MUMMERY IN THE COMMONS.

"Black Rod" and His Antics In English Parliament. Many an American visiting the British Louse of commons has heard with astonishment the cry "Black Hod is coming!" and wondered what was happening. "Black Rod" is simply an indication of the persistency with which our oversea cousins cling to a bit of antique mummery. Whenever in the house this cry is uttered the sergeantat-arms springs to his feet, closes the doors leading into the lobby and turns the key in the lock. Having thus dra matically insured the commons against an attack, the sergeant-at-arms takes his position in front of a small window, where he listens to three raps oh the door. Sergeant-at-arms then politely asks what is wanted and learns that Black Rod has a message to be delivered to the speaker and the com-

Then when the door is opened an old gentleman in black is seen to come slowly into the chamber. On his queer old coat are three black rows; he wears before me before? at the end, is in his other hand. Black Rod is most ceremonious. He bows three times to the speaker and delivers his message, while the members of the commons put on their hats, a Mr. Speaker and the commons are requested to enter the house of lords to listen to the king's assent to an act which has passed both houses of par liament. Black Rod then bows to the speaker. walks backward step by step to the center of the house and repeats the saintation At the door he pauses again and bows even lower. Sergeant-at-arms swings his mace on his shoulder and follows Black Rod Behind comes the speaker in his offi cial robes. The members on the benches take off their bats and rise in their places. About half a dozen of them follow the speaker into the house of lords The speaker raises his cock ed hat thrice and salutes the lord chan cellor The message of royal assent is read and there in a further exchange of salutes. The speaker returns to the house in solemn state, and the mace is laid on the table. The business of the commons is resumed without further in terruption from the polite oid gentle

A Parisian Patriot There are other things in Paris beside architecture, heroes and history. At Duval's the wandering one can get a soup which is truly a triumph of genius, or he may sit at a little table and sip coffee "as black as night, as sweet as love and as hot as bades," the Frenchman's approved recipe. Duval, it may be remembered, refused to raise prices during the siege of Paris in 1870, giving freely of his stock as long as it lasted. Here was a true patriot who disdained to profit by the high cost of living and the misfortune of the patrons who had enriched him. He divided his loaf.-National Maga-
