

Examples for Boys.

Some children in Philadelphia not long since collected some money and made Gov. Bigler a life member of the American Sunday school Union, a certificate of which was sent to him in a nice gilt frame.

When Gov. Bigler received it, he wrote a letter to the children, in which he says, 'I have been both a sabbath school scholar and a teacher.'

This lets us into an important secret of his character. The boy that was not ashamed to continue in the Sabbath School till he became old enough to become a teacher, has now become Gov. of the State of California.

But those young men who were hung in New York, week before last, before they were twenty one years of age, never went to Sunday school, but spent their sabbaths in prowling in the street, seeking amusement and plunder. It is a sad day for that youth when he begins to feel that he is too old to go to Sunday school. One is never too old to learn good things; and the boy that gives himself up to the study of God's word, and yields his heart to it, will be sure to make his mark if he should live to be a man.

The Cincinnati Gazette says that the most opulent private banker of that city, began his active life as a carrier of that paper. Of course he was remarkable for the care, speed, and faithfulness with which he has performed his work when a boy, or he would never have been so successful as a man. He was so well liked by the subscribers of the paper, that on a New Year's day he received three or four times as much as any other carrier in the city. The foundation of his present enormous fortune was made from his small saving at that time.

Some poor boys think that they are very mealy employed, because they have some things to do that are not pleasant; and sigh for the pleasures of the rich man's son, who walks about in his fine clothes, and never dirties or hardens his hand with work.

But in this case, we see how intimately fatfulness in an humble condition is connected with prosperity in future life. The new-carrier, who was careful to please his customers, by the habits he formed in that capacity, and the favors he receives in consequence, becomes the rich banker.

Mr. Ritner, a former Governor of Pennsylvania, was once a poor boy, an apprentice to a farmer. When his old master heard that he was elected Governor, he said, "Yes, Joseph was always a very good boy."

DEATH AND DRINKING.—Life is God's gift. It is a great gift. We value it above all riches. In case of danger all that a man hath will be given for his life. It is the period measured by Providence, during which all the pleasures and happiness of humanity are to be enjoyed, and all its duties to be performed. Oh! what folly, to be constantly tasking, mutilating, and destroying that most precious of all jewels! Ninety-nine out of every hundred die sooner than they would, by violating the laws of health and longevity, and a vast proportion do not live out half their days. Every unnatural stimulant helps to bring them nearer to the grave. Of all the other causes, the use of intoxicating liquors is the most powerful. Drinkers destroy the pleasures of life; nay, they cut off a great portion of it as effectually as if they laid their necks upon the block, and struck the fatal blow with their own hands. Nature truly bears up under a great deal of torture from strong drink, but at last it gives way, and often suddenly. Could we examine the progress of disease internally, we should be able to trace its insidious progress in every one who drinks strong drink even moderately. Indeed, an occasional spree of drunkenness does not harrass the system near so much as the daily or frequent drinking of a few glasses in moderation.

GREEK EULOGY ON CLAY AND WEBSTER.—The National Intelligencer contains a translation of a Greek eulogy on Henry Clay and Daniel Webster, made by Miss Elizabeth of Crete, a young lady who, not many years ago, embraced the Episcopal creed, and is now a missionary among her countrymen at Athens. The eulogy was delivered in the Greek House of Representatives, by Mr. Charmonizis, a Deputy on Lamai, on the proposition that the names of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster be inscribed on the walls in the pribelous of the Chamber, as a token of their gratitude for the eloquent appeals of the deceased in behalf of the suffering Greeks during the revolution.

LOVE AND THE MUSES.—Grace Greenwood, the popular and gifted American poetess and author, was married on Monday evening, at eight o'clock, in the village church adjoining her parents' residence, at New Brighton, Beaver Co., Pa., to Mr. Leander K. Lippincott, of Philadelphia.

NEW BOOKS.

TEMPERANCE MUSICIAN.

Optimism of the Press.

"We are much pleased with this book, and heartily endorse the plan recommended in the author's preface."—Miss Lou Mearns.

"This is a most little volume, containing the best collection of Temperance Songs and Music we have seen."—Summit Review.

"The Temperance Musician is the title of a little work received from Applegate & Co. We have no doubt it will become very popular with the singers of Temperance Songs, and thereby greatly aid the cause of humanity. The tunes are of the excellent, and the songs are of the best. It is a desideratum in the present state of the temperance cause."—Tennessee Organ.
