NORTHERN DAKOTA.

Objects of Interest Noted by the Official Party on its Recent Trip.

St. Paul, Oct. 25, 1875.

Editors Press and Dakotaian:

We left Yankton on the 13th, and having visited Bismarck, Ft. Lincoln and Fargo, are this far on our return. Going out we stopped first at Fargo, which is on the west side of the Red river of the north, the said river being the dividing line between Minnesota and Dakota. Fargo, on the Dakota side, is beautifully located, has a population of five to eight hundred, we are told, and is surrounded by a magnificent country for agricultural purposes. The crops of all kinds this year were splendid, their wheat all grades No. 1, and was selling when we were there at $1.00 @ $1.50 per bushel. Several thousand acres in the vicinity of the town have been broken this season, and the acreage in wheat will no doubt increase year by year until Fargo will become in the near future one of the great wheat centers of the west. Potatoes, onions, and vegetables generally seem to grow as large and as well on the Red river as in Southern Dakota; and with the fine crops of the present year it is not to be wondered at that the people residing there are a little vain of their section, and boastful of its natural advantages. Well, they have got a big thing, and I don't blame them for being proud of it. The large new hotel at Fargo, kept by Mr. Hubbard, is creditable to the place, and is doing, as it deserves to do, a large business. The people have erected a fine court house of brick, which is probably as large and commodious as the one at Yankton. Of churches they have an Episcopal nearly completed, with a neat little parsonage, and a Methodist.

Morehead, on the Minnesota side of the river, is a little larger than Fargo, and a place of considerable thrift. Through the courtesy of Messrs. Roberts and Kinney, our party were shown around the two places and over some of the adjacent country, all of which we enjoyed very much. The people of Fargo are warm-hearted and hospitable, and our whole party will keep them green in their memory. They will ask the next congress for a small appropriation to improve the Red river, that they may thereby have better transportation and market facilities, and they ought to have it.

On Monday, the 18th, we made the run of 200 miles to Bismarck, all the way by daylight, giving us a good chance to see the country, which being most of the way rolling prairie, and dotted here and there with beautiful lakes, is well worth seeing.

After getting out from Fargo a few miles there is but one settlement until you near Bismarck, and that is at Jamestown, where the passengers going each way get dinner. We saw millions of ducks and geese, some antelope, swan and other game, but no buffalo or wild Indians.

We were all surprised at Bismarck, for it is a much larger place than we expected to find, and has a larger population than we supposed it contained. And while like most frontier towns it has its ragged edges, it contains a goodly number of most excellent people, and our party received every attention and courtesy that we could possibly have desired. The town-site question being still an open one with them and no certainty as to future titles to the soil, no attempt has been made at architectural beauty, but they have a good many buildings such as they are, and a population of 800 to 1,000 souls.

Col. Lounsberry, of the Tribune, was at home, and his big heart and big potatoes are not excelled by any one on the frontier. He showed us some potatoes, grown near the town, that were the largest we ever saw; and the colonel showed us a lot of about 200 bushels, raised on his own farm, of as fine potatoes as can be raised in any part of the United States. The opinion of Gen. Hazen to the contrary notwithstanding, we are confident as good crops of wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, etc., can be raised in Burleigh county as anywhere in the northwest. I have some specimens of their potatoes with us which I am sure will compare favorably with any grown in Southern Dakota. A number of farms have been opened, and it is expected that the general production of wheat and other grains will soon be commenced.

Tuesday we passed at Fort Lincoln, and a most delightful day it was to the whole party. Gen. Gustar being absent, Capt. Kehoe, of the 7th cavalry, was in command, and he and all the other officers were constant and active in their efforts to render our visit pleasant to us, and we all feel profoundly grateful to all the officers, and some of their good ladies, for the enjoyments of a day we shall keep fresh in memory for a long time. Mr. Seip, the post trader, and his lady extended many courtesies to us. In fact, we found everything at the Fort so very pleasant that it was nearly dark when we left to return to Bismarck. Three companies of the force left while we were there on account of a little scare up at Berthold, but it turned out to be only a little panic, and they have been ordered back. In fact I don't think the Indians will attack anything this season but their rations, but they will get away with them with commendable regularity. Of course they will not hesitate to scalp a herder who may be caught out alone, especially if it be necessary in running off cattle, but they have no desire to come in contact with our troops.

We left Bismarck on Thursday and reached here Saturday morning. The N. P. road begins at Duluth and runs to Bismarck, a distance of 450 miles. The road is well built, in good condition and makes good time. We have made the acquaintance of Gen. Mead, the general manager, with headquarters in St. Paul, and of Mr. Sullivan, superintendent, with headquarters at Brainard. We traveled with Mr. Sullivan from Bismarck to Brainard, at which latter point he showed our party through the large building containing the offices of the company, and gave us much information relative to the construction and management of the road.

Saturday we spent several hours in inspecting the wonders of that wonderful city of Minneapolis, and yet much remains to be seen. This is the first visit any of the party had made to these two delightful cities, and they are so exceedingly pleasant we are loath to leave them. We are reminded, however, that there is a more goodly land still, in Southern Dakota, and we shall reach home in a few days.
