

Scratch your head If you have Dandruff or Falling Hair

And then notice the exfoliation matter gathered under your finger nails. Is this cleanly? Or healthy? You surely would not think so if you were to look at it through a magnifying glass; this matter when highly magnified much resembles a working mass of insects; these creatures absorb the nutriment or the life-sap of the scalp, causing the scalp to become dry and feverish, resulting in the loss of hair and the accumulation of dandruff.

DANDERINE

works wonders in such cases. It thoroughly eradicates and removes all traces of scalp bacteria. It renders the scalp clean, fresh and wholesome; such scalps produce hair, and a satisfactory amount of it.

FREE To show how quickly it acts in all disorders of the hair and scalp, such as hair falling, stagnated growth, etc., we will send a large sample free by return mail to anyone who sends us this advertisement with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage. (At all druggists in three sizes 25c., 50c. and $1.00.)

KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., CHICAGO.

DR. LOUIS E. COOK ENDORSES DANDERINE.

The Knowlton Danderine Co., Chicago, Ill. Dear Sirs—Your company surely has a very good thing in Danderine. It has done my scalp wonders of good and effectually cured the itching causing dandruff and falling hair. I have used many so-called dandruff cures and hair tonics to my disgust, but since using Danderine I can wear a black or blue coat without using a brush every eighth day. Wishing you success, I remain, Yours respectfully, LOUIS E. COOK, M. D.

Gray Hairs a Grime?

Thousands of men and women are turned out of positions and many fail to secure situations because their gray hairs make them look old. This need not be.

HAIR-HEALTH makes age halt and keeps thousands in employment because it takes years from their apparent age. Hair-Health will positively restore gray, faded or bleached hair to its youthful color. It is not a dye. Its use cannot be detected. Equally good for men and women.

At forty my hair and mustache began turning gray. A friend on my road told his place because his gray hair made him look old. He used Hair-Health and his hair turned black. I have the same dark brown curly hair that I had at 21, and no one suspects it. In a recent discharge of employees I held my position, although many younger than myself, whose only fault was their gray hair, were dismissed. I have you to thank for my position. N. J. RATTANAKO KOLEKOV.

HAIR-HEALTH is sold by leading druggists everywhere. Sent by express, prepaid, in plain sealed package, by return mail, 25c. per bottle. 50c. per 3 bottles. Also a nice cake Hair-Health Medicated Soap, best soap for toilet, bath, skin and hair. All on receipt of ten cents and this ad.

ence only by its benefactions; under a social order so purely democratic that classes can not exist in it affording opportunities so universal that even conditions are as changing as the winds, where the laborer of today is the capitalist of tomorrow; under laws which are the result of ages of evolution, so uniform and so beneficent that the president has just the same rights and privileges as the artisan; we see the same hellish growth of hatred and murder which dogged equally the footsteps of benevolent monarchs and bloodstained despots. How many countries can join with us in the community of a kindred sorrow! I will not speak of those distant regions where assassination enters into the daily life of government. But among the nations bound to us by the ties of familiar intercourse—who can forget that wise and mild autocrat who had earned the proud title of Liberator? That enlightened and magnanimous citizen whom France still mourns? That brave and chivalrous king of Italy who lived only for his people? and, saddest of all, that lovely and sorrowing empress, whose harmless life could hardly have excited the animosity of a demon. Against that devilish spirit nothing prevails—neither virtue nor patriotism, nor age, nor youth, nor conscience, nor pity. We can not even say that education is a sufficient safeguard against this baleful evil—for most of the wretches whose crimes have so shocked humanity in recent years are men not unlettered, who have gone from the common schools, through murder to the scaffold.

Our minds cannot discern the origin nor conceive the extent of wickedness so perverse and so cruel; but this does not exempt us from the duties of trying to control and counteract it. This problem of anarchy is dark and intricate, but it ought to be within the compass of democratic government—although no sane mind can fathom the mystery of these untracked and orbitless natures—to guard against their aberrations, to take away from them the hope of escape, the long luxury of scandalous days in court, the unwholesome sympathy of hysterical degenerates, and so by degrees to make the crime not worth committing, even to these abnormal and distorted souls.

It would be presumptuous for me in this presence to suggest the details of remedial legislation for a malady so malignant. That task may safely be left to the skill and patience of the national congress, which has never been found unequal to any such emergency. The country believes that the memory of these three murdered comrades of yours—all of whose voices still haunt these walls—will be a sufficient inspiration to enable you to solve even this abstruse and painful problem, which has dimmed so many pages of history with blood and with tears.

A Typically American Life.

The life of William McKinley was, from his birth to his death, typically American. There is no environment, I should say, anywhere else in the world which could produce just such a character. He was born into that way of life which elsewhere is called the middle class, but which in this country is so nearly universal as to make of other classes an almost negligible quantity. He was neither rich nor poor—neither proud nor humble; he knew no hunger, he was not sure of satisfying; no luxury which could enervate mind or body. His parents were sober, God-fearing people, intelligent and upright; without pretensions and without humility. He grew up in the company of boys like himself; wholesome, honest, self-respecting. They looked down on nobody; they never felt it possible they could be looked down upon. Their houses were the homes of probity, piety, patriotism. They learned in the admirable school readers of fifty years ago the lessons of heroic and splendid life, which have come down from the past. They read in their weekly newspapers the story of the world's progress, in which they were eager to take part, and of the sins and wrongs of civilization, with which they burned to do battle. It was a serious and thoughtful time. The boys of that day felt dimly, but deeply, that days of sharp struggle and high achievement were before them. They looked at life with the wondering yet resolute eyes of a young esquire in his vigil of arms. They felt a time was coming when to them should be addressed the stern admonitions of the apostle: "Quit you like men; be strong."

At seventeen years of age William McKinley heard the call of his country. He was the sort of youth to whom a military life in ordinary times would possess no attractions. His nature was far different from that of the ordinary soldier. He had other dreams of life, its prizes and pleasures, than that of marches and battles. But to his mind there was no choice or question. The banner floating in the morning breeze was the beckoning gesture of his country. The thrilling notes of the trumpet called him—him and none other—in to the ranks. He was of the stuff of which good soldiers are made. Had he been ten years older he would have entered at the head of a company and come out at the head of a division. He did what he could. He enlisted as a private; he learned to obey. His serious, sensible ways; his prompt, alert efficiency soon attracted the attention of his superiors. He was so faithful in little things that they gave him more and more to do. He was untiring in camp and on the march; swift, cool and fearless in fight. He left the army with field rank when the war ended, brevetted by President Lincoln for gallantry in battle.

William McKinley gladly laid down his sword and betook himself to his books. He quickly made up the time lost in soldiering. He was admitted to the bar and settled down to practice—a brevetted veteran of twenty-four—in the quiet town of Canton, now and henceforward forever famous as the scene of his life and his place of sepulchre. Here many blessings awaited him. High repute, professional success and a domestic affection so pure, so devoted and stainless that future poets, seeking an ideal of Christian marriage, will find in it a theme worthy of their songs.

began His Public Career. In 1876 he began, by an election to congress, his political career. Thereafter for fourteen years this chamber was his home. Following the natural bent of his mind, he devoted himself to questions of finance and revenue, to the essentials of the national housekeeping. He took high rank in the house from the beginning. A year after he left congress he was made governor of Ohio and two years later he was reelected, each time by majorities unhopd for and over-whelming. He came to fill space in the public eye which obscured a great portion of the field of vision. In two national conventions the presidency seemed within his reach. But he had gone there in the interests of others and his honor forbade any dalliance with temptation. So his way was my—delivered with a tone and gesture there was no denying. His hour was not yet come. There was, however, no long delay. He became, from year to year, the most prominent politician and orator in the country. Passionately devoted to the principles of the party, he was always ready to do anything, to go anywhere, to proclaim his ideas and to support its candidates. For several months before the republican national convention met in 1896, it was evident to all who had eyes to see that Mr. McKinley was the only probable candidate of his party. Other names were mentioned, of the highest rank in ability, character and popularity; they were supported by powerful combination, but the nomination of McKinley as against the field was inevitable. The campaign he made will be always memorable in our political annals.

When He Came to the Presidency. When he came to the presidency he confronted a situation of the utmost difficulty, which might well have appalled a man of less serene and tranquil self-confidence. A man either weak or rash, either irresolute or headstrong, might have brought ruin on himself and incalculable harm to the country. I believe that the verdict of history will be that he met all the grave questions with perfect valor and incomparable ability; that in grappling with them he rose to the full height of a great occasion in a manner which redounded to the lasting benefit of the country and to his own immortal honor. In dealing with foreign powers he will take rank with the greatest of our diplomatists. It was a world of which he had little special knowledge before coming to the presidency. But his marvelous adaptability was in nothing more remarkable than in the firm grasp he immediately displayed in international relations. By patience, by firmness, by sheer reasonableness, he improved our understanding with all the great powers of the world, and rightfully gained the blessing which belonged to the peace-makers of the nation in war and diplomacy are thrown in the shade by the vast economical developments which took place during Mr. McKinley's administration. The most extravagant promises made by the sanguine McKinley advocated five years ago and left out of sight by the sober facts, the "debtor nation" has become the chief "creditor nation." I will not waste your time by explaining that I do not invoke for any man the credit of the vast results. The captain can not claim that it is he who drives the mighty steamship over the tumbling billows of the trackless deep; but praise is justly due him if he has made the best of her tremendous powers, if he has read aright the currents of the stars, and we should be grateful, if in this hour of prodigious prosperity we should fail to remember that William McKinley with sublime faith foresaw it, with indomitable courage labored for it, put his whole heart and mind into the work of bringing it about; that it was his voice which, in the dark hours rang out, heralding the coming light, as over the twilight waters of the Nile the mystic cry of Memnon announced the dawn to Egypt waking from sleep.

Re-elected President. Mr. McKinley was reelected by an overwhelming majority. There had been little doubt of the result among well informed people, but when it was known a profound feeling of relief and renewal of trust were evident among the leaders of capital and of industry, not only in this country, but everywhere. They felt that the immediate future was secure and that trade and commerce might safely push forward in every field of effort and enterprise. He inspired universal confidence, which is the hallmark of the commercial system of the world. The obvious elements which enter into the fame of a public man are few and by no means reconcile. The man who fills a great station in a period of change, who leads his country successfully through a time of crisis; who by his power of persuading and controlling others has been able to command the best thought of his age, so as to lead his country in a moral or material condition in advance of where he found it—such a man's position in history is secure. If, in addition to this, his written or spoken words possess the subtle qualities which carry them far and lodge them in men's hearts; and, more than all, if his utterances and actions while informed with a lofty morality, are yet tinged with the glow of human sympathy, the fame of such a man will shine like a beacon through the mists of ages—an object of reverence, of imitation and of love. It should be to us an occasion of solemn pride that in the great crises of our history such a man was not denied us. The moral value to a nation of a renowned such as Washington's and Lincoln's and McKinley's is beyond all computation. No loftier ideal can be held up to the emulation of ingenious youth. With such examples we cannot be wholly ignoble. Grateful as we may be for what they did, let us be still more grateful for what they were. While our daily being, our public policies, still feel the influence of their work let us pray that in our spirits their lives may be voluble, calling us upward and onward.

Washington and Lincoln. There is not one of us but feels prouder of his native land because the august figure of Washington presided over its beginning; no one but vows it a tender love because Lincoln poured out his blood for it; no one but must feel his devotion for his country renewed and kindled when he remembers how McKinley loved, revered and served it, showed in his life how a citizen should live and in his last hour taught us how a gentleman could die.

At the conclusion of the speech the house adjourned. Smith's New Boat. Capt. Orrin Smith, of LeClaire, the well-known rapids pilot, one of the best posted rivermen on the Mississippi when he sees it, has ordered a good thing—thirty-five feet in length, with seven and a half-foot beam, driven by an eight horse-power engine. It will be fitted up in splendid style and make one of the most complete crafts of its kind on the upper river.

So Ends a Staunch Old Ship. Chicago, Feb. 27.—After years of rough service in the north Atlantic, the ship Progress, launched in New Bedford in 1879 for the whaling trade, has met an injudicious end by fire in the South Chicago harbor. The fire may have been wantonly started, as the old ship, which was an exhibit at the world's fair, had been pretty nearly wrecked by vandals before she burned.

Princess Arrested for Forgery. Cape Town, Feb. 27.—Princess Radziwilska was arrested on the charge of forgery, and admitted to bail in £1,000. The information was sworn to by Dr. Scholtz, who was supported by an affidavit from Cecil Rhodes, the charge being the forgery of the latter's name on promissory notes. The princess was remanded.

Smallpox Not Very Deadly. Springfield, Ill., Feb. 27.—The first death resulting from the numerous cases of smallpox which have appeared in this city was that of John J. Curtis, at the isolated hospital, Mrs. Mary Oberly, an aged woman, died at her home, and the city physician believes it possible that smallpox was the cause of the death.

Iowa Miners Talk Scale. Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 27.—Organization of the scale committee of the miners and mine operators has been effected, but only discussion as to the scale for the ensuing year has been indulged in. It is thought the negotiations may continue for a week.

Had to Conquer or Die. "I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C. "I had consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was wholly cured by seven bottles, and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in consumption, pneumonia, influenza and bronchitis; infallible for coughs, colds, asthma, hay fever, croup or whooping cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Hartz & Ulmever's drug store.

Favorite Nearly Everywhere. There is no more agonizing torture than piles. The constant itching and burning make life intolerable. No position is comfortable. The torture is unceasing. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures piles at once. For skin diseases, cuts, burns, bruises, all kinds of wounds, it is unequalled. J. S. Geill, St. Paul, Ark., says: "From 1865 I suffered with the protruding, bleeding piles and could find nothing to help me until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A few boxes completely cured me. Beware of counterfeits. For sale by all druggists.

Warning, Warning. Beware of substitutes offered by unscrupulous dealers in place of Foley's Honey and Tar, Foley's Kidney Cure and Banner Salve. Dishonest dealers for a little extra profit will try to palm off worthless preparations in place of these valuable medicines that have stood the test of years, and thus jeopardize the lives of their victims. For sale by all druggists. The Rock Island Home Improvement association meets this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Morris Rosenfield.

WARTS AND WEEDS.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN WISHING AND WORKING.

It is popularly believed that warts can be wished away. But the farmer who sat down and tried to clear his field by wishing the weeds away would soon find his crops gone. It takes working to get rid of weeds, and the man with the hoe must put in many a long day before he can take a well earned rest.

It is a singular fact that a great many people treat certain forms of disease as warts are said to be treated—by wishing. This is especially so in the case of coughs. "I wish this cough didn't bother me so," they say, "I wish my cough didn't keep me awake so much," and so on. It never seems to occur to them that it takes active measures to get rid of a cough; that a cough is like a weed, growing right along, and the longer it grows the deeper it strikes its roots.

If a man hears the alarm of a rattlesnake near by he'd jump aside at once to avoid the attack and then seek to find and destroy the dangerous reptile. The cough is a danger alarm as much more significant than the rattle of the snake as the disease it heralds is more dangerous than the snake bite.

FEW PEOPLE ARE KILLED by snake bites each year. Consumption slays its thousands and tens of thousands annually and it is the fatality of consumption which makes the cough that heralds it a danger signal to be promptly heeded. Don't wish the cough would stop. Stop it!

"I had long been a sufferer from chronic catarrh of the head," says Chas. T. Stone, Esq., of Whitford, Chester Co., Pa. "About last May it developed into a very disagreeable and hacking cough, with soreness and fullness of the chest. Doctors here pronounced it bronchitis. I tried several doctors and took different remedies without receiving any benefit whatever. I then consulted Dr. R. V. Pierce, in reference to my case. The first bottle of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' stopped the cough. I used several bottles, with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and have since had no symptom of a return of the cough."

"Last spring I had a severe attack of pneumonia which left me with a very bad cough, and also left my lungs in a very bad condition," writes John M. Russell, Esq., of Brent, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Terr. "I had no appetite and was so weak I could scarcely walk. My breath was all sore with running sores. I got two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which I believe saved my life. I can not express my gratitude to you. I am able now to do very good work."

The surest way to stop a cough is to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures obstinate and deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs and other diseases of the organs of respiration, which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption. In hundreds of cases a cure has been effected by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" after all other means and medicines had failed to benefit and doctors had said, "There is no hope."

DON'T GIVE UP HOPE. Let every one who suffers from respiratory and pulmonary diseases cherish hope until Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been given a fair and faithful trial. It always helps. It almost always cures. Ninety-eight per cent. of those who use "Golden Medical Discovery" find in it a perfect and permanent cure. Even the two per cent. acknowledge benefit and help from the use of the medicine.

"I want to say a word in favor of your grand medicine," writes Mrs. Priscilla Small, of Leechburg, Armstrong County, Pa. "About three years ago I was taken with a bad cough, night sweats, would take coughing spells and have to sit up in bed at night for an hour at a time. When I would walk up hill I could hardly breathe. I would get all stopped up in my throat. I did not try any doctor but I saw the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which cured me. Whenever people tell me they are sick I say to them, 'Why don't you get Dr. Pierce's medicine? It cured me and will cure others.'"

Persons suffering from chronic forms of disease are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All letters are held as private and their contents guarded by the same strict professional privacy observed by Dr. Pierce in personal consultations at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

This offer is not to be confounded with those offers of "free medical advice," which are made without any evidence of medical qualification or professional standing. For more than thirty years Dr. Pierce, as chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., assisted by his medical staff of nearly a score of physicians, has treated and cured many thousands of men and women who had been given up by friends and physicians as incurable.

Dr. Pierce's success has been founded on the fact that he cures so-called "incurables." There are thousands of men and women to-day, living in the enjoyment of perfect health, who bless the day when they wrote the first letter to Dr. Pierce. Who can wonder that these people are enthusiastic over Dr. Pierce's medicines and advice? Write to Dr. Pierce. It may be to you as it has been to many others—the first step to health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is a true body-building, deslivering, strength-giving medicine. Sometimes a dealer tempted by the little more profit paid by less meritorious preparations, attempts to sell a substitute medicine as "just as good" as Dr. Pierce's. The only way in which to get the cure you seek is to insist upon the medicine which cured others, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

A GOLD MINE FOR 21 CENTS. Who wouldn't jump at such a chance? Yet "wisdom is better than gold" and that mine of wisdom, Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 large pages (in paper-covers), is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. For the cloth-bound volume send 3 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Neuralgia

Omega Oil Neuralgia is a disease of the nerves, the doctors say. No one knows positively, because it is pretty hard to tell sometimes just what causes any kind of pain. One thing is certain, however. That is Omega Oil. It cures Neuralgia. It cures by putting the nerves to sleep. It is believed to be the only external cure known for Neuralgia. Every internal neuralgia medicine is strong and dangerous. Omega Oil cures from the outside, and there is no risk or danger in using it.
