

RED HOT VERBAL BATTLE AT TRIAL

Goldman Case Is Marked by Clashes Between Opposing Attorneys.

ELDER MAN IS RELEASED

Son Is Fined but Case Is Appealed—
Lounge in Court Afforded Much Amusement.

After a lengthy battle of the red hot and spicy variety, Sam Goldman, accused of offering decayed pears for sale, was this morning found guilty and fined $10 and costs. The case was appealed to the circuit court. Bernard Goldman, father of the boy, was dismissed. The trial was marked by repeated clashes of opposing counsel, City Attorney Witter and Attorney Ben Schriver, repeatedly going to the mat in verbal tilts, in which personalities were freely passed.

Examination of witnesses was interrupted by frequent and strenuous objections upon the part of the legal lights. City Attorney Witter on no less than three occasions interrupted Schriver's outbursts and suggested that the court fine him for contempt. This only added fuel to the flame, and Attorney Schriver came back in warm style, much to the amusement of a large and appreciative gallery.

After all the evidence had been heard the court found the elder Goldman not guilty. Witter sprang to his feet, and addressing Police Magistrate Smith, said: "You have no right to quibble that case."

Attorney Schriver then came to bat and, sarcastically addressing his remarks to the city attorney, shouted: "And what right have you to attempt to tell the court its business?" When the matter of an appeal bond came up, Schriver objected to a $50 surety as exorbitant, demanding a reduction to $30.

"That is awfully high," said Witter with intense irony. "You have told us of the unsullied reputation of your client as a business man, of his prosperity, etc., and surely you could not expect him to secure signers for a $50 bond."

"Oh, you can make it $50,000 if you want," shouted Schriver. "We'll furnish it."

It will be remembered that the two Goldmans were arrested Saturday afternoon for peddling without a license. A wagonload of rotten pears was confiscated and destroyed at the city dump. Commissioner Archie Hart testified that the elder Goldman had stated his son was selling the pears to make a little spending money.

The defense attempted to show that the pears were not for sale but were being taken to the house in order to feed the chickens. City Attorney Witter contended that a wagonload of pears was a rather heavy bill of fare for a scant dozen young chickens, and Officer Johnson testified that when he had made the arrest, the younger Goldman was crying his wares.

JOHN S. FREEMAN DEAD AT DANVILLE

Prominent Y. M. C. A. Worker,
Former Resident of This City, Suddenly Called.

HAD BEEN ILL ONLY A DAY

Located in Moline Nine Years, New Building There Being Erected
During His Regime.

John S. Freeman, general secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Danville, Ill., and a former resident of Rock Island, died suddenly at his home in Danville this morning. A brief telegram containing the distressing news was received by Mrs. M. M. Sturgeon, mother of Mrs. Freeman, at noon today.

Mr. Freeman was taken ill yesterday afternoon, but there was no alarm felt over his condition. In fact he had planned to attend the religious conference in Rock Island this week.

For nine years Mr. Freeman was general secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Moline. The new building in that city was built during his administration. He was transferred from Moline to Danville nine months ago. At Danville Mr. Freeman had just concluded a campaign for a new building to cost $125,000.

Mr. Freeman is survived by his wife. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Charles DeSmith, who was found dead by her husband Wednesday noon, were held at her late home, 817 Sixth avenue, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Burial was made in Calvary cemetery.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM BAALK.

The remains of William E. Baalk, the young man who was electrocuted on the eve of his wedding day near his home, 612 Second street, were laid to rest in the Chippianock cemetery this afternoon. Funeral services were held at the residence at 1:30 o'clock and at the German Lutheran church at 2 o'clock by Rev. Ph. Wilhelm.

FUNERAL OF RICHARD LLOYD.

ARBITRATORS TO SETTLE A CLAIM

Damages for Death of Alidor
DeFauw Will Be Passed on by Board.

James W. Maucker was named this morning as an arbitrator by the Rock Island road to assist in determining the damages due for the death of Alidor DeFauw. Action was started some time ago in county court by Ed. Coryn, administrator of the estate of the dead man, against the road under the provisions of the workmen's compensation act.

The company objected to this procedure, claiming that the state law was in conflict with the federal legislation and refused to name an arbitrator. Judge E. S. Bell held there was no conflict between the two measures, and that even though death was accidental and not due to the company's negligence the state law applied.

This morning the company selected Mr. Maucker as their arbitrator. Judson Metzger had already been named by DeFauw's heirs and James F. Murphy was selected by the court today. All the members of the board are attorneys. Much interest has been aroused in the decision of Judge Bell, as the point involved has never been passed on in this state before.

POLICE NEWS

This afternoon 50 boys were sworn in as special policemen by Chief Brinn. The youthful minions of the law were all furnished with stars and clubs and will have full power to arrest any who are detected destroying property or raising a disturbance this evening. The names of the boy officers have been withheld.

Charles Turner (colored) was arrested at the Park restaurant, located on Twentieth street between Second and Third avenues, last evening charged with assault and battery. The negro was alleged to have walloped Joe Steiner on the jaw. The defendant was dismissed.

M. I. Morris, arrested for violation of the building ordinance, was arraigned in police court this morning and the case continued until Friday.

In a quarrel over saloon "treats," Frank Chambers and W. Barnes, two carpenters, became involved in an argument this afternoon on the corner of Seventeenth street and Third avenue. Barnes struck Chambers on the jaw, the victim dropping like a log to the sidewalk. The assaultant made a break for liberty, closely pursued by Constable Sam Fitzpatrick, who seized a flying coat tail but was unable to retain his grasp. Later both men

VEHS BUYS CLOTHES IN MOLINE ON OCTOBER 2

Deputy Sheriff Tom Hughes yesterday journeyed to Moline and visited the clothing establishment of the Hub Clothing company, 405 Fifteenth street, where Vens purchased a new suit prior to leaving for Rochester. His old garments had been placed in a pasteboard box, with the name A. Vens inscribed thereon, awaiting the return of the owner. The box was brought to Rock Island. When asked why they had not notified the authorities, the firm's members said they did not think about it. They claim Vens bought the suit on October 2.

WOMEN BOYCOTT PANKHURST STAGE

Sudden Boost in Prices for Seats Rouses Wrath of Chicago
Suffragists.

MANAGER'S EARS TINGLE

Agent for Militant Called Mean at Meeting, an Invitation to Which He Ignores.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 31.—That section of the Auditorium theatre sometimes known as "nigger heaven" will be graced by the presence of suffragist leaders next Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst comes to town. A strike, based on "the principle of the thing," was declared yesterday by the Pankhurst lecture committee against stage seats.

So stern and uncompromising is the strike that Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell, chairman of the lecture committee and chairman of the Sunday meeting, will stand on the Auditorium stage until she has introduced the English militant, after which she will climb.

"As soon as I have introduced Mrs. Pankhurst," said Mrs. Treadwell, "I shall take my seat in the gallery."

MANAGER OSTRANDER CATCHES IT

John Ostrander of New York, business manager for the Pankhurst lecture, was the recipient of a flood of feminine oratory fully seasoned with adjectives when it was learned he had raised the price of stage seats from $1 to $1.50 without consulting the lecture committee. Mr. Ostrander did not leave the Auditorium box office, however, to come over to the meeting of the women at the Congress hotel. He sent word over the telephone that the house was practically sold out and that the stage seats, 500 in number, would remain at $1.50—"take 'em or leave 'em."

Consequently Mr. Ostrander was accused of breaking his agreement, of using a high error of discourtesy, of refusing to talk to the chairman of the lecture committee or to answer her letters.

"It is an interesting finale," said Mrs. Treadwell, "that the women who made this lecture a success sit in the gallery. I have the money here for 210 tickets at $1. These women expected to sit on the stage. I shall send their money back and tell them to buy seats in the gallery for 25 cents."

The treatment I have received from Mr. Ostrander is the greatest humiliation of my entire life. It is unparalleled. I've been trying to get Mr. Otrander from 6 o'clock in the morning until 12 o'clock at night. When he heard my voice over the telephone he refused to talk to me.

MR. OSTRANDER PROVES COY.

"I have been sitting at the telephone constantly since Monday," said Mrs. Charles Nagely. "I couldn't get Mr. Ostrander. He promised me tickets, but he wouldn't talk to me."

"I asked Mr. Ostrander to call me up," said Mrs. Bishop. "He called up the telephone operator at the Chicago Beach hotel and told her to tell me he had called."

"Where is Mr. Ostrander?" demanded Mrs. Treadwell.

"He is not coming over," said Miss Anne Forsythe, a member of the Pankhurst management.

"We are nothing now," said Mrs. Charlotte Rhodus. "We did the work and made the lecture a success, but now they have our money and we don't count."

"We'll have our own party in the gallery," said Mrs. M. A. Rolfe. "The money from the stage seats would not go to Mrs. Pankhurst. It would go to Mr. Ostrander. He shall not have any of my money."

"Don't let Mr. Ostrander handle the collection for Mrs. Pankhurst," said Miss Editha Phelps. "He might take a notion to extract a percentage."

Miss Forsythe tried to explain to the women that Ostrander had assumed the responsibility of the expenses and that on account of the 25 per cent commission on tickets given to the women he had to make the higher price. Mrs. Treadwell said other managers gave 50 per cent commission.
