Beecher Business.

NEW YORK, June 22.—In the Beecher trial this morning, Neilson stated some of the jury were in his room, and from conversation with them regarding the occurrences of last evening, he believed they were laboring under a misapprehension. Fullerton and Everts made remarks on the same subject, and said all the issues Beecher had to meet were those presented by witnesses in the stand, and not those advanced against him in newspapers and outside rumors. Neilson said he had observed in some papers paragraphs to the effect that his charge had been prepared two months ago, and that he had some time since received requests to charge from some of the counsel. In justice to himself and counsel he felt compelled to state that his charge was not yet finished, but was now in process of preparation, and that he had not yet ready anything to charge. He was of opinion that if he was allowed to deliver his charge first, he could do it in such a manner as that the counsel would have but few requests to make; These they could advance after the charge had been given. Fullerton and Everts acquiesced in this matter.

Beach then arose and continued summing up to the jury, and read a letter from Beecher to Mrs. Tilton, in which he speaks of a "bird singing in his heart," and in which is mentioned "true inwardness." The nest-hiding letter was also read.

Beach referred to Richard's testimony which had not been pressed to extremes, as counsel for plaintiff got enough from him to serve their purpose. Beach expanded on the probabilities of what Richards is said to have witnessed in Tilton's house. This was not an attitude of a preacher they were in when the door was opened. It was shown by her not advancing to meet her brother that she considered herself improperly occupied.

He read from the interview with Tilton and others, between various parties to the suit. Counsel read the letter from Mrs. Moore to Beecher, in which she says when she thinks of the misery he had caused to her family and heard him cracking his jokes she thought with the psalmist "There is no God." Beecher made no inquiry of her as to why she charged her daughter's misery to him, and why did not Beecher go to her if innocent, and demand an explanation. Other letters from Mrs. Morse were equally damning and conclusive evidence. These letters showed no trace of the wandering mind of which Porter spoke. How did Beecher meet the bold demand of Bowen at the Fremont house? He said nothing till Bowen told him what he knew of it. Beecher's object was to secure Bowen's friendship and attachment to him; it did not throw light on this subject, when the jury considered Beecher's trembling appeal to Bowen to be a friend to him.

Disciplining Morrissy--An Anti-Tammany Movement.

NEW YORK, June 22.—John Morrissy was before the Tammany committee on discipline last night to answer the charge of disloyalty. He was very independent. He said he was in harmony with Tammany, but opposed to its management; that the committee might as well make out his dismissal, he should not resign until he saw fit. Howell says the dissatisfaction which has been manifesting itself against Tammany Hall is gradually assuming shape. Last night there assembled in one of the upper parlors of Delmonico's many influential democrats, for the purpose of forming an organization which it is hoped will supersede Tammany, which has, they say, outlived its usefulness.

It was decided to get representative delegates from each city ward to arrange preliminaries for the election of general committee proposed. The first object of the organization will be to institute a systematic campaign against Tammany. It is now intended that general committees shall not be provisional but permanent. On Monday next another meeting will be held, at which about four or five representatives from each ward will be present. It is expected that important work will be done then.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Wm. H. Brown, a counterfeiter from Cincinnati, who escaped some time since from Ludlow street jail, was placed on trial yesterday in the criminal branch of the U. S. circuit court, before Judge Lindley, on the charge of attempting to sell counterfeit two dollar and ten dollar currency notes. These notes had, after their capture from Brown, been placed in a safe in the office of the secret service division on Bleeker street, from which it was alleged they were stolen, by Gen. Marrick. The notes were not produced on trial, and to prove their loss the testimony of Col. Elmer Washburne, Misses Jane Rath and Rebecca Moore, of the treasury department at Washington, and others was given. Brown withdrew his plea of not guilty, plea guilty, and was remanded for sentence.

Willis, a holder of $75,000 worth of bonds of the Buffalo, New York and Erie Co., the payment of which Erie Railroad company has defaulted, and which are secured by a second mortgage of the Buffalo branch, has commenced a suit to foreclose that mortgage. He includes as defendants in the suit the Buffalo, New York and Erie railroad company, Hugh J. Jewell, receiver of the Erie company; Chas. T. Hunten and Wm. INDIANAPOLIS, June 22.—Postmaster General Jewell arrived here to-day and visited board of trade &c.,

Out of the Frying Pan into the Fire.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Boss Tweed appeared in the court house to-day in custody of the deputy sheriff. He was smuggled off Blackwell's Island at 10 o'clock last night, and driven around the city in a carriage. He went to his office in Duane street, and spent some time in consultation with his counsel, after which he proceeded to the district attorney's office with his son and secretary. In the supreme court his counsel presented to Judge Davis the order of the court of appeals for his discharge from the penitentiary, which was signed by the judge. The Boss soon after appeared in the court Oyer and Terminer before Judge Brady. The room was soon packed with people in immense numbers, and others were clamoring for admittance. District Attorney Phelps moved that the defendant be arraigned to plead to the indictment found in November, 1872. Dudley Field, counsel for Tweed, stated he was not ready to plead or make a motion to quash, notice of this indictment having been received only within a few days. The district attorney said it was evident the defendant intended to pursue his old tactics and stave off proceedings as long as possible. This was disclaimed by Field after a long argument, in which it was argued on one side that there was no reason why this should be made a special case or favors should be shown Tweed, and on the other that no such favors had been shown him, he having been outraged by illegal confinement.

"Tweed's counsel further said it could not be considered a special favor to issue warrants in a civil suit for six millions, and to fix bail at the immense figure of three millions; and that such bail was unheard of. "Yes," said Peckham, "the stealing of six millions was an unheard-of thing till the defendant committed the theft." The matter here rested, and Judge Brady stated he believed defendant ought to have time to examine the indictments, but would not give his formal decision until later in the day. The court then fixed bail in the new indictment. The above argument was on the indictment charging the Boss with fraudulently obtaining the signature of Mayor Hall to warrants paid to Andrew J. Garvey. On this indictment the court fixed the bail at three thousand.

On the indictment found by the grand jury in May, it charges him with conspiracy in having, in conjunction with Peter B. Sweeney, and Elber Woodward, defrauded the city. It the latter the court fixed the bail at one thousand dollars. The proceedings were then adjourned, and Tweed, surrendered by counsel left the court room. Bail on the indictments will be furnished this afternoon—Albert B. Sands being bondsman on the former indictment, and Charles Devisus on the latter. The whole party then returned to the Oyer and Terminer, and the bonds were approved by Judge Beaver. Tweed was then taken into custody again on an order of arrest in civil suit, and ordered to Ludlow street jail, where he will remain until three million dollars bail is furnished.

Storm in Missouri.

KANSAS CITY, June 21.—The most terrific storm since 1844 visited this section on Sunday night, commencing about 9 o'clock, and continuing four hours. The rain poured down in torrents and was accompanied by a hail storm and thunder and lightning. Several houses in the city were struck by lightning and several unroofed. Immense damage has been done to the streets and the cellars are filled. The storm extended over the country for an area of fifty miles south and southeast. The damage to the farmers is very great by the overflow of bottom lands and the destruction of crops and fences. Railroads also suffered severely by the loss of bridges. No trains arrived to day except on the Hannibal and St. Joe and North Missouri. The few grasshoppers remaining were entirely exterminated.
