Cardinal Principles of Reading.

In choice of reading there are two cardinal principles which should ever be borne in mind—first, that it is necessary to keep fairly abreast of the principal thoughts and news of the time, and, second, that it is essential, in order to a right estimate of present events, to cull at any rate some of the choicest flowers of the literature and history of the past.

The second principle that has been indicated—that it is necessary to obtain a well proportioned view of present events—involves the reading of history, biography, philosophy and fiction. It is a striking comment on the prevalence of popular ignorance that a sensational murder will provide a month's topic for conversation, while the publication of a profound work which is the result of long years of toil will pass unheeded.

References on Both Sides. In the Westminster Gazette the other day appeared a lively little dialogue in which a servant on being engaged demanded in her turn a reference as to her employer's character. "Why not?" a servant runs many dangers in entering an unknown house.

Magnitude of the Down Industry. From out of the chaos of new industries the down trade has sprung to a most conspicuous place. Down pillows and head rests, as well as down comfortables, were, up to a short while ago, imported almost entirely, but today they are manufactured very largely in this country.

The Waltz of the Ostrich. The dance of the ostrich is one of those peculiar native customs which certain fowls develop, without any apparent incentive except it may be the law of heredity. It usually occurs at early morning, when the young, strong birds are let out of their enclosure, and is said to be entirely due to awkwardness and uncertainty.

Dumas Pere and His "Factory." In a conversation which I had with M. Dumas he gave me some interesting details of his earlier life. He was born in Paris on July 27, 1824, and while a youth was the pet of his generous hearted father, Alexander Dumas, the elder, who at that time was managing what the son sardonically styled a "fabrique des romans," or a "factory of novels," employing several impecunious writers at so much a week.

Philosophy on the Road. A certain amount of philosophy is an armor of proof when one is on a journey. The thought that not you, but the conductor and the captain and the engineer are responsible for the safety of the cars or boat should suffice to keep you from needless and useless fidgeting when there is a halt.

A Million Friends. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds.
