

COME TO PALACE TO MATA FAMILY

Twelve mattresses substituted in New Quarters—Reserve Many Mattresses.

The Mata family is living in what is the idea of a palace—a railway box car.

Twelve mattresses were turned in to the Rock Island Welfare association for the Mexican family, living in a place made by the welfare association. The conditions are one little 'tilt' room, in which the mother and five children ate and lived were the worst to come before Mrs. Mary ... Matron of the welfare association, according to her statement.

The little room was an addition to a box car. There was no floor, except where a few boards had been thrown over the ground for the bedding. There are no windows in the room, the only shade of light coming in when the door is left open. In the cold weather when the door is closed the room is perfectly dark. In one corner of the room a mattress was placed on several boxes and chairs. Next to the mattress was a trunk. On the mattress and a trunk the mother and her five children slept. A little old stove stands in the center of the room with an old table beside it. A chair or two on the
