LINCOLN IS LAUDED
Life of Martyred President Theme of Sunday Speakers.

EARLY STRUGGLES DWELT ON
Addresses by Judge C. J. Searle, Rev. R. B. Williams and Prof. C. W. Foss.

The services at the First M. E. church last evening were devoted to addresses commemorating the anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birthday. The first address was made by the pastor, Rev. R. B. Williams, who in brief told the story of Lincoln's life.

Judge C. J. Searle followed Rev. Williams. He said that of all public men there is no one whom he more nearly deifies than he does Lincoln. He said that there is probably no man who is more universally revered by men, both those who believe and think as he did, but men of opposite beliefs and natures.

Mr. Searle had a peculiar personal connection with Lincoln. Mr. Searle's grandfather was a boyhood friend of Lincoln's in New Salem, Ill., and was also a member of Lincoln's company in the Black Hawk war.

"Lincoln was a lover of law and order," said Mr. Searle, "but it was with a broader aspect than is given it by Mr. Eckels. Lincoln was in sympathy with the downtrodden and lowly, and this is the reason he is held in such reverence by the people. His political bible was the declaration of independence and the constitution, and these were not visionary things with him; they were the foundation of his whole life and beliefs. They were a part of his religion."

Mr. Searle told of Lincoln's adaptation to the needs of the time in which he came before the public. "A man was needed who was adapted to the requirements of the time, and nature produced Lincoln. His confusions as president were entirely consistent with his beliefs. He was a lover of law and order, but it was law that would reach out and prevent the powerful from appropriating the wealth of this country."

MAN UP A TREE
Is He Who Denies There is a God, Says Evangelist Lockhart.

WILL NOT ADMIT ERROR
Real Man Will, But Fool Never Will—Big Attendance at Meeting.

Three hundred men attended the meeting at the Memorial Christian church yesterday afternoon addressed by Evangelist Lockhart. He said in part: "My subject is 'A Man Up a Tree.' Just where that subject will lead me, I am not sure. Did you hear of the drunken Irishman that came staggering down the street and bumped into a big fat traveling man, who pulled off and gave him a small jolt, remarking: 'Pat, can't you look where you are going?' 'Faith, and, I can look where I'm goin'," says Pat, 'but I can't go where I'm a-lookin'."

Bennie Frysinger Goes From Rock Island and to Train at the Chicago Garrison.

The following is contributed by the commanding officer of the Rock Island corps of the Salvation Army: "The Salvation Army has a broken link in its chain—who is willing to mend the broken chain? Last Thursday Rock Island corps said farewell to one of its most promising and faithful comrades and candidates. Bennie Frysinger took his departure for Chicago's training garrison, where he expects to prepare himself for a Salvation Army officer in time to come.

W. A. DRURY, PIONEER OF COUNTY, DEAD AT MUSCATINE
Came Here in Early Thirties and Kept Store at Drury's Landing.

W. A. Drury, one of the oldest settlers of the lower end of this county and Muscatine, has joined the silent majority, having passed away at his home in Muscatine Friday, the cause of death being the infirmities of old age, coupled with the effect of an injury sustained on Sept. 1 last. Mr. Drury had always been active, even in later years, but since being injured had been confined to his bed.

Mr. Drury was a native of Indiana, having been born in Wayne county on Feb. 16, 1816. When but 18 years of age he came west, reaching this section of the great expanse of prairies on horseback. He first settled in Mercer county, where he conducted a general store for some time, but afterwards was associated in business with his brother at Drury's Landing, that place now nearly obliterated, having been a time a promising outlook.

BROTHERS DIE IN WRECKS
John and Peter Blake Killed Eighteen Months Apart.

John Blake, an engineer on the Rock Island road, who had many friends in this city, was killed in a wreck at Chanute, Kans., last Tuesday night. A singular coincidence is that Mr. Blake's brother Peter, also an engineer, was killed in a wreck near Eldon, Iowa, about 18 months ago.

Day of Prayer for Students.
