Dr. Weidner Gives His Second Bible Lecture.

Inspiration of the Scriptures Topic at the Y. M. C. A. Parties Yesterday Afternoon—Outline of the Discourse.

Rev. Dr. Weidner gave the second lecture of the bible series at the Y. M. C. A. rooms yesterday afternoon. The subject was "inspiration of the Scriptures." The subject, he said, is especially important at this time when so many false theories are held. If the bible is not inspired it has no authority. The soul of man craves for something upon which it can rest and know its absolute truth, and some power outside of self which shall overcome sin. But one book ever claimed to give these things. In studying the subject it is necessary to clearly distinguish between three things, viz: distinction, inspiration and illumination. These words are often judged to mean something that is known before. Inspiration is that supernatural guidance of the Holy Spirit by which those who were the subjects of it wrote or preached with absolute correctness and truth what God desired. It does away entirely with any chance of error. Illumination is the act of the Holy Spirit, still working, by which we understand the word. Dr. Weidner explained these terms at length, giving many instances illustrating the distinctions, and said there are five false theories of inspiration that must be taken up and disposed of so that the way may be clear to understand the truth of this subject. They are:

First. Natural inspiration, identical with genius; its advocates claim inspiration for Milton and Shakespeare of same kind as for prophets and apostles.

Second. Universal Christian inspiration, identical with illumination; its advocates claim inspiration for all Christians.

Third. Partial inspiration. The popular theory of the day. Its advocates say the bible contains the word of God; not, but contains. Each claims the right to decide what is true; incessant quarreling results.

Fourth. Illumination theory. Its advocates claim degrees of inspiration, as in some parts the spirit simply superintended the work, in others guided, in others suggested the act.

Fifth. Mechanical inspiration. According to this the writer was a mere machine, just as a flute: you blow and the flute plays.

The true theory may be called dynamic, meaning power or plenary meaning true. It's truly human; truly divine. Absolute truth; that's divine; language, individuality, that's human. The differences of the language of Ishah and Amos, of Luke and Paul, are the differences of the men, but that's written by each was absolute truth. I never think of this without my Saviour coming to mind. The word is like Christ, human and divine. As the son of God became incarnate, so in the book the hol. spirit is incarnate. Now these are theories, but what we want is facts, we find those in the word itself. The claims of the word for itself were then taken up. John 15:26-27, 16:12-13; I Cor. 12:9-11; Romans and Ephesians, Gal. 1:11-12; 1 Thes. 2:13, were cited as proofs. The arguments to be drawn from history are also conclusive. Dr. Weidner closed his address by stating his own positive conviction, that the bible is an absolute guide, telling all that is necessary for happiness and peace on earth, revealing the truth of the future, of death and judgment and resurrection, the good news of salvation, all I need. Much time following the lecture was given to questions.

Dr. Weidner lectured next Sunday again, the subject to be announced later. The room was full yesterday, taking the ability of the association to afford accommodations.

POLICE POINTS.

Surprising Arrests as the Result of Detective Skill of Chief Miller and Two of His Men—Minden, Iowa.

A sensation has been created down town by the arrest of Ed. Wagner, nineteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Wagner, for the burglary of the boarding house at Ninth street and Fourth avenue last Wednesday night at which time $27 in money and a gold hunting case watch was stolen. Ever since the commission of the deed Marshal Miller and Officers Kramer and Sexton have had their eyes on Wagner as the man who did it, and after watching him closely and keeping track of how lavishly he spent money, it was decided yesterday to arrest him, Officer Sexton performing the duty. The chief and Officers Kramer and Sexton, each of whom had gained sufficient evidence to warrant the belief that Wagner was guilty, put the prisoner through a searching cross fire that finally led to his confession of the crime though he at first denied it. He had but $1 left of the money, and the watch was found concealed in the springs of a sofa at the young man's home on Fourth avenue and Tenth street. The boy's father is almost broken down with grief over his son's disgrace. He is naturally bright and but for the persistency and skill of Marshal Miller and Officers Kramer and Sexton, would have succeeded in concealing his crime.

Magistrate Wivill Seaford evening held Chas. Leonard in bonds of $500 for attempted burglary and fined John Foley $3 and costs for disturbing the peace.

Chas. Larson was fined $5 and costs for intoxication.

Nicholas Ulam's carpenter shop on Twenty-second street and Ninth avenue was entered yesterday and eighty pounds of nails stolen. Officer Mulqueen arrested Phillip Johnson and Julius Schocker for the theft this morning, and acted as secretary. The Democrat says:

No such showing of the advantages possessed by this center of manufacturing industries has previously been made. It must convince any disinterested man that the claim made for the gun factory and pistol works is well founded.

It is one thing for the facts to exist and another to bring them together in such a way as to make them tell at every point for all they are worth. This Judge French has done with art, and force, and completeness. A unanimous vote of thanks to the object system.

COMING THIS WAY.

The Moline Central Electric Pushing on Toward Rock Island—The New Tree Bridge.

The Moline Central Electric Railway is pushing on toward Rock Island. The work of laying ties at the Fairmount terminus began a week ago and has nearly reached the new bridge over Darling's creek. The ties are merely being pounded down it being deemed unnecessary to rest the road on any former foundation than the ground itself. The ties will doubtless settle some, but as all the ties will go down together the evenness of the road will not be disturbed. The work is under the superintendence of Mr. T. J. Flynn, of Independence, Iowa, who is an experienced contractor. After coming west about two hundred feet from the terminus, the line is to run to go north one block, thence due west over the river and 4,700 feet beyond it into Rock Island.

The line, says the Moline Republican, will this fall be extended only to College street in South Park addition. The poles are all erected and the rails distributed, and it is likely the line will be ready for operation sometime next month.

The new bridge over Darling's ravine is nearly completed. Mr. Flynn also has the contract for doing the wood work on this. The iron span was put in by Civil Engineer Boynton, of the C. R. I. P. It formerly served as a bridge for the Rock Island road west of Edon, Iowa, and was sold to the Moline people because it was too light for the increased traffic and heavier locomotives newly acquired on that line. The bridge is in good condition, being nearly new, and the Central folks consider themselves fortunate in having secured it. The iron span is 130 feet and three inches long, and the wooden approaches either end are each forty-eight feet long, making the total length of the bridge over 226 feet. From the lowest point under the bridge to the upper deck is fifty-three feet. The deck is twenty feet wide and is provided with a strong railing on either side. The bridge can be used for teams as well as electric cars and therefore will fill a long want. The total cost of the structure is about $7,000.

A general Practical Jose.

Lawyer from Rock Island came from a hunting trip to Cordova the other evening and now wishes he hadn't. Some of his friends who expected his return conspired the idea of perpetrating a joke upon the unsuspecting sportsman.

The young business man is missing from the city. He left the city very abruptly Saturday night and probably saved his life by doing so. All day Saturday a citizen who considers that he would be invading the sanctity of his home was on the lookout for the aforesaid merchant with gun loaded to the muzzle. So he thought the first law of nature demanded that he take a few days' rest of town, and he departed. All that he left was a letter to an attorney, telling him to call at a certain house where he would find the wife of his partner. The lawyer compiled and proceeded for divorce were decided upon, the ground being habitual drunkenness. The husband charged adultery on his wife's part and will enter countercharge to that effect. The parties to the scandal are all well known.
