Democratic Ticket.

For Judge of the Supreme Court from the Sixth Judicial District.
AARON A. WOLFFENBERGER, of Berlin, Ill.

THE Monmouth Review will be 40 years old Dec. 28. The Review keeps its age well.

THE Boston republicans are still wondering what struck them. The total vote was the largest ever cast in that city—76,175—and the democratic majority was 4,257—a clear democratic gain of over 7,000.

A BULLETIN issued by the Illinois department of agriculture puts the corn crop of this state this year at 267,425,000 bushels, an average of 39 bushels to the acre. At the present price of corn, about 25 cents a bushel, the crop is worth nearly $67,000,000.

A REPUBLICAN newspaper says that Mr. Bayard in his Edinburgh address assailed "with the bitterness of a frantic political partisan the policy which the American people approved when they elected the present congress." Mr. Bayard explained and defended the policy which the American people approved when they repudiated the McKinley tariff in 1890 and when they elected the present national administration, of which Ambassador Bayard is an appointee. And the American people are quite likely to get around to the same policy in 1896.—Chicago Chronicle.

THERE are 238 lawyers in congress, 41 farmers, 27 editors, 28 manufacturers, one railroad manager, two steamboat owners, 14 teachers and college professors, 25 bankers, 20 merchants, one house-builder, three clergymen, seven who say they are "engaged in business," eight doctors, one architect, one music teacher, one owner of oil wells, five miners, two insurance agents, one theatre manager, one manufacturer of ice, three civil engineers, nine lumbermen, two owners of stone quarries, two real estate agents, one pharmacist and one steamship captain.

Tanner's Iron Will.
Freeport Bulletin.

It is remarkable how John R. Tanner's political machine of bossism seems to control the republican party. It may be doubted whether such a man who has so little education and general culture could in any other nation or indeed in any earlier era of this nation become so complete a master of a political organization except it be a party of bossism. The best republicans in the state feel humiliated by Tanner's candidacy. This grand state of Illinois will never call such a man to the governor's chair, even though he and his forces by chicanery and fraud gain a victory in the state convention.

Artificial Teeth.
"Where do false teeth come from?" said a well known bone importer, echoing a question that a Times reporter had put to him. "Wouldn't you like to know? Most people, I imagine, think that all the false teeth are made from ivory. That is quite a mistaken idea, as the majority of false teeth are now made from anything but ivory. We import large quantities of walrus tusks for no other purpose than that they may be made into false teeth."

"You go into some big dental establishment where teeth are made, and you will doubtless find the remains of walrus tusks lying around, and, indeed, a highly polished tooth made from a walrus tusk is just as handsome, although not so lasting, as an ivory one. A dentist once came to me for an elephant's tusk, from which a good set of teeth might be made for a wealthy client of his. He was to spare no expense. I found him a tusk, which, being an especially good one, I sold for $12.50 a pound, the usual price being from $2.50 to $3.50 per pound. I afterward learned that the dentist made $500 out of that set of teeth.

"Of course it would be impossible for dentists to sell teeth so cheaply as they do now if the teeth were all made from elephants' tusks. As a matter of fact, so many people are now wearing false teeth that I doubt if the ivory suitable for this purpose could ever be found. I am told that a good many false teeth are now being made from vegetable ivory, ivoryine, etc. If so, the price of teeth must naturally go down, and in time the toothless one will probably be able to replenish his mouth for an absurdly low sum. A set of teeth for $1.25," concluded the dealer, laughing, "would create a boom in false teeth."—Philadelphia Times.

The English Great Bread Eaters.

"Bread is one article of food that is cheaper in England and Scotland than in this country," said Mr. John Stephenson of Glasgow. Mr. Stephenson and a brother conduct bakery establishments in Glasgow and London, the largest, perhaps, in the world, certainly the largest in Europe. "The people on our side," he continued, "eat more bread than do the citizens of America, and not so much meat or vegetables, which are dearer in Great Britain than in this country. We make two pound loaves of square form, the weight of which must be stamped on each loaf, and the law against light-weight bread is very rigid. Every week we consume 3,500 barrels of flour, the biggest part of which comes from the United States. Of late we have been getting a good deal of Argentine wheat and a little from Australia. About the best wheat in the world is grown in Hungary, but of that there is no great quantity imported into England."—Washington Post.

The Lawyer's Two Cigars.

A down east lawyer had a tough case on hand at a recent term of court, and before it came on laid his forefinger to his nose and evolved an idea. The presiding judge loved a good cigar, and the lawyer's happy thought was to propitiate him and make him friendly to his case by treating him to the best the market afforded. The disciple of Blackstone was not in the habit of smoking good cigars himself, so when he bought a 25 center to offer the court he bought a cheroot for his own use. Armed with these, he sauntered into the judge's room, and after a little chat passed out a cigar, asking the judge if he smoked. The court accepted gracefully, but before many whiffs were drawn the horrified lawyer discovered he had given the judge the cheroot and was puffing the Havana himself. The judge politely tried to look pleased as the smoking proceeded, but the lawyer has since made no attempt to bribe the court.—Lewis-ton Journal.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results are almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding a gripple. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Hartz & Ulmeyer's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Marriage by Proxy.

In Holland, says a Scotch paper, marriage by proxy is allowed. This is the so-called "marriage by the glove," and is usually put in practice by a Dutchman who is sojourning abroad and, wanting a wife, is too poor or too far off to return home for one. In such a case he writes home to a lawyer, who selects one conformable to the requirements of his client. If the gentleman approves, he next sends the lawyer a soiled left hand glove and a power of attorney, which settles the business. A friend marries the woman by proxy, and she is thereafter promptly shipped off to her new home.

Broke Out With Boils.

"I had boils break out on my arms and shoulders and I suffered very much in moving about. I saw Hood's Sarsaparilla so highly recommended that I thought I would give it a trial, and after I had taken one bottle I felt very much relieved and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured." J. Eugene, East Carondelet, Ill.

Hood's pills cure all liver ills.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

A NEW KIND OF DRUNKARD.

A Temperance Advocate Gets Delirium Tremens From Drinking Coffee.

"Delirium tremens! Not a single symptom lacking." Such was the doctor's verdict in the case of Mrs. Sarah Murdock of Fort Dodge, Ia. "But I swear to you, doctor," exclaimed a relative of Widow Murdock, as the woman's screams died away to hoarse, shuddering moans, "it must be something else—a fit of some kind—anything but delirium tremens. I know—we all know—that the poor lady never tastes alcohol." "My dear sir," began the doctor, with an impatient shrug of his shoulders. "Tell you what it is," piped an old woman who had been Mrs. Murdock's particular crony for years, "it's coffee. That's all. Ever since her husband died, poor dear—and a fine man he was, I'd have you know—Sarah has been drinking a powerful lot of coffee. It sort of eased her trouble at first, and after a time she found she couldn't get along without it. So the habit stuck to her, and she kept making it stronger and stronger and drinking more and more of it."

MRS. SARAH MURDOCK.

"That's true," chimed in a number of those present, who were familiar with Mrs. Murdock's habits.

"You can stake your life it ain't run, doctor," added a man with long hair. "She hated the sight of it. She's always been an active temperance worker, and only last week she promised to deliver an address on 'Run, the Curse of Civilization.'"

"How many cups of coffee would she drink in a day?" asked Dr. Nichola.

"It might be 20 and it might be 40. And strong—strong alive!"

"And it didn't make her feel bad?"

"It did lately, doc. She found she wanted more of it all the time. Her hands used to shake, and she complained that her eyes were getting queer like."

The doctor called in assistance, and consultations were held and experiments made. It was observed that during the intervals of the patient's delirium she craved more and more coffee. When coffee was administered to her, she exhibited precisely the symptoms shown by an ordinary delirium tremens patient who is given whisky. Mrs. Murdock had no desire for alcohol at all, and refused to touch it.

She was established on unimpeachable evidence that Mrs. Murdock had many times striven to break herself of the coffee habit without success, and that on the occasion preceding her alarming outbreak she had dispensed with the beverage for two whole days, suffering acutely meanwhile.

And so the doctors confessed themselves beaten, and incidentally rehabilitated Widow Murdock's character among her temperance friends. She has recovered from her attack now and is striving to wean herself from her addiction to Mocha and Java by less drastic means.

A CLERICAL UNDERTAKER.

Rev. William S. Clark Preaches the Funeral Sermon and Buries the Corpse.

"So last Sunday I resigned, and in the evening I preached a sermon, in which I censured them in the strongest terms. I took my text from Romans xiii, 9, 'Let love be without dissimulation.' I reproached them for their gossiping and backbiting. I fear that I did not have much love in my heart for them at that time, although I wished them well and hope that they may secure some one to minister to them. Since then I have been devoting all the time to my business. I preach the funeral sermon when requested to do so as well as attend to my work as an undertaker. I have had four funerals since I began, and they have been 'jubs' where I collected the money at once."

Thus spoke Rev. William S. Clark of Guttenberg, N. J., to a New York reporter. He had just resigned the pastorate of the Guttenberg Congregational church because the members of the church objected to his mingling the undertaking business with his pastoral duties. The church paid him the munificent sum of $58.25 a year, and the reverend gentleman claimed that he must live, even if he had to bury his congregation.

Rev. Mr. Clark's personal appearance befits his trade. He has a wealth of side whiskers and a raven long and solemn. His whiskers and his hair are very black, his cheeks are as pale as his white necktie. He talks in a monotone, and there is something so awe compelling in his manner that men forget all things worldly and frivolous when they look at him.

A Dog's Suicide.

In Biddford, Me., they tell the tale of a dog that killed himself. First he jumped from a height upon some rocks. Still living, he dragged his maimed body to the water and drowned himself.

Where Women Break Horses.
