gether more becoming than the plan so many years in vogue here of knowing the buildings purely by number. While it is a matter largely of sentiment, Supt. Young well says, "is not most of what we have that is best and beautiful in life from the sentiment that folfills our highest and holiest inspirations?" And the su-perintendent advances the proper theory—the knowing of the building by name, instead of meaningless numbers, cannot fail to have good effect The names us so far agreed upon by the various building are as

Honor the Former Superintendent. An incident particularly pleasing to Supt. Young was the manifest purpose of two of the buildings to restly across the street from his hom . and church, a building always before his eyes, and while it has been modernized and enlarged since Mr. Kemble left Rock Island, the associations which were close to his heart will doubtless ever cling about it. Under these circumstances No. 6 gracefully yielded to No. 3. No. 6 thereupon chose the name of Irving. tled as between Grant and Garfield, with a likelihood that the first mentioned name will be selected. No. 8 has made a happy choice in christening itself after the father of American education, and No. 4, the central building, is most appro-priately named after Illinois' greatest citizen, the martyred president, where his bust has for some time adorned the main corridor of the building. The other names all speak for themselves. Indeed Supt. Young may view the result of the adoption of his ideas with pride and entisfaction.
