Ocala Banner:—With our national law-making body now in session nearly all the year round, our various state legislatures in session to the very last minute allowed under their several constitutions, our city councils and other law-making bodies grinding out all manner of laws, and our courts, municipal, county, United States, and others too numerous to mention, putting these laws in force, we have the testimony of press and pulpit that the country is in a bad shape. The trouble is we are governed too much. This is the worst thing that can befall a nation. Too much government breeds a rebellious spirit. Don't take the entire reins of government away from the individual and the parent. The "home government" in former times was regarded as reasonably safe. Let's return to it.
