No Breath to Waste.

"There is something about the atmosphere in the far north that makes men very quiet," said a man from up in the frozen region the other day. "The habit is acquired, I suppose, in tramping, when the altitude makes it necessary to use all your breath for breathing and leaves you none for talking. The result is that the men talk very little. They become almost speechless and will sit about at night, each thinking his own thoughts and allowing his fellows to do the same."

Great Gamblers.

In Europe and the new world the most inveterate gamblers are the Spaniards and their descendants. Among African tribes the Haussas run the Chinese very close, and there are some Kanaka tribes in the south seas who push the hazard of gambling beyond the grave and stake their very bones on a last throw of the cowrie shells, which they use as dice.

A Call Down.

"Pa, ain't you a director of the school board?"

"Yes, I am. What of it?"

"Well, teacher called me down to-day, and she was awfully impolite about it."

"Were you on the schoolhouse premises when she called you down?"

"Yes; I was on the roof."—Pittsburg Press.

Still Under the Spell.

Mrs. Powers—Hezekiah, if you were to live your life all over again and it came to the matter of choosing a wife do you think you would choose me?

Mr. Powers (submissively)—There's no doubt about it, Maria, provided you wanted me.—Richmond Dispatch.

All the actions and attitudes of children are graceful because they are the offspring of the moment, without affectation and free from all pretense.—Fussell.

St. Cathbert's Comb.

It was formerly the custom to bury combs with the dead, which clearly shows that these articles of the toilet had sacred significance in the eyes of the people of the old world. The comb buried with St. Cathbert and now preserved at Durham, England, is of ivory and measures 6 1/4 inches in length and 4 1/4 inches in width. It is ascribed to the eleventh century and has a double row of teeth, divided by a broad, plain band, perforated in the middle with a round hole for the finger.

Familiar Proverbs.

Mr. Churton Collins, in the New Liberal Review, traces the ancestry of some of our most familiar proverbs. "It is a wise child that knows his own father" is from the Odyssey; "Familiarity breeds contempt" is a saying of Plutarch; "Set a thief to catch a thief" is of Cato's cologne; "One swallow doesn't make a summer" is cited by Plato as already proverbial, as was "His bark is worse than his bite" when Quintus Curtius wrote it down.

The Reason.

Wife—I think these new women who affect masculine attire are ridiculous.

Husband—I'm sure there's no danger of your wearing men's clothes.

Wife—Well, I should say not.

Husband—No; men's clothes couldn't possibly be made expensive enough to suit you.—Philadelphia Press.

The Miser's Story.

"He lived very poorly."

"Yes, but he died rich."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Spent More Than $1,000.

W. W. Baker, of Plainview, Neb., writes: "My wife suffered from lung trouble for 15 years. She tried a number of doctors and spent over $1,000 without relief. She became very low and lost all hope. A friend recommended Foley's Honey and Tar, and, thanks to this great remedy, it saved her life. She enjoys better health than she has known in years." Refuse substitutes. All druggists.
