SILENT WIT-NEERS.

There are voices that are ever calling From the misty realms of yore, And accents on my ears are falling, That I never knew so well before; Mute they come Like a dream from home, To one on a stranger shore.

We hear their murmurs soft and low, When night's dark shadows breathe around; We listen to the siren's gentle flow, And in my heart there is a bound; For there they call, From every shore, Speaking in every sign and sound.

And on the air, that murmurs by, Their breathing tones I hear, Sometimes most precious, sometimes a sigh Is wafted to me.

Speaking to me, Of some bright days of yore, When life seemed overflowing with joy.

CROWNING THE CZAR.

THE AUTOCRAT OF ALL THE RUSSIA INVITED WITH THE INSIGNIA OF ROYALTY.

Not a Nihilist Present—No Dynamite or Disaster—An Unequaled Pageant—A Marvelous Display of Pomp and Splendor—A Rejoicing Populace.

Moscow, May 22.—At 7 o'clock his majesty the emperor of Russia was crowned in the magnificent cathedral of the Holy Assumption.

The coronation of the emperor and empress of Russia was announced by the ringing of hundreds of bells and by the thunder of artillery.

Even at that early hour the streets were animated with throngs of people, both of residents and visitors from abroad and from other parts of the empire.

THE WESTERN TOBACCO JOURNAL.

The Western Tobacco Journal, Cincinnati, Ohio, comments as follows upon the outlook for the coming tobacco crop. It says notwithstanding the strenuous efforts made to exterminate him, and the hard names hurled at him, the viperish little pest, Tobacco fly, manages to turn up every spring in myriads to attack the plant just when it begins to rear its head above the ground. Nothing but unremitting labor will insure a planter against his ravages, unless it be canvas.
