THE ARGUS.

Published Daily and Weekly at 1624 second avenue Rock Island, Ill. (Entered at the postoffice as second-class

BY THE J. W. POTTER CO.

TERMS.-Daily, 10 cents per week.

Weekly, $1 per year in advance. All communications of argumentative character, political or religious, must have real name attached for publication. No such articles will be printed over fictitious signatures.

Correspondence solicited from every township in Rock Island county.

The Chicago packers will not be obliged to go to prison. How relieved we all feel about that tention.

weather, do you know that right in the midst of it we had a safe and sane ent. Fourth of July?

setts judge that a man is boss in his procession of domestic animals. The own home. Now all that a man has to prophets have made themselves ridicdo is to enforce the decision.

vestigating committee to determine the horse business was in the dumps seems to be whether it is necessary for There had been an endeavor to breed a United States senator to possess a world-beaters for the race track when dual personality.

but the trouble is he has to contradict $5,000 to $125,000 dropped to a few so many people of his own credibility, hundreds. Along the public highways as Lincoln said about his guaranty on in Michigan and other states one might a note, becomes "diluted."

One of the newspaper correspondents says that Mr. Tilden of the stock yards talks like a sausage. Only those who have conversed with a sausage know how strong a simile this is.

A Washington woman has applied to the courts to get her alimony increased because she is unable to live on $600 a month. The courts might recfor the lady.

It is announced that W. C. Brown is will win, hands down-but then he storm. might just as well have held on to the CHAMP CLARK, JR., SOME ORATOR. next greatest problem before the counsure thing in the meantime. His em- In the event that Specaker Champ inent predecessor, Chauncey M. Depew, Clark is selected by the democrocy as Gilbert's readiness at repartee are float- almost as prominently as the speaking about. One of the cleverest of er himself. He is Champ Clark, Jr., these relates to his conversation with but little past 20 years, and one of the a voluble young woman who forced her best orators in the country for his age. attentions upon him at a musical "at composing?" "I don't think so," re and his sister, Genevieve, is decomposing."

A School of Manners.

There is a great deal of sly fun being poked at the Illinois Central railployes in the gentle art of politeness, house in which he spoke. but the fact is that no great corporation ever did a wiser thing nor one that is likely to bring more satisfac- listened to his father's speeches in tory returns.

of the pleasant things that grow out of formed on political issues. our relations in life. It smoothes the rough places in diplomacy and brings men together in a way that makes them respect each other's rights. It brief authority" from becoming arrogant and unreasonable in the enforcement of that authority. It makes the man against whom this authority is to forget useless envy and spite, which and progressive republicans. would make him inclined to rebellion against the constituted authorities.

to appreciate courteous treatment from eration prevailed among the people gressive money power of Morgan and whom they are called to serve Let the good work go on.

The Real Fauyland.

passenger on the Olympic.

Hans Andersen nor one of the Grimm stockholders in it. It shall establish brothers telling a tale of the mythical branch banks, which, just as under the happening in Fairyland. It was a central government bank scheme, will simple story of an occurrence in New rush their local deposits to the cen-York as narrated by the news dis- tral bank thus taking money out of matter of fact mention of them are coin or bullion. It may rediscount papthe most forceful comment on the won- er for hanks depositing with it. porter's fancy. Today we read it in is obvious that the words "central flecting on its significance.

Let it be repeated that an order was sent from a ship at sea by wireng through the air.

man's ingenuity will explore? Will the aeroplane, like the wireless, ecome an instrument of commerce? Let us reflect.

Horses Still Are Necessary.

If any have prepared to bid a sad ernment bank. farewell to the horse and to bewail his departed usefulness, let them withhold their sighs and tears for yet a little while, for faithful old Dobbin still lingers and promises to linger longer than those who would mourn his passing, says the Detroit News. According to the heavy hardware dealof swift decline, was never so great last census will show more horse in use than the census of 1900. More buggles were made last year than ever before in the history of the industry and horses of quality command gress simply means that the farmer Now that the torrid wave has brush- a stiff and steady price. All this, in will get his vehicles, farm tools, wire ed by the Lorimer investigation may spite of the enormous production of fencing, harness and shoes for less once more come in for a share of at power vehicles; in spite of the dises money. Is not that a good thing? trous effects predicted by men who saw race gambling put under the ban is And, speaking further about the evidence that must confound the prophets of horsedom, past and pres-

The meek, unlovely but useful mule though without pride of ancestry, or It has been decided by a Massachu- hope of posterity, keeps up with the ulous, for you can't keep a good animal down. Indications are all in the The only point for the Lorimer in other direction. In the fall of 1893 suddenly prices slumped. It two or three years promising two-year-olds Hines is a good enough contradictor, from commanding prices ranging from see animals commonly rated at values from $50 to $100 wearing placards stating that they were to be had almost for the leading home.

Things are vastly different now

BUSINESS INTERESTS OF COUNTRY HAVE CON-FIDENCE IN DEMOCRATS

(Continued from Page One.) ommend a course in domestic economy lonely republican of all its membership. Who elected them if it were not the business men?"

Judge Cullop also referred to the to resign the presidency of the New great political reverses in the business York Central railroad, return to Iowa communities of New Jersey, Ohio, Inand stand for the United States sen- diana, Illinois, Pennsylvania and West ate. If Brown proves as successful a Virginia, and wound up in a burst of politician as he has a railroad man he eloquence that carried the house by did, and the people called him a peach standard bearer in the presidential election of 1912, there will be a young Many stories of the late Sir William man who will figure in the campaign

Young Clark's full name is Bennett home." The young woman insisted Champ Clark, but in the national capunon discussing with him the merits of itol his friends insist upon calling him various composers. "Oh, I do so love Champ Clark Jr. Champ, Jr., has been Sir Arthur's music," she gushed. "I atending college at the state universuppose he is now busy upon a new sity at Columbia, Mo., but is now in opera. Then there is Bach. He is an- Washington spending the summer vaother favorite of mine. Is he still cation with the speaker and Mrs. Clark plied Sir William. "I rather fancy he | Champ Clark, Jr., attracted national attention in the interests of his father's candidacy. He debated with Reuben F. Roy, the republican candidate for congress, and achieved such fame throughout the district in this debate that thereafter his audiences overtaxed road for its efforts to instruct its em- the capacity of every hall and school-

Champ Clark Jr., is a tall, clean cut type of boy, and as a result of having congress from the time he was a boy Courtesy is the true spring of most of 6 years old, is exceptionally well in-

TAFT STILL WITH ALDRICH.

President's Taft's recent statement that the adoption of ex-senator Aldprevents the official "clothed in a little rich's currency system, designed to put the control of American money absolutely in the hands of Wall street bankers, is the most important legislation now pending, has resulted in the exerted obedient to law and causes him old issue being raised between himself

He has represented himself and his administration as a new menace to The traveling public especially learns public interest, and raised the democrats and progressive republicans to a railroad employes and the latter would higher plane of public usefulness, as be sure to feel greatly relieved if the the only effective force the public can law of universal kindness and consid- absolutely rely upon to resist the agthe president's efforts to serve it.

Both Aldrich and Mr. Taft declare there is no intention of establishing anything like a central government bank. But nobody can read the Ald-The steamer Olympic put out to sea. rich plan in detail without realizing A passenger lost his spectacles. The that it is a central bank of issue that Message was sent back to New York he proposes. His so-called "reserve by wireless. The glasses were imme. association of America" is to be the dediately dispatched by an aeroplane pository and fiscal agent of the nationmessenger and safely restored to the al government. It is to have the sole issue power. It may receive deposits The above was not written by a from those national banks that are the community which would otherwise There seems to be no need of em- be loaned out for investments in home bellishing the simple statement above enterprises. It may buy and sell govgiven. The truth of the facts and the ernment and state securities and gold derful achievement of the age in which In short, the Aldrich reserve associawe live. In the short time of five tion is a bank with immense privileges years ago the above statement would and powers, but without the name of a have been considered a flight of rc- bank. Wall street will control it. It the day's news, perhaps without re bank" were ommitted because of the prejudice against such an institution by the country banks. Uncle Sam once less and the order filled by a man fly- tried a central bank. It was manned and manipulated by politicians and Are there any other fields which brought a panic on the entire country. Aldrich's flimsy misrepresentation, even though endorsed by Mr. Taft, will accomplish but little. Remembering its own last experience, this country will not stand for another central gov-

A DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE.

Election of senators by direct vote of the people, which is now held up in congress by an amendment supported by Bristow of Kansas and the entire group of special privilege servers in the senate, is distinctly a democratic ers in convention the consumption of proposition. The report of the proceedhorseshoes, supposed to be in a state ings of the republican national convention of 1908 shows that the vote on inas at present. They believe that the cluding in the platform a demand for the election of senators by the people was: Yeas 114 and Navs 866.

> WHAT FREE LIST MEANS. The democratic free list bill in con-

CAN YOU FIGURE THIS OUT. While the republican trust-buster. Kellogg, was prosecuting the Standard Oil company for the company, he was receiving the regular and "extra" compensation from the steel trust. Directors of the concern that paid him these fees were stockholders in the concern he was prosecuting. What is the ans-

Senator Bourne on Legislation

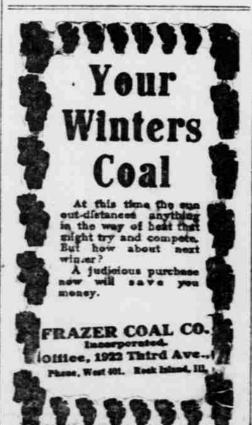

Discussing means for securing effective legislation preventing misuse of centralized wealth, Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., said:

"The greatest problem before the country is to make the people responsible for the enactment of laws by giving them power to legislate under the initiative and to veto under the referendum in case the legislative branch of any state fails to truly represent the general welfare of the people and also to make the people responsible for the selection of public servants under efficient primary and corrupt practices laws, thus making all public servants directly accountable and responsive to the composite citizen, individual unknown. The substitution of popular for delegated government is rapidly accomplishing this result, thus substituting general welfare for selfish interest as the motive power of government and goal of the public servant.

What Trust Decisions Show "The recent decisions of the supreme court in the Standard Oil and tobacco cases demonstrate that the try is the enactment of legislation which will provide broad, well defined, legal avenues through which dynamic mentality with centralized wealth can operate with the greatest efficiency. but with necessitated recognition of the general welfare of the people, the rights of employees and employers, insuring to the small stockholders their proportionate share of the increment incident to the operation of the capital in the aggregation of which they have participated. "Centralization of people, government and business is an economic evolution incident to our civilization. Man cannot prevent but can provide legal avenues through which these great forces must operate with the greatest benefit to the general welfare and the least injury to the individual.

"The legal avenues should be as broad and well defined as possible, but barriers should be erected along the roadways providing for the imprisonment of any individual who attempts to break through them. Ascertainment of existing methods and conditions should be the first step; collation of opinions from practical employees, employers and economic students the second; analysis and deduction based on the ascertainment and collation of views the third; the enactment of legislation embodying conclusions the fourth; co-operation between lawmakers and business interests on the lines of ascertainment of the best legislation procurable, with resultant protection of the general welfare of the people and co-operative rights of employee and employer, the desideratum; ascertainment rather than investigation, prosecution rather than persecution, the goal; publicity and not secrecy one of the methods; the highest possible reward for legitimate efficiency and rigid obedience to the law, with personal punishment to the individual breaking the laws, the result."

Officials of Alleged Wire Trust Indicted Under the Sherman Act.

The United States grand jury has returned nine indictments in the United States circuit court at New York against officers of the American Steel and Wire company and of thirty-five other corporations and partnerships in the steel and wire pools which the federal authorities have had for some time under investigation. The indictments are found under the Sherman act and charge a combination and conspiracy in restraint of interstate and foreign commerce and are strictly of a personal nature. The corporations and firms as such are not indicted, but eighty-three individuals operating through the alleged pools are involved as defendants. Prominent among those indicted are Frank J. Gould, president of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works company of Virginia, and Charles F. Brooker, vice president of the Ansonia Brass and Copper company and member of the Republican national committee for Con-

The Argus Daily Short Story

When the South Wind Blew-By Clarissa Mackie. Copyrighted, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

ship's dory had left him on a snow white coral beach with his traps heapof distrust in his mission.

The neighboring islands were bits of His own islet showed a curving stretch of coral beach with a background of thick jungle. Tall palms waved in the breeze, and there was the luscious smell of ripened fruit. Except for the lapping of the waves on the beach and the chattering of monkeys in the trees there was the dead silence of complete isolation.

MIS BAG ALSO PRODUCED A LONG COIL OF PLEXIBLE ROPE.

Lester carried his traps to the edge of the jungle and set forth to seek the legacy left him by his friend Gilhert Olds. It took two hours to circle the island.

Making a sort of rough camp occupled another hour, and when it was completed Lester had a small but thatched with paim leaves and bound about with cordage from his valise. In the hut he placed his stores of food and water, inflated the air mattress he had brought and was ready for busi-

He drew out Gilbert Olds' last let ter, written from this very same south sea island. One week after receiving this letter he had heard of Gilbert's tragic death.

"Dear Lester," this last letter read,

A little trading schooper had carried | "I have found what I came after and Lester Bidwell from Manila to a group if I can get away safely shall be with of tiny islands that lie at the south- you almost as soon as you receive this. east of the Philippines, and when the In case I never come back-and in this part of the world one is apt to drop out suddenly and inexplicably-leave everything and come down here and ed about him he felt the first qualms take your legacy. The pearls will be yours if anything happens to me. You know you grubstaked me to this addark blue blurred against the blue sea. venture, and your trust in me will not be shattered. "Below I have given sailing directions from Manila, and almost any small trading captain will bring you along. There is not much danger of your finding anybody here, for the island bears a bad reputation among the natives, and there is nothing to attract the traders save a bountiful supply of water to fill their empty barrels. Until I leave the pearls will be secreted in the trunk of a palm tree marked on the man below. Must stop writing now, as I have a chance to send this letter over to the mainland. As ever yours, Gilbert Olds."

It was easy to recognize the island from the sketch Gilbert had made.

"In the trunk of a paim tree" is a very indefinite description of a hiding place, for there were hundreds of trees on the island, and many of them towered fifty or sixty feet above his head. He sat down to a solitary supper thinking of his lost friend and the meager tidings he had been able to gather of his sad fate. The captain of the trading schooner had shaken his head dubiously when Lester questioned "Mr. Olds' fate isn't rightly known, sir," the captain had said. "He was a young chap that took chances, and, in my opinion, he lost out on one of his chances. You can't count on these natives hereabouts. They're a tricky crowd, and I've heard queer stories about that island. There's many a man lost his life going after the Rose of Dawn pearls, and the natives keep away from it because they say it's haunted. They will hang around it if there's a white man there. I suppose they're waiting for somebody to discover the pearls, and when they're found, why, it's all up with the finder. or all down, I should say, for, of course, they'll throw him to feed the sharks." There was a chance, a bare chance, that Gilbert was yet alive. He might be a prisoner on another island, perhaps suffering torture rather than disclose the hiding place of the pearls. Lester thought about these things while the sun sank and a glorious moon arose to light the world with silver radiance. A little breeze sprang up from the south, and Lester leaned against the trunk of a palm and turned his face to its cooling touch.

Then he heard it. Faintly, sweetly, it was borne on the wings of the wind and swept over his head in sighing. tuneful melody.

This was the haunted island of the Olds seeking to bold communication with his friend? After an invigorating cup of coffee Lester made a thorough examination of the island and found many traces of Gilbert's occupation. There was his former camp not thirty feet away from the site of Lester's thatched but. There was a good sized tent pitched here and many utensils scattered around. There were traces of trampling bare feet in the sand around the tent door, and Lester counted that there must have been a dozen men besides Gilbert Olds, for the latter's foot prints were easily distinguished from the others, for he had worn shoes.

There was no doubt that Gilbert Olds had been attacked by natives from the neighboring islands and carried away to death or captivity.

A careful search of the most promi nent palms along the shore did not reveal one that had a hollow trunk or that in any way seemed to offer h hiding place for some of the most splendid pearls of the east. Early in the afternoon the wind sprang up again from the south, and almost immediately Lester heard the sighing music of the night before. He shook off the feeling of uncanniness at the strange sound and tried to place its source. Of one thing he was certain-that it hovered over the tall paim beneath which he had sat the night before. He stood beneath its slender, tapering trunk and looked wistfully upward at the thick tuft of branches above his head. If he only had the steel spurs of a telephone wire man the mounting of that tree would be a small matter.

All at once there stood plainly before him as if written on the sand a picture in a long forgotten geography of his youth. It was a drawing of a south sea islander climbing the bare trunk of a palm tree. The man had tied a long scarf about the tree and his own waist, and then, bending backward, his bare feet pressed against the tree, he braced himself against the scarf and slowly ascended.

It was a difficult feat to perform, but Lester was no mean athlete, and there was a thin cashmere blanket that would form an excellent brace for the ascent. He kicked off his shoes, twisted the blanket into a rope, tied himself to the tree with plenty of slack and tried. He failed utterly. While he rested, bruised and scratched, another idea came to him, and he immediately put it into practice. His bag also produced a long coil of flexible rope which had seemed to him a useful adjunct to his traveling kit in the tropics. A half hour's play with this resulted in his lassoing a thick bunch of the top branches and pulling it taut. Now, with the rope in his hands and the brace once more in place, Lester gradually drew himself up to the tufted top of the palm, where he rested panting among the branches, while the weird music played almost in his ears. Now that he was up here it was easy to find the source of the hidden melody. An acolian harp fashioned from a cigar box and some strings from Gilbert's mandolin was cunning ly concealed in the branches where every puff of the south wind resulted in placed the harp there? Was it a precaution against his possible capture by the natives, and did it indicate the paim tree which contained the pearls? Lester believed it did. He found the pearls easily. Just be neath the tufted top a square outline was cut in the trunk. Lester thrust the blade of his knife in one wedge and pried it open like a little door. The pithy trunk had been hollowed out, and there, wrapped in an oilskin bag, were a strain of music. Why had Gilbert the pearls which had cost a score of lives since the fame of their presence on the island had gone abroad. With the pearls in his bosom Lester slipped down from the tree just as the sun sank below the horizon. Later when the moon was rising be sat watching its silver track across the sea. As he watched something black bobbed into the radiance and stayed there, gradually coming nearer, nearer, until it came into the little barbor. Lester stood at the water's edge to greet the man in the slender canoe. "You got here just in time. Gilbert." be said coolly. "My trading schooner is a day ahead of time. I see her drawing into the harbor now."

"Thank heaven!" panted Gilbert Olds as he fell exhausted on the sand. "You got the pearls, Lester?"

"Inside my belt," returned Lester, his hands in those of his friend. "You were captured and have escaped from one of the islands, old man?"

"Yes; there are fifteen canoes and about a thousand sharks in my wake. hope your schooner is not far off." Lester answered the hall of the trading captain and ran up the beach to collect his things. When he came back Gilbert stood at the water's edge.

Gil," he said affectionately. "It's one of those things that will never be told, Lester," said the other slowly. "The pearls were not worth the price I paid."

"You'll tell me all about it some day,

July 6 in American History

1747-John Paul Jones (JohnaPaul), distinguished American naval commander, born in Kirkbean, Scotland; died in Paris July 18, 1792. 1759-Commodore Joshua Barney, gallant naval officer in the Revolution and war of 1812, born; died 1818. 1802-General Daniel Morgan, Revolutionary hero, died; born 1736. 1905-The remains of Paul Jones formally delivered to the United States government by France.

Not the Same.

Solicitor (cross examining)-Now, didn't you tell the prisoner that you doubted his veracity! Witness-No. 1 merely told 'im 'e was a bloomin' ifar. -London M. A. P.

wind that blows.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE RESTLESS AGE.

GOING and coming. Shifting about, Hither and thither, In and then out; Here for a moment; Do not know where They'll be tomorrow Little they care.

Now in Milwaukee, Now in Spokane Or for some city Taking the train; Back to New Jersey. Off for the west, Stop in Missouri Just for a rest. Chasing the bubbles, Going to smash; Saving a trifle Just for a stake, Losing it maybe All on a shake. Dabbling in business, Digging for gold, Down in the tropics.

Up in the cold;

Here for a minute,

There for a day;

Grabbing the cash,

Some new excitement-Up and away. Motion and action, Hammer and claws, Going and coming; Never a pause; Scorning to settle Down for a wage In one cramped vineyard-

Knew His Weakness. riere is a penny, Willie. Now run along to Sunday school, and be sure to go down Washington street, and not by way of Auburn avenue."

Oh, what an age!

"Yes, ma'am." "Be sure to go the way I told you.

Do you hear?" "Yes, ma'am." After he had gone a friend of his mother wanted to know why she had been so particular to have him take Washington street. "Because there is a gum slot machine on Auburn avenue," replied the knowing mother.

Obvious. "I see you have a new diamond solitaire, Ethel." "Yes. Beauty, isn't it?" "It is. From Jack?"

Slothful.

the land

"I suppose he loves you very dearly." "Well, anyway, he loves me very expensively."

The Conceited Man "She is an unusual girl."

"Dnusual in what way?" "She has no poetry in her. She yawned in my face when I read my verse to her." "Oh, she's not unusual. She's merely frank." Longing. Somewhere the snow is snowing And cooling off the air, And don't you wish you knew the place

And could be landed there? Slander. "Miss Jenks is very pretty."

"Yes, but did you hear what they say about her?" "Mercy, no! What is it?" "They say she has a college degree and reads Maeterlinck."

A Long Wait. "Will you love me always?" "I can't tell you tonight." "When will you tell me?" "At the dawn of eternity."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

After you have proved that you can succeed there are plenty of people to be found who always knew you could.

The less we see of the handlcraft of some persons the more we admire it. One of the things that go to the making of a good husband is a good The man who likes his own company bard to please. Being contented is a babit that most better than he likes that of others isn't men acquire sooner or later in life. Some women are born pretty, and others acquire prettiness at a large expense to their better haives. The man who heads a revolution is occasionally the man who loses his

The reason that most of us are dead sure we would like to be rich is because it is something that we never have tried.

Don't worry over your foes, but watch out for your fool friends.

The world's most successful medicine for bowel complaints is Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It has relieved more pain Each day is a stone in the great and suffering and saved more lives temple of life. Aim to bew the stone than any other medicine in use, innatives. Was it the spirit of Gilbert so that it will be four square to every valuable for children and adults. Sold by all druggists.