KENNEDY VS. KNOX.

Alderman and Mayor Have Another Dissertation.

SIXTH WARDER CARRIES HIS POINT.

The Executive Becomes Confused Over a Motion and Substitute and Puts the Wrong One, Causing a Wrangle—All Over the Saloon Question—Other Doings.

"You're out of order, Ald. Kennedy."
"I am not."
"But I say you are."
"I know better."
"Rap! Rap! Rap!" "I say you're out of order! Sit down!"
"I will not!"
"I say you will!"
"I will leave it to any honorable man here that I attached a substitute to my motion, and I demand a square deal."

And the mayor wiped his brow and heaved a sigh of defeat. Ald. Gall said Kennedy was right and the presiding gentleman's temperature dropped about 40 degrees. He explained his intention to do the square thing, but had acted according to his belief when he put the original motion.

Probably a more amusing exhibition was never enacted in the municipal chamber. Hadn't it been that they were too busy with their mouths, face-making would have undoubtedly been thrown in. But they were both good and mad and it looked for a few minutes as if a ring would have to be marked off. After the confusion had subsided the mayor sang "You Can't Play in Our Yard Any More," in an undertone.

All Over the Saloon Question.

The exhibition followed another round with the Sunday saloon question, following the reading of the M. E. church union resolutions by William Jackson. Ald. Kennedy submitted an ordinance repealing the former action of the council in eliminating the Sunday closing clause. Before he delivered the final syllable, Ald. Johnson was on his pins and moved to table it for consideration. Ald. Kennedy substituted the motion by moving its adoption by an aye and nay vote and received a second from Ald. Gall. The mayor evidently didn't pay any heed to Kennedy and put Ald. Johnson's motion. The Sixth warder interrupted the executive and reminded him of his mistake. Kennedy's answer was that he was out of order. Kennedy's physiognomy turned chalky white and his usual cucumber coolness became somewhat disturbed, and the dialogue as given above followed. The mayor's eyes could have been knocked off with a club and the flowing perspiration evinced his inner rage. At one time Kennedy pushed forward his desk and but for the mayor edged into his way of thinking he would probably have went after him. The mayor was assured by Ald. Gall that Ald. Kennedy's demand was just, and the mayor shifted his gun and put the substitute motion, which was lost.

Ayes—Kennedy, Gall, Nelson, Foss—4.

Nays—Surman, Zeis, Johnson, Schreiner, Schroeder, Dauber, Tindall, Schneider, Pender—9.

The original motion was then put and was carried by the same vote of 9 to 4.

Schneider's Spoil.
"We have been ridiculed by church people and called all sorts of names. Now what we want to know is whether we are anarchists or rebels." Thus broke in Ald. Schneider, who demanded that Kennedy's ordinance lay over for consideration, and if it was found that the alleged serious mistake had been made, why it would be called.

Ald. Foss called up the saloon stalls and believed the council was responsible for the immorality carried on in them, and should have them abolished. He presented a resolution ordering the drafting of an ordinance for the suppression of and removal of saloon stalls, and it was carried.

Other Matters.

Various other matters of moment came up, as detailed in the official record. Ald. Schreiner had a plan for a system of storm drains looking to providing for the carrying off the city's superfluous water in times of overflow; one for a westerly course through the city entailing a cost of $80,000, and one along Twenty-fourth street directly north to the river being estimated at $10,000. The propositions were referred to the sewer and finance committees to report.

The ordinance permitting the Davenport & Rock Island Railway company to dispose of its rights to the Tri-City Railway company was presented and adopted by unanimous vote, thus making possible with the municipal sanction the plan of reorganization the present company contemplates. The city reserves all the rights in the premises maintained under the former ordinances, and the company agrees to continue the present service in all respects.

KICKING TO THE END.

The Remonstrance Against the M. W. A. Office Removal Passes All Reason.

The Fulton Journal, which is conducting a general warfare against the Modern Woodmen of America, in seeking to retain there the head office against its will, and thus imperiling its valuable records every day they are kept in unsafe buildings, says in an extended dissertation in its last issue:

"If the men who undertook to move the head office of the Modern Woodmen of America from Fulton to Rock Island in 1890 at Springfield, and again in 1892 at Omaha, and again at Madison in 1895, had put forth one-fourth of the energy in trying to have an office building erected at Fulton, there would have been a building long ago and no one could have been justly accused of laboring more for the interests of Rock Island than for the interests of the Modern Woodmen of America. 'Our Noble Order.' After the abortive action at the meeting of the head camp in Omaha in 1892 an injunction was obtained preventing the removal of the head camp from Fulton. This injunction was in force at the time of the meeting of the head camp at Madison, is still in force and will remain so till dissolved by the court. Knowing this and knowing that such cases are liable to be in court for several years, if the present head office is in such an unsafe, insecure building, it seems as if the head officers who are trying to obtain a safe building, simply striving for the interests of the order, instead of the interests of Rock Island, would have been content to have the suitable building erected at Fulton. Then the injunction would have done no harm and the valuable records would be just as secure in a safe building in Fulton as in the same kind of a building at Rock Island."

Should Now Act Honorably.

It seems difficult for the Fulton representative to comprehend the folly of its further protest against the will of the order. No one has blamed the Fulton people for making every honorable effort to retain the Woodman office there. But it has reached that stage now where further remonstrance and further effort to thwart the purpose of the great order cannot be called honorable manly. At the last meeting of the head camp Fulton entered into competition with other rival cities for the head office. It stood on its rights, technical, sentimental, real or imaginary, but stood up with the other cities upon a fair test of merit. Like Peoria and Decatur, it was defeated. Rock Island was on the far square issue and by every rule of honor and fair dealing selected. Fulton should have abided by the consequences. To seek now to again defeat the order's decree would be as unworthy as it would be idle. The head offices are coming to Rock Island and all talk about what the order might have done with reference to building at Fulton had it been disposed, is but visionary and is irrelevant entirely.

The Journal's effort to console itself with the thought that it is a matter of indifference to the 140,000 members of the fraternity where the office is situated is not borne out by the facts. The subject about which the chief interest centered in the recent head camp meeting was the removal of the head office, and many delegates were there under instructions from their camps to vote for removal, while the vote indicated that none of them were in serious doubt as to how the order felt. The action on the head office removal is completely reflects the will and desire of the order as any action taken at Madison, and all conjectures to the contrary, or in fact of any other nature, are childish.

The Child That Became Grown.

By way of peroration the Journal says: "The head office has been in Fulton since the Modern Woodmen existed and the order has grown like a green bay tree. The citizens of Fulton and many Woodmen believe it will continue to grow just as well with the head office in Fulton as it will with the head office in Rock Island, or any other city. The position taken by the citizens and Woodmen of Fulton who procured the injunction was recently forcibly delineated by a Woodman who said: 'In Fulton the child was born. In Fulton he has grown to a lusty youngster, and we do not propose to stand idly by and see him kidnapped by a few schemers and taken to Rock Island.'"

City Attorney Haas neatly answered this "child" talk in his speech in Market square on the return of the Rock Island delegation from Madison, when he advanced the logic that we might as well say that, because a child was born in a village and had developed there, it should be kept there all its life, despite the best interests and opportunities for its future by going to a larger place. No matter what the advantages offered elsewhere it must not put foot out of its native land, because the people who had seen it all its life did not wish to have it go. They were proud of it, but selfish, and preferred to have it take chances on continuing its career among them than go elsewhere according to its own best judgment.

It might also be added for the information of the Journal that we are told in holy writ that while as a child we may do as a child, but when we become men we should put away childish things.

A FALSE NOTION.

The Moline Meetings to Proscribe Rock Island Workingmen.

For a short time meetings have been held in Moline by workingmen belonging there to proscribe, if possible, fellow workingmen residing in Rock Island. It is gratifying to know that the sentiment predominating in these gatherings does not obtain in Moline generally. The spirit of clannishness so voiced does not bear the endorsement of people who appreciate and understand the situation.

Rock Island Capital's Share.

The people in Moline who know whereof they speak have no disposition to make issue against Rock Island, whose capital owns one or two of the biggest factories there and is interested in more or less extent in almost every industry there, together with bank stock and other influences which contribute to Moline's industrial and mercantile importance. From a conservative standpoint it is not to be expected that the object of the recent meetings will be attained in any particular. It is too narrow-minded and too short-sighted.

Early Morning Wedding.

This morning at 6:30 was solemnized the marriage of Standfield H. Keeney, of Terre Haute, Ind., and Miss Elizabeth Grace Kemble, the event occurring at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Kemble, on Seventeenth street. In the presence of the family circle the ceremony was performed by Rev. Ira Kemble, of Muscatine, an uncle of the bride. A wedding breakfast was served and the couple departed for their home at Terre Haute, where the groom is now located. The bride is a daughter of one of the city's best known and respected families, an accomplished and winsome lady of lovable and modest manners, and her hosts of admirers will shower upon herself and husband all the blessings of a happy and prosperous life.

Mr. Keeney formerly resided at Crawfordville, where through industry and business capability he established a lucrative drug business. He removed to Terre Haute a few years ago to accept an important federal position under President Cleveland which he is now filling.

The Southern league championship has been captured by the Nashville, with whom our own Paddy Lynch finished the season. Paddy may get excused around considerably in a season, but he generally ends up with a flag-enticing team. Lynch will probably roll snow balls with us for a while at least this winter.

Jacksonville Courier: "Mont. McFarland, the Whitehall base ball 'phenom,' has signed with Anson's Chicago team to play the balance of the season. McFarland has been moving toward the top very rapidly."

The high school organized a ball club last evening, with Joe Rosenfield manager, and Jerome Appelquist secretary and treasurer. The boys will commence training for the fall season and are open to all engagements.

Society Serape.

Pike county has a scandal in social circles. W. W. Scobley is a young man of wealthy parentage and always stood high in the community until he suddenly departed recently to evade a marriage with a young lady whose confidence he had betrayed. His victim also moved in Pike county prominence. The lady's parents vowed to make him fulfill his obligations, and notified the authorities of surrounding counties. Sunday evening Bailiff Hull located the much-desired gentleman in Muscatine, and brought him to Rock Island. Last evening Sheriff Knox, of Pike county, came here and returned with young Scobley to face the music.
