Boiler Explosion Causes Death and Destruction

Friday afternoon at one o'clock the boiler at the High Point Steam Laundry blew up, killing Eli Ingram, the negro fireman and painfully wounding S. S. Martin, a white man related to Crowder Brothers, proprietors of the laundry.

The explosion was due to the carelessness of the negro fireman in running cold water into its coils while too hot. The steam had run so low on account of water that the engine hardly moved the machinery of the laundry and the proprietor told the fireman about it but cautioned him not to let cold water in until the boiler had cooled down some.

However in a few moments afterwards a terrific explosion took place and the whole end of the laundry was torn away. The boiler was thrown around opposite to its original position and landed 25 feet north. Hundreds of brick and bits of broken wood, bent and twisted pipes covered the original location of the boiler. The boiler had great holes torn in its side and the front end casings around the coils of water pipes torn away like so much cloth.

The heavy steam valve at the top was broken and scarred as if a tin toy instead of a huge piece of iron. There it lay covered with rust and dirt, hardly a solid place on its thick covering of metal, with its nose buried in the ground as if in fright or ashamed of its behaviour, the instrument which sent its "master" of 10 year's service into eternity, mangling the body of flesh and blood right at the spot where once stood this giant of iron and steel.

S. S. Martin was standing in the door leading to the boiler room when the explosion occurred and received severe burns about his face and hands from flying ash and several wounds from swiftly falling brick. He had a narrow escape from death. The force of the explosion seems to have been diverted towards safety, an open field. To the south in very close proximity was the Union Supply Co's building but no damage was done except shattered window panes due to the force of the explosion. Had the boiler been hurled in this direction no doubt several employes would have been killed. And if the boiler had been blown west towards the front of the building or brick and other debris diverted that way to any extent no doubt several other lives would have been sacrificed.

In fact it looks like "the fates" were decidedly in favor of the living and everything of a death dealing nature turned towards an open field.

Messrs. Crowder and Bros. should "thank God and take courage" that they came out so light. They were about ready to move into their building on East Washington street anyway which is being done this week and will be very little inconvenienced beyond what would have been experienced in moving had the accident never occurred.

Mr. Martin, who was wounded, is getting along nicely. He lately moved here and engaged in the music business, operating a store on North Main street.

The explosion shook things up in general therabouts. The fire department responded to a call but their services were not needed as there was little fire.

The New Cafe

The editor visited the new cafe of Brown and Wagner Tuesday and found everything in first-class shape and a close inspection classes this cafe beyond the 97 per cent mark, a close run to a perfect standard. If those gentlemen keep up the high standard set and there is reasons to believe they will, a fine patronage should be theirs.

Mr. Dalton's Candidacy

The Greensboro News in speaking of Carter Dalton's candidacy for the House, says among other things that "there has been expressed in Greensboro in the close-up circles the willingness to let High Point select her man and it is understood that Mr. Dalton has received many strong pledges of support in High Point". In fact it already looks like Mr. Dalton is an easy winner if the plan is to be carried out to let High Point have who she wants as one of the representatives. Mr. Dalton's card appears as an advertisement elsewhere. Read it.

Young John Farlowe has joined the Hopewell colony.

Safeguard the Public's Health

We repeat that it is due the citizens of High Point to have the milk supply analyzed monthly just like it was being done in a way some time ago. Every other town thinks enough of the health of its people to have this done and High Point certainly deserves no less. It will do no harm to present the figures in black and white and will be an incentive to those selling milk in High Point to furnish the best quality possible, free from injurious or death dealing microbes, it matters not whether he be democrat or republican, Methodist or Baptist or what not? We want the best safeguards thrown around our people and we must have it. Will the proper authorities act on the matter?

The same way in regard to the restaurants, the people are entitled to the best, wholesome food cooked in sanitary kitchens and an inspection will tell the tale. Let us do our duty in these matters.

Veterans Have a Most Interesting and Profitable Meeting

A very interesting meeting of the High Point Camp, United Confederate Veterans, was held Saturday afternoon. Before the business session a picture of the camp members was taken at the Elks Home by J. E. Jones. There was a good attendance considering the weather. Following the business session the sponsor, Miss Irvin Paylor read the history of the "Stars and Bars", the first flag of the Confederacy and a letter from Miss Jessica Smith (daughter of the designer of the flag—Maj. Orren Randolph Smith) known among the veterans as Davis daughter, in which Miss Smith asked the sponsor to present to the camp in the name of her father the copy of the flag she was sending. The flag is a large, beautiful copy, painted by Miss Smith and as the sponsor held it high, and on motion of Col. D. H. Milton, the camp arose and bowed their heads in sacred compliance.

Several fine talks were made by Messrs. Tom Wood, D. H. Milton, A. M. Idol and others along the line of comradeship and the forthcoming reunion at Birmingham, Ala. Miss Paylor announced recent gifts to the Camp as follows: Ten pounds of (sun cured) tobacco Brown and Williamson, Winston-Salem.

One hundred packages garden seed from Major Stedman, Washington.

Book, Mrs. J. B. Richardson. A number of towels, Mrs. A. T. Wishart.

The photo is to be a gift to headquarters from J. E. Jones.

Lieut. H. C. Lewis presented the Camp with the loan of a picture of the members of Ringlands Battery.

Mrs. J. W. Sechrest framed the picture free.

Steven Clark sent $5.00 in money. Assorted sandwiches were served with coffee and chocolate and vanilla cake with raspberry and banana jelly.

The refreshments were furnished as follows: Chicken salad and cheese sandwiches by Mesdames Bascom Hoskins and Robert Morrow.

Coffee, J. E. Perryman. Sugar, Alfred Bros. Jelly, T. J. Steed. Bananas, John Farlow. Cake, Venice Confectionery.

The Daughters of the Confederacy present were Mrs. James B. Richardson, honorary president of the local U. D. C.; Mrs. Robert Morrow chairman the Standing finance committee, and member of the portrait committee of the local U. D. C. Mrs. Herbert C. Field, chairman the committee of Memorials; Mrs. A. E. Tate, chairman of the Membership Committee; Mrs. Bascom Hoskins, chairman the Woman's Home committee; Mrs. Zillah Smith, and I. Irvin Paylor, Sponsor.

Assisting the Daughters in serving were Misses Madge Field and Mary Harmon.

H. C. Lewis, of High Point Camp, U. C. V., celebrated his birthday yesterday with a big dinner. Miss Irvin Paylor, sponsor, was the honored guest. A most pleasant afternoon was spent.

The Snow Park property brought a good price Tuesday when Penny Bros. and Thomas Bros. disposed of 51 lots for $8,000.

A Bold Robbery

Henry Grissom and Jule Fagg are charged with entering the High Point Motor Company's place of business on Hamilton street Sunday night or early Monday morning and carried off over $250. in auto tires or to be exact 20 in number averaging $13. a piece. Entrance was effected from a window on Commerce street, the whole lower part of the window being broken out, when it was an easy matter for the robbers to get all the Ford tires in sight. The tires were 30x3 1/2 and 30x3, most of them the Firestone brand with a few Goodrich. The tires are numbered and can be easily identified and the officers are expecting to trace them. Manager Wilson offers a reward of $50. for the arrest and conviction of the parties.

Later—Eleven of the tires were found covered up at a saw mill near the city. Henry Grissom was nabbed Tuesday and some of the belting secured from Snow Lumber Co. the same night they made the raid on the High Point Motor Co., was recovered. Jule Fagg made his escape Tuesday after having given the officers a merry chase and after having fired at D. I. Brooks who tried to arrest him.

A Shooting Scrape

Silas Hayes shot Jim King at a tough place, in Wm Guy's barber shop in the hollow and at the trial it was made to appear an accident. But Judge Dalton thought a lesson should be taught and gave Hayes the choice of going to the devil for 90 days (rather on the chain gang) or pay a fine of $22.50.

Reuben Vail has been arrested again this time in Salisbury and the officers brought him here where he is under indictment for keeping whiskey for sale.

The case against Reuben Vail was continued until Friday. T. J. Gold is his attorney while Prosecuting Attorney Albertson will be aided by C. C. Barnhardt for the State.

Presbyterial Elects Officers

The 19th annual session of the Woman's Presbyterial came to a close Friday, after a most interesting three day's session. The next meeting will be held in Winston in April 1917. The election of officers resulted as follows:

To Spread Out

The Methodist Protestants of High Point want a more commodious and pretentious house of worship in keeping with their rapidly growing membership and with this end in view a plan and location committee was named as follows: Mayor W. P. Pickett, C. C. Robbins, Geo. T. Penny, V. W. Idol and J. A. Gray. The proposition has the support of the entire congregation and Pastor Dixon is jubilant over the idea. Many of the members of this splendid church had something to say about the wonderful progress the church had made during Mr. Dixon's pastorate and other matters pertaining to the church work at the rally held Sunday.

The new church will not be located on the present site as there is not enough room, so it is stated.
