COUNCIL MAY BAR FREE LUNCHES IN SALOONS OF CITY

Saloonkeeper Pleads Sacredness of Home Is at Stake and Asks Ordinance.

MAJORITY OWNERS BACK IT

In Behalf of Liquor Dealers' Association Charles Hastings Makes Stirring Talk to Commission.

A saloonkeeper, pleading for an ordinance providing for the abolishment of free lunches in saloons, claiming the sacredness of the home was at stake, was a feature at the regular session of the city council yesterday afternoon.

The tipping house owner was Charles Hastings, who operates the St. Julien saloon at the corner of Seventh avenue and Seventeenth street, and the council is considering the matter. It is believed that a measure will be passed amending the saloon laws.

Mr. Hastings' appeal to the council was eloquent. He spoke for the majority, if not all of the saloonkeepers of Rock Island, he being a member of the Liquor Dealers' Protective association of this city, and having a petition signed by 68 members of the organization asking that the free lunch be abandoned. He stated that the ordinance was requested because it would be binding with the saloonkeepers.

Forget Meals at Home.

In his address, too, he accused some Rock Island men with eating free lunches and forgetting they had a home. It was on this point that he dwelt a long time. Here is his appeal:

"At a meeting of the liquor dealers Friday a committee was appointed to call upon this council with a view to securing an ordinance dispensing with the free lunch in the saloons. I am one of the committee. I went around with this petition to gain the sentiment of the saloonkeepers. Not one dissenting man did I meet and I have the petition with its 58 names.

"We realize that the increased license and the increase in cost of beer and whisky is meaning less profit to us. All of the dealers are heartily in favor of dispensing with the free lunch.

"The reason we are coming before you is because the statutes make no provisions on the free lunch question. Your commissioner of health has told me that he was in favor of barring the lunch. He said it was very dangerous and unsanitary. Why not have it barred? You have plumbing laws. It is injurious to the public health. Diseased fingers touch that lunch, and along comes another man, hale and hearty, and he picks up and eats what the other has touched.

"I am earnest in this matter. My hope is to get through an ordinance to take effect Dec. 1. The saloonkeepers pay $77,000 a year in license, and you should give their views in this matter weight.

"Fifteen or 20 per cent of the people in this city are floaters. Many are hungry, and they know they can get free lunch with a beer. They hold up people to get beer and lunch money—sandbag them. With no lunch you have cleaner saloons and a cleaner city. You get rid of a good part of this riff-raff.

"And there are a good number of men in Rock Island who turn their nose up at the table at home and live on free lunch in saloons. It's hurting the home as well. A man eats at the bar and never gets home.

Holiday Lunches Attractive.

"Yes, and the holidays are coming, too. Many saloons on Thanksgiving day have big lunches. They have turkey, others fowl and roast pig. They draw the men from their wives and families to the saloon. They eat and drink there all day and the wife and children are home alone, while the man should be there too. That is one reason why I should like to have it go into effect by Dec. 1."

Mayor Schriver stated that he was heartily in favor of the measure, and stated that he had wanted the clause in the last saloon ordinance. He also cited cases where the matter had proved dangerous to the public health. He said it was unsanitary.

Joe Huber and Fred Grams, other members of the committee, also said a few words in favor of the suggested ordinance, and Commissioner Archie Hart announced he was for it. It was on Commissioner Hart's motion that the matter was brought to something of a head. He presented a resolution that the communication of the liquor dealers be received and the council consider the preparation of an ordinance providing for the wishes of the saloonkeepers.

It seems that while all of the barkeepers are in favor of abolishing the lunch, that they have no method of inflicting fines or penalties which would bind all to any agreement they would make. They are therefore taking the steps for this ordinance.

Ninety Licenses Issued.
Elsewhere in The Argus will be found a list of the 90 saloonkeepers whose licenses were issued yesterday by the council.

The licenses for the New Harper, Hotel Harms and Rock Island house saloons were omitted. They will be issued later after settlement is made on the cafe license matter.

That British women surgeons have proved to be absolutely fearless under fire is the observation of the London correspondent of the Medical Record. It is hardly a surprising discovery. To endure horrors, and horrors in the production of which they have had no part, has always been woman's lot.
