TURPIE'S WRATH.

The Indiana Senator Astounds Uncle Sam's Senate.

Being Made the Object of an Insulting Comparison with Himself of Four Years Ago, to Which He Replies Very Briefly -Upshot of a Tariff Debate.

WASHINGTON, May 1.-Turple of Indiana was acquired, and how a similar one a direct declaration as to what the tariff bili was like now, but with poor success, except that Voorhees, upon taking part in the wordy war said distinctly and emphatically that whatever was said to parable preparation for beautifying the contrary notwithstanding the income tax feature was a fixture in the bill, That was all the information two hours or more of badgering could obtain. The badgering was undoubtedly hard to bear, and the Democrats grew restive thereun-

> Aldrich Makes a Statement of Fact. During the discussion Vest said that Aldrich had been falsely informed concerning the proposed bill, and if these statements were repeated it must be on his own responsibility. Aldrich accepted the challenge and said that he was informed and believed that amendments had been prepared to the bill since is had been reported to the senate as he had previously stated. He asserted that the amendments were in arint, and said It was his understanding that they were to be submitted to the sen ate shortly. They were, he was certain from what he had heard, of a nature to completely change the character of the As a result of this condition of affairs the senate was not nearer the final consideration of the hill than it was three months ago when the bill came from the house.

Turple Astounds the Senator The colloquy ran along for awhile and Voorhees made his income tax statement, being followed by Palmer, who said that committee work did not bind any man's vote and indicated that he would treat the committee bill when it came in just as he would any other bill. As he sat down Turple got the floor and created a pro and sensation by a personal attack on Aldrich the like of which was probably never before seen in the senate. All the Democrats had been more or less irritated by the prodding from the other side, and the feeling was directed principally against Aldrich, who was maneuvering the opposition. Turple seems to have been more irritated that his colleagues.

Charges Aldrich with Triple Lying. He declared that three monstrous un-truths had characterized the oppositionthree gross, palpable lies of inconceivable mendacity. The first of those untraths was that a new bill was being prepared by the secretary of the treasury; the second that three or 200 amendments (it did not matter which) were to be presented, and the third was that the bill reported from the finance committee was not he bill to be passed. All these assertions had been categorically denied by four Democratic members of the finance committee, "And yet," continued Turple raising his band aloft and stretching i owards Aldrich, "the senater from Rhode Island comes in here and says he believes they are true." MAKES AN IRONICAL COMPARISON.

The Senator from Rhode Island of Today and He of 1890.

Then the Indiana senator went on: Chere could be no sharper issue of versel other side who asserts the contrary. Who is the author of these reports that are being circulated here and in the newspaper Who claims the paternity? The senator from Rhode Island.

"I recollect the predecessor of the honor able senator from Rhode Island [referring to the Aldrich of 1830 as a different individual from the Aldrich of today], but even he could not then have been the author of all three of these untruths. He might have been the author of one, but three would have driven him from the field. He had been a drug clerk and was familiar with that line of business and other lines as a wholesale grocer. We who were here then will never forget the writhing of his distinguished counten-

"His enormous development of cheek, hat extended from ear to ear and from chin to forehead. We will never forget his, auricular appendages that scraped the dome of the Capitol. How can the present senator hope to rival his predecessor in the iate of truth and the love of falsehood that has always characterized the cheatof protection."

When Turple sat down there was a hush upon the chamber. Every one was amazed at the personal character of the attack upon Alarich.

Then all eyes were turned on the Rhode Then all eyes were turned on the Rhode Island senator. He arose slowly. "In the position the senator from Indiana now takes," he said slowly and deliberately, "he speaks for no one but himself. Under other circumstances and conditions I do not think he would have made the speech he has shown the same woman worn by disease, pale and haggard, heavy of heart, speaking set dom, casting a shadow of floom throughout the house by her trescuce, and you have a picture of Paradise Lost.
