LOCATING THE BATTLES.

The Illinois Commission and Its Recent Mission South.
Gen. Smith D. Atkins, of Freeport, who was a member of the recent Illinois commission to locate the position of Illinois troops in the battle of Chicamauga, of which Maj. L. M.
Buford, of this city, was also one, has written the following account in his paper of the expedition: The Illinois commissioners to locate the lines of the Illinois troops at the battle of Chicamauga, and in the battles about Chattanooga, were Major General John M. Falmer, Col.
J. G. Everest, Maj. L. M. Buford, Col. H. E. Rives, Major Walter E.
Carlin, Gen. Smith D. Atkins, Gen.
J. B. Turebin, Col. F. D. Swain, Maj.
E. A. Blodgett and Maj. J. A. Connolly. The commissioners met at the Park hotel, Chicamauga, Georgia, Nov. 18, all being present except General Falmer. The hotel is a very large one, erected by Gen. J. T.
Wildier, at Crawfish Springs, on the battlefield of Chicamauga, that remarkable spring furnishing power to run the electric light plant for the hotel. The commissioners were met and entertained by Gens. J. S. Fullerton and H. V. V. Boynton, of the national board of commissioners, and after spending several days on the battlefield of Chicamauga, and tracing the lines of all the Illinois regiments and batteries engaged in that battle, they went to Chattanooga, and performed the same service for the Illinois troops engaged in the battles of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, that resulted in raising the siege of Chattanooga, and driving Bragg's army behind Rocky Face Ridge at Tunnel Hill. A national park, like the one at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, is being established on the battlefield of Chicamauga, including Missionary Ridge and Lookout Mountain, about 10 square miles of land having already been purchased by the United States, and about 30 miles of the finest roads in the world already constructed.
When completed the positions of all the troops engaged on both sides will be plainly marked, and permanent monuments erected for each regiment and battery. It will require 85 monuments to show the positions of the Illinois troops engaged in the various battles covered by the national park.
The Monuments.
They will not be elaborate monuments, but should be permanent, and an honor to the troops engaged, and to the state of Illinois. The style of monuments to be erected will depend upon an appropriation to be made by the next legislature of Illinois. Ohio has already appropriated $95,000, for that purpose, and the patriotism of the people of the state of Illinois will induce the legislature of this state to guard the memory of her heroic soldiers on those great battlefields by erecting monuments, not to individuals, but to each Illinois regiment and battery engaged. There is one brigade monument now partially erected to the memory of Wildier's brigade of mounted infantry. The brigade was armed with the Spencer repeating rifle, the most effective small arms ever used in battle, and the entire brigade at Chicamauga fought on foot as infantry, and with their repeating rifles did fearful execution.
The brigade was composed of the 2d, 9th, 12th, 15th, 17th and 72d Indiana regiments. The monument is a round tower of blue limestone, with a circular staircase inside, and when completed will be 120 feet high, and is on the hill near the Widow Glenn's house, and the funds to erect the monument were raised by voluntary subscription among the surviving soldiers of Wildier's brigade.
Preparing to Demolish the Fair.
Builders of the World's fair are now getting ready to tear the great exposition down. More than a year elapsed between the time congress voted to send the exposition to Chicago and the beginning of operations in Jackson park. One day after the final closing of the gates on Oct. 30 the work of destruction will begin. The organization is already perfected for the destruction. It only waits the word from Director General Davis.
The word will be given on the morning of Oct. 31.
How fast the exposition will fall cannot of course be told now. Many elements of uncertainty enter into the question, not the least of which is the state of the weather during the closing days of October. If the winds that sweep down over Lake Michigan bring icicles and snow, little will be left at the end of a month but a remembrance of the gorgeous interiors. The buildings will stay—most of them for six months and some of them longer—but the exhibits will be boxed and crated and hauled away on freight cars.—Chicago Herald.

Switzerland's numerous waterfalls have proved a means for the generation and supply of an abundant amount of power for a comparatively small expenditure of capital. At the end of last year there were in that country 552 electric light installations and 52 plants for the electrical transmission of power.
Roots of all trees draw large quantities of moisture from the soil, which is discharged into the air through the leaves. It is estimated that an oak tree thing like 700 tons of water during the five months it carries its foliage.

FATAL CARELESSNESS.

It Causes a Child's Death and Sends a Servant to Prison For Three Months.
A very sad tragedy came before the Paris police courts the other day when Marie Marterez, a domestic servant, was tried for the homicide, through carelessness, of Blanche, the infant child of Mrs.
Blanche Treville, an American actress, known on the stage as Miss Irving.
Last summer Mrs. Treville was living at 37 Avenue d'Antin. Her daughter, who was only 4 years old, was being educated at a convent in the neighborhood of Paris. When the holidays commenced, the child came to live with her mother in Paris. On Aug. 26 Mrs. Treville had to go out in the afternoon. She confided the child to the care of Marie Marterez, who promised not to lose sight of her.
She, however, shut the child up in her own room, locked her in and took the key away with her. When Marie Marterez returned, she found her room full of smoke. The child was lying on the floor unconscious, with its clothes burned to cinders. There had been a box of wax matches in one of the drawers in the room. The child, to amuse herself, had begun striking matches and had set fire to her frock. The poor child's cries were unheard. There were on the door the marks made by her delicate little nails in her desperation and fear.
All that could be done to save the child was done, but it was too late. The child died the same night.
In her despair Mrs. Treville accused the servant of murder, saying that Marie Marterez detested the child and had purposely shut her up alone with matches, with which Blanche had always liked to play. But the judicial authorities made inquiries and learned that Marie Marterez was as a rule very attentive to the child and took good care of it. The charge of murder was consequently changed to that of homicide through carelessness. Mrs. Treville herself appeared in court to give evidence, and renewed her accusation that the servant had wanted to bring about the child's death.
"I am sure of it," she said, weeping.
"She detested baby."
But the court took a different view of the case and sentenced Marie Marterez to three months' imprisonment.—Paris
