WIRELESS GETS RID OF "STATIC"

An invention which has taken the "static" out of wireless telegraphy, removing thereby the greatest obstacle to the clear transmission of radio messages, has been perfected by Roy A. Weagant, chief engineer of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America. The invention not only makes possible the sending of clear radio messages regardless of atmospheric conditions, but eliminates "interference," thereby making possible the operation of innumerable radio stations without "crossing" messages. The invention also does away with the necessity of constructing huge wireless towers. Perfect service can be obtained with the use of antennae extending only a few feet from the ground. The invention is said to mark a new era in world communication and to be second in importance in the field of radio telegraphy only to Marconi's invention. Mr. Weagant, who is only thirty-seven, has been working on the problem of static for 15 years and took out patent papers on his invention shortly before the United States entered the war. The government kept the invention secret, disclosing it only to the allied nations. It is thought best to withhold all information concerning it until the actual signing of a peace treaty.

FRAULEIN BAUMER'S DIARY

Entries from the diary of Fraulein Gertrud Baumer of Berlin during the month of October are of interest to Americans. In them President Wilson is referred to as an "arrogant schoolmaster" and the rage of the German people at being forced to accept the terms communicated to them by this government is freely and bitterly expressed.

Five weeks later Fraulein Baumer, with Alice Salomon, signed the appeal addressed to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson on behalf of the national council of women of Germany in the hope of obtaining a modification of the armistice terms. Extracts follow:

"Tuesday, Oct. 8.—We are to 'repent.' In so far as there is need of repentance about the mad battle of destruction of these four years, let the whole world repent of it before the God to whom it feels itself responsible. We can repent only in this great common sense—assuredly not before other men as our 'betters.'"

"Wednesday, Oct. 9.—Wilson's answer came out this afternoon. Doubtless we expected it thus. Yet it
