Dirty Patagonia.

"Patagonians are not giants, as some have supposed and as the geographers teach," said a man who has traveled "They are large in comparison with the other South American natives; that is all. Everything is relative, you know. But they are very fat. That is why they can stand the cold so well. I have seen Patagonian men and boys running around unclad while I was wrapped in warm garments, with the snow falling upon them in quantities and the wind blowing bitterly. They are kept warm by their fat and dirt. Patagonia is one of the dirtiest places imaginable. Don't go there if you hate dirt. That is my advice to all who contemplate a journey to the jumping off place in South America."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Needlewomen who suffer from moist hands will find an excellent remedy by rubbing the palms occasionally with a solution of borax in a little alcohol. A sponge saturated with the solution should always be at hand. Squeeze it in the palms occasionally, allowing the moisture to dry without wiping. This is quickly accomplished through evaporation.

Novel Way to Bake Cookies—Go to the grocery and have him cut for you a sheet of tin that fits just a half inch smaller than your oven. Have him cut a rung on it to hang it up by. When your cookie dough is ready, put the tin on the molding board, and roll the cookie dough out right on the tin until it covers it entirely. Then take your cookie cutter and cut out the cookies, as close together as possible. Slide the tin into the oven and bake. When you remove the tin the cookie rounds will easily come out. The few square corners remaining you can easily dispose of to the children while they are warm. This not only saves time, but it makes the cookies uniform. For, as every cook knows, every time the cookie pinch is rolled over for an extra cutting more flour has to be added, thus making the consistency of each tin of cookies different.

HOME-MADE FLOOR LAMP.

A floor lamp of popular type may be cheaply and easily made at home from a container or clothes tin. Remove the top brackets and saw off unnecessary height. Cover a shade frame in silk or cretonne and screw to the flat surface of the sawed upright. Fasten the bulbs on a free hinging cord to the lower brackets now under cover of the shade. Attach to wall or base post.

With silk covered shade the cost of adapting an old container is: Wire frame, 35 cents; two yards silk, $1; one yard lining, 25 cents; cord, etc., 75 cents; total, $2.25.

THE TABLE.

Chicken Croquettes—One tablespoon butter, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon dry ground mustard, one large spoonful dry flour. Melt butter and mix all ingredients in frying pan. Pour an egg cup boiling milk. Have chicken all cut up in small pieces and stir in. Set away to get cold. Shape into croquettes and roll in dry flour. Beat up a whole egg with a tablespoon of milk. Dip croquettes in and roll in cracker crumbs. Fry in deep boiling lard to a light brown and set in warming oven until ready to serve.

Escalloped Tomatoes—Take one quart raw tomatoes, cut in small pieces, drain off liquid, season with salt, pepper, a very small amount of sugar and a few pieces of onion. Cover bottom of a greased baking dish or pan with a thick layer of crumbs. Add tomatoes, cover top with another layer of crumbs and brown in oven. Bake from three-fourths to one hour. Bits of butter dropped over last layer of crumbs makes them much better.

Escalloped Tomatoes with Nuts—Have ready a quart can of stewed tomatoes, one cup chopped pecan nuts and one cup stale bread crumbs. Mix bread crumbs with one-fourth cup melted butter. Put a layer of tomatoes in a baking dish or in ramekins, sprinkle with salt and pepper, then with the buttered crumbs and the chopped nuts. Continue until all are used, having nuts and crumbs on top. Bake about 20 minutes.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young mother and I have three little children that are 4 years, 2 years and 2 months old. I do not get help from anybody. My husband is often mean to me and he is quick-tempered. I keep my home very clean and my children, too, but he drinks and he means to me. I live with his mother, and she is not very good to me.

Now, my husband is in Detroit and he writes to me very often and tells me how long he is, where he goes and how he spends his Sundays. Do you think he is true to me? He didn't ask me if he could go there, but he wanted to ask his mother. Does your husband ever ask you if he can go? He went for a month.

I don't like to live with his folks any longer. Must he go where I want to get? I have lived with his mother seven years and have done the best I can, but I can't stand it any longer, because they don't treat me right. I do the sewing for the whole house and the house work, so that I do not have time to go out.

WORRIED LITTLE MOTHER. Your husband ought to be at liberty to go out of town without saying anything, but if he did want to be someone about going, I think you ought to have been the one instead of his mother. The man still comes for you or he wouldn't write and be as kind to you as he is. Surprise him and be more exacting when he gets back from Detroit. Say that you want to live in a home away from his family and keep on saying it until he moves. Make him work for your love and he will do it and will treat you far better than he does while you are striving to please him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a young man in my town and I like him very much and have reason to think he likes me as well. But we have never been out together, as I have been too young to go with him before. He used to come to our house often and plead with me, but now he has stopped coming and is going to see another girl in another town. He goes by our house, but never stops to see me. What do you think he meant by his actions?

He liked you and wanted to go with you, but when he found you would not go with him he looked elsewhere for company. Don't feel badly about this incident; he may come back to you when you are
