The Way the Insects Gather Material and Form the Product. Wasps are wonderful papermakers.

They make real paper, too, just as truly as human papermakers. A wasp flies to a flower and covers the front of its body with the dust of the blossom. This is moistened and mixed with the wax which is secreted on the surface of the wasp's body. Then the insect repairs to an old fence or other piece of weather worn wood that has a loose, fuzzy, fibrous surface. The wasp rubs itself on this fibrous matter just as it did on the dust of the flower, and a layer of such matter adheres to the insect's body and becomes mingled with wax in the same

Then away goes the wasp to the nest which it is building, places itself just on the spot where it wants the layer of paper to lie and then works itself into a heat by a furious motion of the wings, so that the wax is moistened next to the body, when the paper drops off in the right place, where ft may be adjusted properly and fas-

CHANGING THE SEASONS.

In China It Is Summer When the Emperor Says It Is. The emperor of China has some strange duties. One of these is the ordering of the seasons. It is summer in America when the sun warms the earth and not until then, but in China it is summer when the emperor says it is summer. As soon as the emperor declares that summer has come every body in China puts off winter clothing and arrays himself in summer garb, no matter what his feelings on the subject may be. All domestic arrangements are made to suit the season as proclaimed by the emperor, although they may not suit the individual at all.

The nearest approach to the Chinese system of ordering the seasons is the practice observed in France in all publie buildings. There it is winter on and after Oct. 1. Fires are then lighted in all government offices, and the employees exchange their white sum mer waistcoats for the thicker and darker ones of winter. At that date the public libraries are closed at 4, and in the streets the sellers of tonsted chestnuts make their appearance. In official France it is winter, no matter what the weather may say and no matter what unofficial France may think .- New York Press.
