

ASKS $2,500 FOR INJURIES BY CAR

W. H. Dyer of Andalusia Sues Tri-City Railway Company as Result of Mishap at Loop Corner.

ACCIDENT OCCURS ON JUNE 1

Auto in Which He is Driving Collides With Trolley at Twentieth Street and Third Avenue.

Two thousand five hundred dollars is the damage asked by W. H. Dyer of Andalusia for his injuries and demolishment of his automobile, as a result of a smashup at the corner of Twentieth street and Third avenue, when his machine and a Bridge line car collided. The Tri-City Railway company is the defendant.

Mr. Dyer, it will be recalled, on the night of June 1 was driving south on Twentieth street and the Bridge line car was proceeding east. By force of the collision his car was turned around and skidded 20 feet, his head being caught between the frame of the windshield and the top of the automobile.

He alleges in the bill that the employees of the company were negligent in their duties and careless. He claims he was compelled to pay $50 for medical attention rendered him and that his car was completely demolished. The suit has been filed in circuit court. Kate Foster Wright and Beulah Foster Brogan today started suit in circuit court asking damages of $1,000 from Fred Foster. Claim for judgment is based on work they allege they did for Mr. Foster and for which they claim they received no compensation. J. T. and S. R. Kenworthy are counsel for the plaintiff.

Appeal Cases.

Appeal was filed in circuit court by Stone & Webster Engineering company of Boston, builders of the Moline Plover company plant in the east end of Rock Island, on two suits in which judgments were returned in the court of Justice James Maucker. In one case a verdict of $11.20 in favor of Alton Leontines was returned and in the other judgment was granted John Farber for $4.50.

Cheatham was taken to the Davenport police station by Captain Edward Kildisen, where he was locked up until the Clinton authorities arrived and took the negro to Clinton to answer to the charge of larceny placed against him by Holmes.

While putting on a little free-for-all fight at midnight last night on the corner of Fourth street and Third avenue James Reid and Mrs. Mary Reid, man and wife, were arrested by Officers Smith and Munn. Charges of assault and battery were placed against them and this morning they were each assessed $5 in police court.

SOLDIER SHOTS SELF AT BORDER

Guy R. Hayes of Rock Island Committed Suicide Before Eyes of His Comrades on March.

FORMER MEMBER OF COMPANY A

Painter Who Lived in West End and Enlisted With Wisconsin Troops Dies By Own Hand.

New Braunfels, Texas, Aug. 30.—Guy R. Hayes of Andalusia, Ill., a private in Company L, First Wisconsin infantry, committed suicide by shooting today at a farm house where he had dropped out of the column during an 18-mile march. He was formerly private in company A in the Sixth Illinois infantry. He was 30 years old.

The foregoing Associated Press dispatch will come as a shock to hundreds of friends of Mr. Hayes in this city and county. Two weeks ago The Argus published a letter from him in which he seemed in a cheerful attitude, but since he apparently became despondent.

Mr. Hayes was a member of Company A of Rock Island until last spring, when he located in Freeport, Ill. When the Mexican situation became acute he joined the First Wisconsin infantry and went to the border.

He lived in Rock Island for a number of years. Several years ago his wife died. He has a son living here at present who is 8 years old.

He was born in Andalusia in 1886. When a young man he moved to Rock Island, where he learned the painter's trade. He is survived by his father, Charles R. Hayes, of Andalusia, and three sisters, one in Wisconsin, Mrs. Mattie Roberts of Buffalo, and Mrs. Blanche Baker of Edgington.

HE DID NOT WANT TO PAY FOR TAXI

And So He Stalled Around, Raised a Disturbance, Got Arrested and Paid It and More.

Because he didn't see the advisability of paying his part of the taxi bill incurred by him and his companion while joyriding with a couple of women friends, W. C. Miller, a stranger in the city, today not only paid his half of the bill—$6—but paid an additional $3 fine with court costs.

Miller and his companion, wishing to see the city while the white lights were burning, hired a taxi of William Gable and proceeded to view things from the inside looking out with the assistance of two women. When they decided they had satisfied their roving desire four hours had elapsed, which, figured at the rate of $3 an hour, hit the neat total of $12. This sum, divided between the two men, showed each owing exactly $6. Miller's companion promptly "came across," but Miller did not and showed no inclination whatever to do so. A considerable scene was raised at the corner of Nineteenth street and Second avenue and finally the police were called and Miller was asked after he displayed a little chumminess toward the officer, whether he wished to walk to the station or ride. After that he was a changed man. Of course he did not care to ride—he had just finished doing his part of $12 worth of riding, and besides it was a nice night for walking. They went to the station.

When brought before Magistrate Smith today Miller was forced to pay his end of the taxi bill and $3 for the trouble he caused.

Up until a late hour this afternoon the remains of Julia, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Estawicz, 221 Forty-fifth street, who was drowned yesterday in the slough off the foot of Forty-fifth street, had not been recovered. Searching parties dragged the stream part of the night and today. The little girl either fell in the water or was pushed off an old wall bordering the stream by a playmate. The parents did not learn of the tragedy until the little girl's companion came running to the home to tell them of the drowning. Coroner R. C. J. Meyer has been notified of the case and he will conduct an inquest when the body is recovered.

Smith charges desertion in his bill. The couple were married Dec. 1, 1911. The father asks for the care and custody of the only child, Louis A., aged 3 years. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Schmidt. J. T. and S. R. Kenworthy are attorneys for the plaintiff.
