

MOLINE'S SECTION OF THE ARGUS

EAGLES OF STATE CONVENE IN CITY

Many Delegates Here for Three Days' Annual Illinois State Meeting.

ENTERTAINMENT PLEASURES

Hospitality of Local Aerie Brings Forth Considerable Prizes—Carlson in Address.

The Eagle screamed in Moline today.

Above the doors of every downtown business house it spread its wings, and beside it fluttered the other great symbol of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, the American flag.

Delegates from aeries all over Illinois took possession of the Flow City today, and each member of the Moline Aerie, No. 1112, constituted an individual committee of one to see that each visiting delegate found that for which he sought; as a result the delegates here from other parts of the state were loud with their praises of the hospitality extended by the locals.

At 10:30 this morning in the home of the Moline lodge on Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street Mayor M. R. Carlson in a few brief and well chosen remarks granted to the visitors the freedom of the city. Mayor George W. Davis of Jacksonville responded at the request of State President Henry Bolte.

Bloomington Seeks 1915 Meeting.

One boom for the 1915 convention city was inaugurated today. The delegates from Bloomington started this, and it is likely that the city will succeed in its quest, as there does not appear to be any competitors. There is a rumor, however, to the effect that Jacksonville may also enter a bid.

Peter Radcliff and his friends from Granite City were busy lining up votes for the Granite City candidate for state president to succeed Henry Bolte. No other candidate has entered the field as yet, but it is probable that others will seek the job.

Frank U. Correa of Jacksonville is the only candidate announced so far for the office of vice president. It is not probable that Moline will seek any state offices, inasmuch as the city was honored sufficiently this year by the police magistrate, holds the office of past president.

Delegates Called to Order.

At 10 o'clock this morning the convention was called to order. Henry Bolte, state president, of the Springfield field aerie, No. 437, presiding. Frank Gustafson of Moline occupied the past president's chair; he is a member of Moline aerie, No. 1112. Worthy State Vice President Charles G. Sowell of Granite City was unable to be in attendance at the convention here this week, but the other state office chairs were filled by their regular incumbents as follows: Frank U. Correa, Jacksonville Aerie, No. 509, worthy state chaplain; Thomas Robertson, Chicago Heights Aerie, No. 1057, worthy state conductor; John Fulbier, Quincy Aerie, No. 535, worthy state secretary; E. H. Poehlsen, Blue Island Aerie, No. 1332, worthy state treasurer; L. O. Wells, Peoria Aerie, No. 226, inside guard; William Corbett, Wilmington Aerie, No. 1685, outside guard. John Tonsor of the Alton Aerie, No. 254, was the only state trustee present; the other two trustees, R. O. Deason of Murphyboro, and Joseph Hensell of Bloomington, being absent on account of conflicting engagements.

The Morning Session.

The feature of this morning's session was the forthright address by J. S. Perry of Kansas City, national grand secretary of the order. His presence at the convention was a surprise as he only decided to come at the last moment.

"I came here to raise my voice in committee meetings and not in the open convention," declared Mr. Perry, "but since I have been asked to speak I will tell you what your order means."

"There is no fraternal order today of any sort that is doing so much in the way of uplifting humanity as the Fraternal Order of Eagles. We started on a solid foundation and have built upon honest endeavor. We have had some, possibly many, undesirable in the order but their names have for the most part been stricken from the roster. This order has done more than any other in ridding itself of undesirable of this kind. We now have 400,000 members and the order is only 15 years old. It is still growing and who can prophesy what it will become?"

Invocation was delivered by Rev. R. E. Haney, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city. The address of welcome by Mayor M. R. Carlson followed. Mr. Davis was followed on the platform by John Fulbier, state secretary, who read the names of the Eagles who have died during the past year, and made a few appropriate remarks. Larry M. Magill then delivered the memorial address. Andrew Olson, who was also to have spoken this morning was not present. Sessions continue throughout today, Wednesday and Thursday.

THINKS SHE'LL BE HAPPY WITH NO. 1

Mrs. Jennie Eaton Ainsworth.

Washington, D. C., June 9.—Since marrying her first husband, D. Henry Ainsworth, in Washington a few days ago, the former Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, acquitted at Plymouth, Mass., last October of the charge of having poisoned her second husband, Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, gives every indication of being happy. Bright-eyed and smiling, she has been seen on the street several times during the past few days.

She refuses to make any statement to the newspapers, however. After the marriage a reporter, meeting them on the street, politely inquired: "Mr. and Mrs. Ainsworth?"

"Don't say a word. Don't open your mouth," said the bride to the bridegroom.

Though his mouth was opened to reply, Ainsworth closed it meekly without a word.

Mrs. Ainsworth met both her husbands in this city. During her life with Ainsworth she lived successfully at Washington, Guthrie, Okla.; St. Louis, Chicago, and then returned to Washington, where she bought a house. Reverses caused her to sell the house. After her divorce from Ainsworth she placed her two daughters in a school at Frederick, Md., and took up nursing. In September, 1905, she went to Admiral Eaton's Washington home to attend his first wife. The patient died a few weeks later, but the nurse remained at the house to care for the admiral. She and Admiral Eaton were married in Boston, July 26, 1906.

The trial of Mrs. Eaton on the charge of poisoning her husband, Rear Admiral Eaton, cost Plymouth county, Massachusetts, $31,391.

It was contended by the defense that Admiral Eaton was addicted to the excessive use of intoxicants and drugs, including arsenic.

Mrs. Eaton testified that she married Henry Ainsworth in Washington in 1894. Her life with him, she said, was made miserable by his excessive drinking.

ceremonies. After the introductory remarks he read the names of the deceased members of the lodge. A song by the male quartet of the Swedish Methodist church followed. The speaker of the day, Andrew Olson, was then introduced. He spoke of the silent city, their duties to the departed, and admonished them to heed the Svithold teachings. The exercises closed with a song by the quartet. Flowers were placed on the graves of the departed brothers. Idun lodge, No. 13, Ladies of Svithold, was well represented at the services.

Prominent Lodge Man Dead.

Moline Odd Fellows who have attended grand lodge meetings in the past, will be grieved to learn of the death of Grand Treasurer Thomas Needles, which occurred in a St. Louis hospital. He was serving his 31st term as treasurer and has handled during that time millions of dollars. He served as grand master during the early '70s and was prominent in republican politics. He is quite well known among local members of the I. O. O. F.

STIRS VENEZUELAN'S AGAINST PRES. GOMEZ

General Jose Manuel Hernandez.

Caracas, Venezuela, June 9.—News that Gen. Jose Manuel Hernandez, "the hope of Venezuela," is organizing a band of revolutionists with the intention of moving upon the capital, is causing President Gomez great uneasiness. For the most determined and sincere of all revolutionists who ever stirred things up in Venezuela is General Hernandez. He is the only formidable revolutionist leader this country has seen who has not had his price.

Hernandez has been a chronic rebel. First he revolted against President Blanco, then against President Andrade, then against Castro and now against Gomez.

Gomez has run things a little more cautiously than Castro, but he has continued the system of political privilege and monopoly. The entire country is burdened with taxes and high prices. Gomez is even more unpopular than his predecessor. The time seems about ripe for another successful revolution.

The men who were with Hernandez 20 years ago are with him today. A member of the laboring classes by birth, he has stuck with them throughout his lifetime. He became a revolutionist in 1870, when he was 17 years old, and the country was in rebellion against the rule of President Blanco.

He has continued rebelling ever since. Venezuela is a country which has had much misfortune with its rulers. Most of its troubles may be traced to a graft ring which for strength and audacity makes the American look like an organized plundering of blind beggars. The government of Venezuela has been consistently run for personal profit. There are any number of presidential monopolies and quite a few plan presidential holidays. Any one who supports the cause of honesty, has against him the entire political system.

General Hernandez was once elected president himself, but the party in power did him out of it before the returns were more than half in. He rebelled, of course, but that was all the good it did him. The government put him in prison for 13 months.

Now about ready to launch a successful he may yet realize his ambition of becoming the president of his country.
