Story of Oom Paul's Postmaster.

When Isaac Van Alphen, the postmaster general of the Transvaal and a warm friend of "Oom Paul" was in this country in attendance on the postal congress, he had an amusing experience which he still likes to refer to. Walking arm in arm with a friend near the Pennsylvania station in Baltimore one day, the distinguished foreigner was approached by a policeman, who announced that Van Alphen had been ordered to appear before the coroner to act as a juror.

"By what authority do you ask this?"

"By the authority of the state of Maryland," said Van Alphen, the humor of the situation breaking upon him.

"You acknowledge no such authority?" repeated the policeman with amazement. "What do you mean?"

"Well," answered Mr. Van Alphen nonchalantly, "I am a resident of Pretoria in the south African republic, and I don't acknowledge the authority of the state of Maryland."
"Pretoria, south African republic!" echoed the policeman, puzzled for a moment, but finally he begged Mr. Van Alphen's pardon and walked away saying, audibly, "Well, you're about the whitest 'coon' I ever saw."
