MUNGER OUT OF IT

Rock Island Man Withdraws as Candidate for Three-I League Presidency.

BUSY WITH PRIVATE AFFAIRS

Rockford Brings Forward Aspirant in Fred E. Sterling.

J. F. Munger has withdrawn as a candidate for the presidency of the Three-I baseball league, to which he would have in all probability been elected at the meeting of the league directors the coming month, announcing his private affairs require so much of his time that he would be unable, if chosen, to do justice to the position.

Mr. Munger's name was first mentioned in connection with the presidency at the annual meeting at St. Louis in November, and while others were brought forward by their friends the Rock Island man was assured of enough votes to elect. Mr. Munger consented to stand as a candidate on condition his private affairs could be satisfactorily arranged, and hence he makes the announcement of his withdrawal now that other aspirants may have an opportunity to get their wires working before the meeting to elect.

Others Who Would Like Place. Ald. Fred E. Sterling, of Rockford, is the latest to enter the race. Others who have been discussed are Belden Hill, of Cedar Rapids, and E. M. Holland, of Decatur.

M. H. Sexton, of this city, as is known, has declined to serve another year as the head of the Three-I, finding that he will have enough to keep him busy as president of the Western league. Mr. Sexton has been repeatedly urged to retain the presidency of the Three-I, but he states positively that he will not serve longer.

AN ALASKAN LANDSLIDE.

Rather Leisurely, But Eats Up Groves and Fills River Beds.

All the morning as we chatted spongy cottonwood, blew out our lungs over the fire and flipped water from the blankets a dull roar which we thought the river swelled by the rain was growing louder, louder. I said, "I guess a moraine choked pond on the glacier has broken through," and just then Jack stepped out from under the soaked tarpaulin.

"Look at that, Bobbie, look at that!" I heard him shouting. Outside he was pointing across the stream. A landslide was roaring down a gully from the very top of the Rainbow hills. It was a stupendous sight. We looked at it silently and then said, both at once, "I thought an avalanche was sudden."

This thing wiggled like a huge snake down a sheer 3,000 feet of rock. The roar seemed forever to increase. Dust or smoke trailed from this thing, and enormous boulders slipped solemnly from side to side of its path like pebbles. Water mingled with it, and when it reached the terrace it was a black stream, viscous and heavy.

Jack bet it wouldn't cross the half mile of flat to the river, but in a moment we saw boulders shooting out over the terrace and aspen groves fall as if laid with a scythe. A cancerous fan ate out to the bank and gravelly slopped over like lumpy paint, cutting deep channels down to the river—Outing.

A Place For His Boy. Sol Smith Russell, who saw humor in many commonplace happenings, used frequently to tell of meeting an old farmer at a railway station in a small New York town whose philosophy was particularly pat, even though his deductions were hardly complimentary to the actor, says the Chicago Tribune. Russell and his companion were awaiting the train when the old gentleman walked up, eyed the star of valente or two and asked:

"Be you the fellow that cut up capers at Purker's ball last night?"

"My company and I gave a performance there last evening, yes," replied Russell politely.

"I thought so. I was there, and I had to laugh sometimes. I wanted to tell you about my boy. He's just your way—ain't no good for work. Won't stick to anything, but wants to play clown and crack jokes all the time. He's got a job at the hub factory, but all he does is to keep the men a-laughin' when they ought to be workin'." You order take him 'long with your troupe, for he's the derdest fool I ever seen!"

Stewed Apples. To stew apples so each quarter is unbroken and so clear one can almost see through it is an art, and yet it is a simple thing to do if one only knows how. Peel tart apples very thin, cut them in quarters and remove the cores and seeds. As fast as you can peel and quarter them drop the apples in a saucepan in which you have already placed cold water to the depth of two inches. When the apples are all in, put the saucepan over a slow fire, cover it till the water reaches the boiling point, then remove the cover and let the apples simmer almost imperceptibly till you can pierce them easily with a broom splint; then sprinkle the sugar over them and let them just simmer until it is all melted. Remove the saucepan from the fire and let it stand where the apples will get cold before turning them into a dish for the table.—Green's Fruit Grower.

We have too many goods—Must move them—and quick too. We invoice the first of the year and in order to lighten our stock by that time we offer prices that are certainly less than they can be bought at wholesale today. They were all bought early before the advance and we are willing to take a short profit rather than hold them.

It's Quality That Counts

In Coal it's quality that makes heat, it's quality that retains it, it's quality that makes possible consumption of 90 per cent of the combustible part of it, leaving a light, clean ash; lastly, it's quality that lessens your fuel bills—you're not paying for dirt, refuse or unburnables. The coal we handle both hard and soft does all the good things we and our patrons say for it. A ton will talk as loudly as a carload.
