It's Quality That Counts

In coal it's quality that makes heat, it's quality that retains, it's quality that makes possible consumption of 90 per cent of the combustible part of it, leaving a light, clean ash; lastly, it's quality that lessens your fuel bill—you're not paying for dirt, refuse or unburnables. The coal we handle, both hard and soft, deserves all the good things we and our patrons say for it. A ton will talk as loudly as a carload.

THE CZAR'S OUTPOSTS

Life of Officers Stationed in Russian Asia.

FULL OF ADVENTURE AND PERIL.

Chief Occupations of the Officers consist in hunting brigands, fighting wolves and waging small wars against unruly natives—despite rigors of climate and their lonely life. Social amenities are not neglected.

There are no soldiers in the world who get a finer training for the rough game of war than the czar's officers who are scattered over thousands of lonely outposts throughout Russian Asia, says a writer in the New York Post. Siberia, the Caucasus, central Asia and Manchuria are four vast training grounds for the czar's legions. The number of garrisons, large and small, distributed over those immense territories runs well into the thousands. At some important points, like Irkutsk, Khiva, Blagoveshchsk, Petrovsk, Harbin and Askaniya, large bodies of troops are kept, and the life of the officers and men is much like that of soldiers in other military posts. It is at the small posts, where a couple of officers and fifty or a hundred men are stationed, that adventures occur almost as regularly as the rising and the setting of the sun, and it is there that the finest training is gained.

Imagine a remote outpost in the center of a desolate steppe, where the monotony of rock and sand is unbroken for several days' journey save by the skeletons of horses, camels and men who have perished in trying to cross it, or in the midst of a dense forest thickly clad in ice and snow for the greater part of the year and haunted by flocks of ravenous wolves and still fiercer men—convicts escaped from the lead mines, who would dare any danger and commit any crime rather than return to the chain gang and the knout. It is the sport of the officers at the outpost to slay the wolves, though the quarry, numerous and starved, is more terrible than the fiercest Bengal tiger. It is their duty to track down the escaped convicts and their pride to try to capture them single handed without the help of their men.

The lonely, adventurous life they lead makes detectives of even the quietest of these men. I knew a lieutenant who commanded at a remote post on the banks of the Amur. He was a student at the military academy with me and a quieter, more studious fellow could hardly be imagined. He could seldom be induced to join in the field sports and athletic exercises.

Years afterward I visited him at his outpost and found him a changed man. The dreamy look had gone from his face; he had the eye of a leader of men, the eye of the man who had looked death in the face a hundred times without flinching. There were hardly a dozen books in his quarters, but there were plenty of guns, saddles, fishing rods and hunting knives.

After dinner, as we sat over our cigars and vodka, we heard the howling of a great pack of wolves in the forest which straggled to within half a mile of the post. My host had been interested in my light chatter about old friends in St. Petersburg and Moscow, but when he heard the wolves he became strangely excited and could hardly listen to what I was saying. At last he rose and said: "It's no good, my friend; I cannot resist. I must go to them!" And he shouted to his servant to harness the dogs to his sleigh. "Are you mad?" I cried. "Surely you are not going out to the wolves in the forest?"

"I can't help it," he replied in the most matter of fact tone. "Whenever I hear them howling it seems to me a challenge, and every nerve in my body is on edge to respond. Last winter they killed my best sergeant, and since then I have come out to kill a few of them whenever I have heard them howling like this at night. Pardon my rudeness in leaving you. I will be back in a short time—possibly. If you want anything ring for Ivan."

Imagine the madness of it! Of course I couldn't let him go alone, so I picked out a rifle and a revolver from his armory and insisted on taking my place in the sleigh beside him. He drove over the snowclad meadows to within a hundred yards of the outer edge of the forest. Then he pulled up the trembling dogs and waited. Pretty soon we saw dozens of shadowy gray forms skulking out from the blackness of the trees on to the moonlit snow. We fired at them, and almost before the reports of our rifles had died away the whole pack was upon us.

Quick as lightning my friend dropped his gun, shook out the reins and fogged the dogs until they literally flew toward home, fear spurring them far more than the whip. The foremost wolves of the pack were within a few feet of the rear of the sleigh, and although we shot them down as fast as we could fire our rifles the rest were not halted by the massacre. They gained on us rapidly, and as we neared the fort they were swarming all around the sleigh and had actually poled down one of the leading dogs. But a crowd of soldiers rushed out with torches and rifles and fired a volley which put them to flight just in time to save our lives.

"Does your master often do this?" I asked my friend's servant.

"Yes, sir," he replied. "He generally goes out whenever he hears the wolves at night. Look here, sir!" And he opened a cupboard and showed me rows upon rows of wolves' tails. There were sixty-eight of them. "He killed

THE ALBATROSS.

Curious and Elaborate Dances in Which It Participates.

It is well known that many of the cranes and other long legged wading birds indulge in curious antics that partake closely of the nature of the human dance, but it is not known to many persons that the albatross has the most elaborate and ceremonious dance of them all.

Only very few have ever seen the albatross on land; probably nine persons out of ten who have seen the wonderful birds at all have observed them only on the ocean.

One of the nesting places of this great winged creature is the island of Laysan, in the Pacific ocean, and there at times the ground is absolutely covered with their nests. It is on Laysan that the albatross dance was first seen by a lucky scientist.

The ceremony begins when a lot of the birds are grouped in a circle. Two will advance toward each other, bending and nodding their heads in exact imitation of the human bow. Then they spar with their bills, crossing them gently and still making funny little bows. Then one bird will lower its head and stand quite still in that pose, while the other throws its head back till the bill points straight into the air. It puffs out its breast and advances with a queer, fantastic strut, uttering a curious grunt. The other bird begins to snap its bill till it produces the sound of castanets.

So the two will alternate advancing and retreating and bowing to each other by turns. Sometimes one will pick up a bit of grass or a feather and offer it to the other. Then a second couple will join the dance, and at last as many as forty of the huge birds may be engaged in the queer pastime.

Started the Englishmen.

A London paper relates that an enterprising Yankee came over to England and decided to open a shop in Birmingham. He obtained premises next door to a man who also kept a shop of the same description, but was not very pushing in his business methods. The methods of the Yankee, however, caused the older trader to wake up, and with the spirit of originality strong upon him he affixed a notice over his shop with the words, "Established fifty years," painted in large letters. Next day the Yankee replied to this with a notice over his store to this effect: "Established yesterday. No old stock."

Licorice.

Licorice was once highly esteemed medicinally, and its cultivation in England began early in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It was thought a sovereign remedy for coughs and at one time was a very profitable crop. Its name comes from two Greek words signifying "sweet root." The root was first imported from Spain. The extract of licorice is still used in candy and lozenges and, it is said, must be made from the dried roots, otherwise it is not so bright and clear in color.

Whiskey and Beer Habit

PERMANENTLY CURED BY "ORRINE,"

ABSOLUTELY SAFE, SURE AND HARMLESS.

Physicians pronounce drunkenness a disease of the nervous system, creating a morbid craving for a stimulant. Continued indulgence in whiskey, beer or wine acts away the stomach lining and stupefies the digestive organs, thus destroying the digestion and ruining the health. No "will power" can heal the inflamed stomach membrane. "ORRINE" permanently removes the craving for liquor by acting directly on the affected nerves, restoring the stomach and digestive organs to normal conditions, improving the appetite and restoring the health. Can be given secretly if desired.

Cure Effectuated or Money Refunded.

Ask your druggist when you know what he thinks of ORRINE; he will endorse our statements as truthful in every respect. If ORRINE fails to cure we will refund you every penny paid for it as cheerfully as we took it.

No Sanitarium Treatment or Publicity!
No Absence from home or loss of time!

Mother, wives and sisters, you cannot cure those who are afflicted with this most terrible of all diseases by your fervent prayers, or eyes red with tears, nor by your hope that they may stop drinking. It can be done only with ORRINE. You have the remedy—will you use it? If you desire to cure without the knowledge of the patient, buy ORRINE No. 1; if the patient desires to be cured at his own free will, buy ORRINE No. 2. Full directions found in each package. Price $1 per box.

We will gladly furnish a treatment free of cost to any physician to demonstrate that ORRINE is a positive specific for drunkenness.

A Word to Sufferers from Disease

The age of miracles has past. We know that everything moves by what the scientists call immutable laws. They are unvarying from everlasting to everlasting. These laws rule alike the heavenly spheres and the actions of the spheres. Man is particularly susceptible to infractions of these laws and the usual result is disease or injury or death. It is a law that if you cases may be hereditary or acquired. They may be the result of law breaking by some ancestor in the remote past. For the sins of the father are visited upon the children even unto the third and fourth generation." But if nature provides a penalty for the infraction of the least of her laws she has also provided a remedy. For years I have made a careful study of disease, its cause and effect. And I have made a WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

I have discovered that Nature's remedy for a very large number of diseases is Electricity. I use electrodes upon the nerve centers of the human system and nature does the rest. If you are suffering from any FEMALE WEAKNESS, a tumor, cancer or GOITRE, a victim of KIDNEY or LIVER TROUBLES, CONSTIPATION, LOSS OF ENERGY, CONSUMPTION—a myriad of diseases, come and see me. Consultation is free and I can tell you whether or not I can be of assistance to you, or whether your disease is in too advanced a stage for any assistance whatever. Do not delay. My method of treatment is perfectly rational and relief is almost instantaneous.

I guarantee a cure in all curable cases and cure hundreds of others considered incurable.
