FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25.

The statement that "the United States paid Spain $20,000,000 for the option on a 200-year war" when it bought the Philippines seems to be pretty close to the truth. But then another battle has been fought, and war is probably ended again.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB, president of the United States steel corporation, has approved of the plans for a school building at Weatherly, Pa., for which he will provide the funds. The contract has been awarded. The building will represent an outlay of about $100,000.

COL. W. C. P. BRECKENRIDGE has not become a professor in Center university, Danville, Ky. The office of dean of the faculty of the law department was offered to Ex-Congressman Clifton R. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, but whether he will accept it is not yet known.

It is reported from Washington that Gen. Miles, in his annual report, will have something to say in opposition to the army canteen. As he was one of the officers to recommend the establishment of the canteen and has since strongly defended it, his position now is something of a surprise.

R. W. PATTERSON, editor of the Chicago Tribune, is now constructing a magnificent mansion on Du Pont Circle in Washington. Beriah Wilkins, of the Washington Post, has just finished a new white marble residence in the same city that is a veritable dream. Some editors are lucky enough to get their reward in this world, but not many.

The German expedition investigation of the site of ancient Babylon has discovered the throne room of the great King Nebuchadnezzar, an enormous place about 600 feet broad and 170 feet long, the entrance immediately opposite the alcove in which the throne stood. On each side of the throne on the north side of the hall are richly colored architectural adornments, said to be of great value for the study of the history of art.

CZOLGOSZ'S FINISH.
Within a very few days Czolgosz will be a thing of the past. An injured people will then be glad to hear that the representative of anarchy and lawlessness who struck down their president and struck a blow at the cause of liberty and honor has paid the extreme penalty. Never has there been a more welcome visitor among the American people than will be the act which will result in the earthly finale of this brute for whom the electric chair now yearns. As time passes and the hours for the execution of this wretch approach, the name of the prisoner becomes more odious to the people. His attitude even when behind the bars is such as to make every decent man and patriot despise him more, if such be possible.

That the horror of his crime appeals to him not even in the slightest degree and causes not the least repentance, makes him more wretched in the eyes of man. Electroconvulsion, horrible as is such a death, is all too good for this creature in human form. But the law has done its worst—and its best—and the people, though sorely injured, are willing to abide by the law. For Czolgosz there is no sympathy. For him no honorable hand or voice is lifted. He has forfeited every claim to earth or the consideration of the inhabitants of it.

SCHLEY.
The more testimony there is presented in the Schley case, the more clearly it appears that the inveterate sea fighter is entitled to the credit for the victory, and that Sampson and his associates have been trying to blacken his reputation in order to ruin his just credit. To read the virulent assaults that have been made on him for weeks past by various newspapers and naval authorities one might suppose that he had committed some awful blunder in his tactics as well as displaying cowardice, but when the facts are presented it is apparent that he handled his vessel and his fleet like a master.

The much complained-of "loop" of the Brooklyn brought her into action in the most advantageous manner and she evidently inflicted the greatest possible damage on the enemy while suffering the least possible damage herself, and that is the finest record that can be made by any naval commander. Moreover the evidence fully bears out the statement of the officers who were near him that his conduct and bearing were all that could be desired in any man, and would serve as models for any officer in like situation. Not only were the directions for the fighting given with coolness and intelligence, but all the little events of the affair go to show how completely the admiral was at himself and how thorough was his grasp of the situation. For example, when his officers were about to throw the body of the overboard, which would have been the proper course if there were danger of a bloody conflict, in which corpses might obstruct the working of the ship, he was cool enough to see that this contingency would not arrive, and to preserve the body of the hero for christian burial.

That thoughtful action shows how completely he understood the situation and himself at the hour when he was winning one of the greatest naval victories of all time. The nation may, the Indianapolis Sentinel declares, safely doff hats to Admiral Schley.

Modern Advertising.
A little over half a century ago, it was considered beneath the dignity of many substantial concerns to advertise beyond the insertion in the newspapers of an occasional business card. Some of the experiences of that time show how recently advertising, as we know it, has developed.

A retail hardware house in an eastern city once found itself possessed of ten times the number of articles of a certain kind that it had intended to buy. As they had been ordered especially for a new hotel and were of a peculiar design, there seemed to be no way of disposing of them except at a merely nominal sum.

One of the younger men connected with the concern offered to "move them" at a fair price provided he be permitted to advertise. The suggestion encountered much opposition, but finally a small sum was set apart to carry it out. The advertisement was drafted in an attractive way, and the people soon began to buy the new article. Finally the house was obliged to send to the manufacturers for more. When the next season's trade opened, the member of the firm who had most opposed the experiment whispered to the young man that he had better write out a few notices "and put them in the papers."

From such beginnings the advertising practice has come. Thousands of dollars are now spent not only in advertising itself, but in devising clever catch words, ingenious phrases and illustrations which will stick in the memory of the reader as well as new general methods.—Youth's Companion.

English Quail Stew.

For four plump quails provide four oysters, four tablespoonsful of butter, three large cups of ox tail soup or rich stock, two small glasses of port or madeira, two tablespoonsful of onion vinegar, the same of India relish and mushroom catchup, celery salt, white pepper and four slices of crisp, brown toast. Leave the quails whole, simply opening down the breast. Put the butter in a frying pan over a hot fire and when brown lay the quails in the pan. Cover and cook ten minutes. Turn and cook ten minutes more. When browned on both sides, add the soup or stock, wine, catchup and relish. When it boils again, add celery salt and pepper to season and ticken with a tablespoonful of flour wet up in cold water. Stir it gradually until it boils. Turn each quail on its back and insert an oyster. Cook five minutes and serve on slices of toast with the liquid poured over all.

A Great Storm Wave.

A great storm wave is peculiar to cyclones. At the center of the disturbance the mercury in a good barometer may be lower by three inches than that in a similar instrument on the verge of the cyclone. This is owing to the diminution of atmospheric pressure consequent on the rotation of the air wheel, and as nature abhors a vacuum the sea in the vortex rises above its usual level, and its equilibrium is restored. The storm wave advances with the hurricane and rolls in upon the low land like a solid wall. In the backward cyclone of 1876 the storm wave covered the head of the eastern end of the Galapagos delta at heights varying from ten to forty-five feet, as measured by marks on the trees. One hundred thousand lives were lost on this occasion.—Chambers' Journal.

They Found the Fall.

During a spell of particularly hot weather a well known baronet came across the water and engaged on a job on his estate. One of them remarked, as workmen not infrequently do, on the dryness of the job. The heat had perhaps extended itself to the baronet's temper. At any rate, he turned away, with the reply: "If you are thirsty, you know where the well is. You will find a pal there."

Thinking over his remark a little later, it flashed across the baronet's mind that he had given orders for three bottles of champagne to be put into the hall and lowered into the well to cool the water. He hastened to the well and discovered—three empty bottles! What he said this time is not reported.—London Truth.

Sin Promoters.

His satanic majesty announced that he intended taking a much-needed vacation.

Some surprise being expressed at this action, he explained: "Well, I've fixed things so that the trolley motorman will refuse to stop for passengers when they are in a hurry, and I guess that will keep things going until I return."—Baltimore American.

The Way of the World.

Horton—You used to think Bember was a great friend of yours. I notice you never offers to help you now that you need him.

Shobel—Not, but, then, you must not forget how free he was to offer me assistance when I didn't need it.—Boston Transcript.

CONSUMPTION

is, by no means, the dreadful disease it is thought to be—in the beginning.

The trouble is: you don't know you've got it; you don't believe it; you won't believe it—till you are forced to. Then it is dangerous.

Don't be afraid; but attend to it quick—you can do it yourself, and at home.

Take Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil, and live carefully every way.

This is sound doctrine, whatever you may think or be told; and, if heeded, will save life.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

MAGIC OF THE WOODS.

What Hunters Say About the Spell of an Otter's Eyes.

By the Adirondack woodsmen along the banks of the West Canada creek the otter is regarded as quite as shy as the fox, inasmuch as it is very difficult to trap in any kind of contrivance. There are fewer stories about the creature's intelligence, as the animals are scarce and have not been so much observed as have the foxes.

There has been, and probably is, an otter that for six years anyhow, and perhaps longer, has traveled down the creek winter and summer about every two weeks. In the winter it left a running, sliding trail in the snow on the ice, seldom leaving the creek bed to go into a cove or overland for a dozen or 15 rods. In summer weather it fished and caught frogs in the coves of the flats. A good many shots have been fired at it and a lot of traps set for it, but none was ever successful. It is believed by woodsmen that the otters, like the hell divers, loons, mink and others, dodge shot or ball. I saw this otter once some years ago in the summer time, and while only one feature of the animal is distinct in my mind, I do not recollect any other wild animal so well. The body is a mere glimmer of black in waving sedge grass. Even the head is a burly, rusty gray shadow, a sort of background for the two eyes.

I have seen deer when they were standing still looking at me, have looked at squirrels, rabbits, partridges, foxes and other wild animals alarmed by my presence, but their forms, rather than their eyes, are more or less distinct. In fact, the eyes seem secondary in the mind pictures, except in the case of the otter. It seems to me that the otter did not merely look at me; it was more as if it looked into me, the same as the sensation one has when some one—a man or woman—"reads your inmost thoughts." These eyes were large and full rounded, dark brown with a shimmer of light gray skating across and around the center, and with a lively beauty as different from the dead beauty of a deer's full eye. It sent precisely such chills up and down my back as dark human eyes have done. It was a peculiar, particular look, and not the general gaze of a bird or other animal. The otter, I think, hypnotized me, for I did not shoot, although my impression is that we looked at one another for a minute or two.—Forest and Stream.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN IN CHINA.

He Would Have Been Likely to Get Himself into Trouble.

One dark evening I was returning home from a call on one of our English neighbors in Taiyuanfu. When not far from our compound, the road crossed an open space of several acres in extent. As I was finding my way along by the rather dim light of a Chinese lantern I nearly stumbled over the body of a man who had fallen by the way. My first impulse was to take hold of the person and ascertain if help was needed, but for some reason I did not, but hurried home to get aid. Mr. X. was still with us, and on hearing my statement said: "Yes, I know. The man is dead, and it is fortunate that you did not attempt to touch the body. Should we now try to remove it or even to go to it we should not doubt be seen and at once suspicion would attach itself to us, and none could tell the consequences. We might cause a riot before morning."

It should be said that this suspicion would not have been because we were foreigners, for a native under similar circumstances would likewise have run the risk of being charged with the murder. The good Samaritan would have fared hardly in China, or most likely would have been suspected of doing the kind deed for some ultimate gain, while the priest and the Levite would have been accounted not hard hearted, but prudent.—Professor C. M. Cady in Century.
