different type. Moreover, in this case the authorities are aware that if the prestige of the court is not sustained, its power will be seriously crippled, and probably defied. There are no Americans today doing more patriotic service than Sheriff Julian, Judge Long and Governor Glenn.—New York Post.

JEROME WILLING TO RUN

Issues Statement Saying That in Present Shameful Condition of New York Politics He Would Accept Democratic Nomination if Left Unpledged.

New York, August 19.—District Attorney William Travers Jerome today issued the following statement:

"In the present shameful condition of our political life in this state, I am willing to run for the office of governor of the state, if the democratic convention shall nominate me without any understanding, expressed or implied, other than that, if elected, I shall obey my oath of office as I understand it, in letter and spirit."

"AMERICAN ACCENT" TAUGHT

To English Pupils To Further Their Chances of Commercial Success.

According to an English periodical, the headmaster of a certain English "popular school" insists that his scholars shall "learn to speak English with the American accent and in the American style." We don't know exactly what the American style and accent are, but in the opinion of this headmaster, if he exists, they have a distinct money and business value. If a man has them persons who hear him talk will think that he is "an American and consequently enormously rich," and do much for him; "do" him much, it might be more correct to say. On the other hand, if they know that he is an Englishman, yet they will assume from his accent and style that he has been in America, and, therefore, is "shrewd, energetic, and resourceful," and "far more experienced, intelligent, and reasonable" than if he had had his business training in England. In short, boys that want to "get on" will acquire the American tongue. This is very ingenious and has a certain basis of sense; but American speaking Englishmen will find that their hotel bills will be mighty large and long.—Everybody's Magazine.
